

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U.S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the sys-

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 195 persons for official corruption.

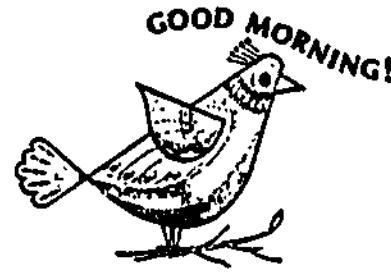

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing (Continued on page 2)

Village unsure of procedure in Missing's case

by RICH HONACK

A News Analysis

It still is unknown what decision newly elected Wheeling Trustee Richard Missing will make concerning the discovery of a possible conflict of interest between his job and being an elected official.

It was disclosed in the Herald yesterday that Missing cannot take office as trustee and continue to hold his job as manager and buyer for Mark Drugs, 303 E. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, a store that sells liquor.

Illinois state law prohibits any elected municipal official from either the sale or distribution of liquor. It also states that the manager of any store selling alcoholic beverages must meet the qualifications required to hold a liquor license.

As trustee, Missing is not qualified. If he takes office and continues his job, the store could lose its liquor license.

MISSING, therefore, is left a choice — his job or being a trustee. He cannot legally hold both, and has until Saturday, according to state statutes, to make his decision or the trustee seat automatically becomes vacant.

See related story on Page 6.

In that case or in the case of his resignation from office someone will have to fill the seat of trustee. However, no one is sure how that person will take office.

As it appears there are three possibilities. They are:

- The village board may appoint someone to the vacancy until the next general election in 1975.
- A special election may be called for by village officials.
- The highest vote-getter after Missing in last month's election, which would be Albert Lang, may take the seat.

THE MAIN reason attorneys and Cook County election officials cannot come up with a specific answer is because a case like this has apparently never occurred in the past.

This fact has left Wheeling officials and several county officials looking to state statutes trying to figure out what will happen next. If, for a fact, no earlier precedents can be found on the law books, Wheeling officials could make almost any decision and wait to see if someone challenges the legality of the move.

That possibility is more than likely, because the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) would probably challenge either the appointment of a non-WHIP candidate or movement of Lang into the vacant seat, since he was a member of the opposing party.

On the other hand TOP officials may challenge a new election because they obviously stand to benefit from the other two alternatives.

To add to the confusion it may turn out that Missing was never elected. If an informal recount, to be held tomorrow, takes more than the three votes on which Missing won election away from him, Lang may be the winner without a problem. That is providing, Lang doesn't lose any votes and asks for an official recount.

Board votes against teacher pact

The High School Dist. 214 board voted 4 to 3 last night against a proposed three-year salary contract with its teachers.

Following the vote, representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the teachers, said some teachers would react "violently" to the board action and said the move is sure to intensify a power struggle within the teachers' ranks.

The proposed contract, which would have raised the base pay for a beginning teacher from $8,600 a year to $9,300 a year next year and to $9,650 by the 1975-76 school year. It was worked out by a six-man "impasse resolving committee" which included two board members, Supt. Edward Gilbert and three teachers.

Board members Jack Costello, Arthur Aronson, Richard Bachhuber and Warren Schabinger voted against the pact. Board Pres. Gene Artemenko, Jack Matthews and Donald Hoeck voted for it. Artemenko and Matthews served on the "impasse resolving committee."

THE CONTRACT dispute will now be submitted to a three member fact-finding board which will be made up of one representative from each side and a professional arbiter. The board designated Costello as its representative on the fact-finding board.

Earlier in the day, the district's teachers voted to accept the pact by 563 to 116.

The board members voting against the contract said they objected to the fact it left the index, which makes all salaries a fixed percentage of the base, untouched. Board members have objected to the expense caused by the index, saying the district could not afford to guarantee that top pay will be more than twice the base pay.

Vince Carioti, president of the education association, said he was surprised and disappointed by the board action. "This is going to apparently confirm the suspicions of some teachers that the board is not to be taken at face value," he said.

He said the board action will be used by teachers who have been trying to get the district association to affiliate with a state and national organization, either the Illinois Education Association (IEA) or the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

The market

The expectation of traders that President Nixon would take a strong stand on stemming inflation boosted prices in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average gained ground, closing up 11.13 at 932.34. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, climbed 1.33 to 118.43. The average price of a NYSE common share gained 49 cents.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

President adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

The state

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Gigliotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collingsville, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced negativists" surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The world

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

Hundreds of police seized the coffin of a slain colleague from its hearse and paraded it around downtown Madrid demanding permission to use firearms against demonstrators.

ing books as I did when I was a law professor."

He described himself as "a freak U.S. attorney because most U.S. attorneys come out of the patronage system and I didn't." He added, "It's a very comfortable position and sometimes I don't quite believe I have it."

IN ANSWER to a student's question, Thompson said he personally has not yet decided whether Nixon had advanced knowledge of the Watergate break-in or the later cover-up. But he said he could imagine circumstances under which Nixon might not have known about the incidents.

"Most public officeholders surround themselves with people they trust implicitly," he said, adding, "If somebody came to me and said the two men closest to me were doing wrong, my first reaction would be total disbelief."

He added that the amount of investigation done by a public official when a charge of misbehavior involved an aide "would vary with the individual. There are circumstances I can conceive of where you'd trust someone so much you would be slow to react."

Thompson told another questioner he never had been offered a bribe to stop an investigation, adding, "If somebody came into my office and even hinted at a bribe he wouldn't leave by himself. He would leave in the company of a federal marshal and would go directly to the Grand Jury and repeat the offer. That's the only way to deal with bribery — you can't cover it up."

ANOTHER student asked Thompson whether he was satisfied with the sentences given to Kerner and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett after they were convicted for bribery and income tax evasion. Both were fined and sentenced to three years in federal prison.

In general, Thompson said he believes that if potential criminals know they stand a good chance of being caught, convicted and sentenced to prison, "that is a better deterrent than the length of any one sentence."

He added that because Barrett is old and in ill health, "I think his sentence was appropriate." In the case of Kerner, he said, "I thought in the abstract that sentence was a little light. I was disappointed with it."

However, Thompson said he could not find fault with Judge Robert Taylor, who sentenced Kerner. "I'm sure he never thought in all his long years on the bench that he would ever have to sentence another federal judge," he said. "He is a compassionate man."

Petition seeks impartial prosecutor

Chicago unit asks probe of Watergate

A Chicago-based public interest group yesterday filed a petition in Washington asking that the Chief U.S. District Court Judge appoint a lawyer outside the executive branch as a special prosecutor in the Watergate controversy.

The announcement was made by Alexander Polkoff, executive director of the Business and Professional People for the Public Interest (BPI), at the group's annual meeting in Chicago.

"This request to Judge Joseph Sirica is being made because of the importance of preserving the appearance of fairness and integrity in the judicial process," Polkoff said.

The petition says the Department of Justice is in a conflict of interest position since the Watergate investigation is directed at leading members of the very administration it serves. The petition says since the grand jury is a judicial insitution the judge rather than the executive branch should select this special prosecutor.

THE PETITION differs from the recent Percy resolution which calls for the appointment of a prosecutor from within the Department of Justice.

BPI, which celebrated its fourth anniversary yesterday, is a non-profit organization which styles itself as a combination watchdog, research center, law firm and ombudsman for individuals. The organization is supported by donations from Chicago and area business and professional interests.

Polkoff said a letter was delivered to Elliot Richardson, acting attorney general, requesting the Department of Justice itself to make the request for a special prosecutor to Judge Sirica. If the Department does so, BPI will consider withdrawing its petition before the court.

The petition was filed on behalf of BPI members and "all citizens of the United States interested in the integrity of judicial processes."

Let school boards set policy, Bakalis tells PTA convention

by United Press International

Michael Bakalis, Illinois superintendent of public instruction, yesterday said he believed educational policy should be decided by elected local school boards, rather than administrators or teachers.

In a speech at the opening of the annual convention of the Illinois Parent-Teachers Association (PTA), Bakalis said the influence of school boards has eroded because boards have become "bogged down in administrative trivia."

"Local school boards should be considering alternatives, not merely administrative recommendations," he said.

"The real issue is whether the direction of education should be determined by the public or whether that task should be delegated entirely or primarily to professional educators."

"It is my view the direction of educational policy must be decided through public agencies, chosen by the people and responsible to the people, and vested with sufficient authority to perform those functions the public demands," he said.

stition the judge rather than the executive branch should select this special prosecutor.

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruthe Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulling back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .375 calibre Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

- Carbona ordered her home at 10:15 p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

- When she arrived home, Carbona

"cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

- Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

- Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

- She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

- Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he was going to blow my '---' guts out," she said. She said she told Carbona her leg and body hurt so badly "I didn't care what he did."

- Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

- She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

- Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

- Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your '---' brains out," before he started down the stairs.

- MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

- Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

- She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Police told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing their stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruthe Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

New reading techniques at Cooper

Spark of interest key to learning

by JILL BETTNER

The tall, soft-spoken teacher gently prods the young boy for answers to questions on the day's lesson, searching for a spark of interest. That spark is the key to Bonnie Genrich's job of awakening the desire to read in students at Cooper Junior High School.

Cooper is part of School Dist. 21, which serves Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights.

"Our goal is to encourage kids to want to read and help them develop the skills they need to make reading an enjoyable experience," Mrs. Genrich said.

In order to stimulate a child's interest in reading, Mrs. Genrich believes it is first necessary to understand why he doesn't like to do it.

Often, she said, students dislike reading because they have not mastered the necessary skills. She heads a team of five language arts teachers who give students exhaustive tests each fall designed to spot reading problems. The team then plans an individual program suited to the needs of each child with his particular reading difficulty.

"We really believe in the clinical approach," Mrs. Genrich said. "You have to recognize the specific weaknesses a child has in reading before you can help him overcome his problem."

Children with similar reading difficulties meet together in small groups each day in a multi-use reading center. Each of the three teachers assigned to the center every period directs the activity of a group. The instruction might include reading a story on film, discussing a selection as a group or working on word-building.

EACH ACTIVITY and the material used is aimed at the interests of junior high students. The old predictable adventures of Dick and Jane and their friends have been replaced with selections by contemporary authors rewritten in some cases with easier vocabularies.

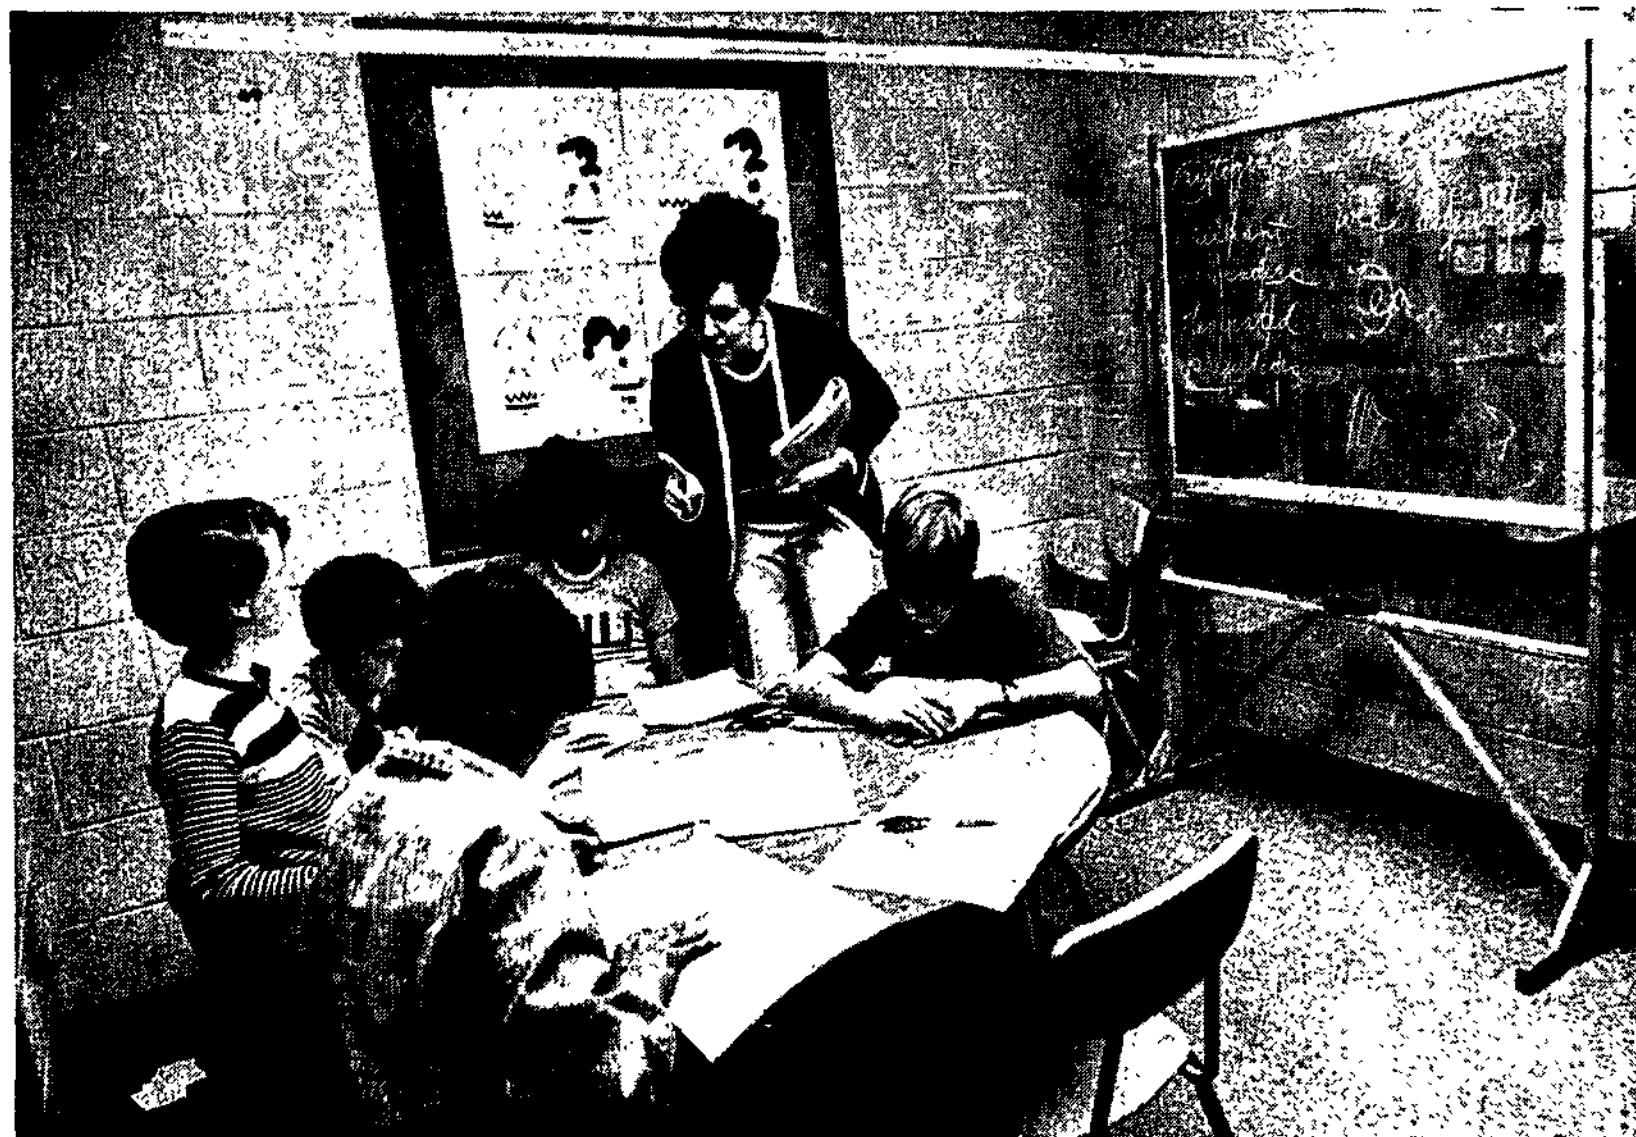

"I think publishers are beginning to realize they have to have material that is interesting to kids on their own age level, but is simple enough that they can understand it if their reading level isn't up to where it should be," Mrs. Genrich said.

Developing self-confidence is an important part of improving a student's reading ability, Mrs. Genrich said. A child who has reading problems often becomes very defensive because reading is a painful, frustrating experience.

"A student has to start with material he's comfortable reading," Mrs. Genrich said. "It doesn't really matter what grade level it is, the important thing is that he can read and understand it successfully. That gives him the courage to tackle something else."

and designs individual activities to correct the weaknesses.

AT THE URGING of Wendy Billington, one of the teachers on the reading team, social studies teachers at Cooper are now recognizing the need to meet the reading problems of students. The instructors are using textbooks written for pupils on several different levels of reading ability.

The ultimate goal of all the reading teachers is to persuade Dist. 21 to adopt graded textbooks for all subjects, Mrs. Genrich said. However, the expense of such a move is prohibitive right now.

The self-image of students in the reading program is not damaged by forcing them to compete for grades with other pupils who read better than they. Grades are given on an individual progress basis.

Mrs. Genrich said the small size of the reading groups allows the staff to effectively monitor that progress. Three teachers work with about 30 children divided into three or more groups.

MARSHA FREY, another teacher on the reading team, said there are other advantages to the small groups, too.

"When we work in the groups, there's no anxiety in the kids about participating in discussion," she said. "I hear from

BUFFALO GROVE WHEELING

Addolorata Villa

The Friends of Addolorata Villa in Wheeling will sponsor a special blessing service as well as an open house beginning at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The programs are part of the annual spring meeting at the villa. The special blessing will be of a plaque depicting the outside of the villa. The plaque will be hung in the lobby of the home for aged.

After the blessing a brunch will be served, followed by the annual business meeting. Entertainment will be provided by the Tumberiza Orchestra and visiting friends and relatives will be able to tour the villa and its new facilities.

Refreshments will be served and friends of the villa are invited to attend the day's events.

The Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club will have its final meeting of the year Thursday, May 10, at Spero Restaurant in Palatine.

Newly elected officers will be installed during a candlelight ceremony conducted by Mrs. Raymond Crouch, immediate past 7th Dist. Junior Director.

Officers to be installed at the meeting are: Mrs. Richard Guttman, president; Mrs. George Polkow, vice president; Mrs. Richard Sheldon, second vice president; Mrs. Robert McIntyre, recording secretary; Mrs. Earl Gobel, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Robert Stumpf, treasurer.

Two persons were in good condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital following their involvement in an auto accident Tuesday on Dundee Road near Lake Boulevard in Buffalo Grove.

The victims, James Hahnfeld, 25, of 2200 Quail Ln., in Rolling Meadows, and Linda Bjornson, 35, of 49 Wolf Rd., in Wheeling, both suffered lacerations and bruises in the accident. Mrs. Bjornson also injured her nose and knee, while Hahnfeld hurt his shoulder.

Mrs. Bjornson was charged with driving under the influence of intoxicating drugs, transporting an open liquor bottle in a motor vehicle and not carrying her driver's license, police said. She is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights Court June 5.

Police said the accident occurred after

Mrs. Bjornson, who was driving east on

Dundee Road at the location of the accident is undergoing repairs and has numerous potholes. The pavement was also wet at the time of the accident, according to police.

Police said both autos were badly damaged. Buffalo Grove firemen used crowbars to get Hahnfeld free from the wreckage.

The Prospective Heights Post Office is offering free coffee and doughnuts to customers this week in recognition of Postal Week.

The post office is also selling 10 new types of stamps to commemorate Postal Week, which started Sunday. The new stamps, sold throughout the nation, honor postal employees.

Students, principal clash on band trip

by WANDALYN RICE

Members of the Elk Grove High School student council are muster support to force the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) to allow the school's jazz band to go to a national contest in Mobile, Ala.

The results may be a court challenge to an IHSA rule that prevents students from missing school to take part in contests not sponsored by the IHSA.

Robert Haskell, principal of Elk Grove High, yesterday said he supports the IHSA rule which prevents the band and any other high school group from missing school to attend a contest.

William Busse, school student council member, said the council voted unanimously Tuesday to ask for a meeting with IHSA officials on the ruling by May 16. If the group does not get satisfaction by May 16, Busse said, "We will file for a court injunction against IHSA in the name of the parents of the jazz band members." Busse said the council would raise funds for the suit.

THE ELK GROVE jazz band has been invited to a national jazz band contest in Mobile June 5-6 because it won a regional contest in Crown Point, Ind. Under an IHSA rule, the band cannot participate in the contest because band members would have to miss school to take part.

Busse said he had called officials of the IHSA to ask for a meeting to discuss the rule and was told any request for a meeting would have to come from the school's principal.

IHSA, the organization that regulates interscholastic competition among most Illinois schools, is governed by a board made up of principals of member schools. IHSA-sponsored state contests sometimes require students to miss some school days.

Haskell said he would not request a meeting with the IHSA for the students because "I support the IHSA in this ruling." He said the rule was designed to keep students from missing too many days of school for outside activities and added the band does not have the money to make the trip even if it were approved.

"THE KIDS AREN'T thinking about money," he said. "We don't have 10 cents for this." He also said band director Doug Peterson is planning a European trip for the jazz band for the summer of 1974 and added, "I think that is much more educationally sound."

THE ELK GROVE High School jazz band went to Europe in 1971 when this picture was taken, but now is not going to a national contest in Alabama because of a ruling by the Illinois High School Association. Students at the school are protesting the rule.

The Wheeling High School band, which was runnerup in the regional Crown Point contest, had received permission to go to Mobile for the weekend of June 9, according to band director Jack Williamson.

However, Williamson said the travel distance to Mobile turned out to be too far for a weekend trip and sponsors of the contest said the band would have to attend for the full week in order to take part.

Young denies being 'bought' by campaign contributors

by GREG KINZEWESKI

Special to the Herald
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, says newspaper stories linking his congressional activities to campaign contributions from oil and chemical companies are unfair and misleading.

Young does not challenge the facts in the reports but he indignantly disagrees with the insinuations that the contributions influenced his later actions.

"Everything I've done in Congress has been consistent with positions I clearly outlined in my campaign. No one, during or after the election, has ever told me how to vote," said Young, who returned Monday from an official visit to the Mideast.

Although Young has only been in Congress since Jan. 4, he twice has been accused of acting in behalf of major contributors to his campaign.

EARLY THIS YEAR, the Chicago Sun-Times reported that Young, who received $300 from Union Oil employees, co-sponsored a measure to remove natural gas prices from government regulations.

Last week, syndicated columnist Jack Anderson took a day off from printing

Rep. Samuel H. Young

Watergate revelations and charged that Young was the "new errand boy" for "powerful chemical companies."

Anderson's column said Young tried to "emasculate" a bill designed to control toxic substances. The column noted that Young received campaign contributions of $10,000 from Daniel J. Terra, president of Lawyer Chemical Corp. of Northbrook, and $4,200 from Foster McGaw, past president of American Hospital Supply Corp. in Evanston.

"In both instances, I was opposing government overregulation, something I have always strongly opposed," Young said.

YOUNG, referring to the Anderson column, said the bill in question was aimed at "seven or eight major companies like DuPont and Dow Chemical, none of whom are in my district."

The suburban congressman argues that the contributions were made because the contributors agreed with his stance on issues during the campaign.

"My opponent (Abner Mikva) and I had very different attitudes toward business. He criticized tax laws as being full of loopholes; I defended them as having provisions to stimulate the economy," Young said.

"So it's logical I should get support from business — Republicans traditionally do. Why hasn't anyone raised a fuss about Mikva's finances and his record? Organized labor backed him heavily and his votes were very pro-labor. But no one seemed upset about that," Young continued.

Young said that the Union Oil, Terra and McGaw contributions should be viewed in the perspective of his campaign's total of $180,000 from approximately 1,600 contributors.

Young to Congress: disclose interests

U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, said he favored congressmen "disclosing in general" their economic interests, and outlined interests not required to be filed under House ethics rules.

Young's statement on economic interests was issued prior to the mention of his actions on the toxic-substances bill referred to by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

In the statement filed with the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, Young listed as sources of income common stock in the American Hospital Supply Corp. of Evanston and a capital gain from sale of 900 shares of common stock in Alberto-Culver Corp.

Listing of such sources of income is required if they represent ownership or capital gains of more than $5,000, or income of $1,000 or more.

In accordance with rules of the House, Young said, he also filed with the "Ethics Committee" specific information on the fair market value and income derived from these sources. Such information is not required to be made public, but is available to the House Committee on request.

OTHER ECONOMIC interests listed by Young, and not required to be listed with the committee, included:

- Ownership of an office building.
- Minority interest in a "small corporation engaged in the manufacture of foodstuffs."
- Partnership in certain real estate "improved by a small plant building."
- Trusteeship in a family trust owning 340 acres of Southern Illinois farmland.
- His wife's partnership in an interior decorating business.

Young said that on Jan. 1, he transferred all publicly held stock to a blind trust, over which he has no control regarding investment or management while serving as a member of Congress.

"I think that it is important to note," said Young, "that all members of Congress have various interests. We are citizen-legislators. We would not have been elected to Congress if we did not have some type of accomplishment.

"We all have interests in the subject matter of legislation that comes before Congress. For example, we are all taxpayers and, from that standpoint, we have an interest in taxes. Many of us are parents, and we have an interest in funds for education. Many of us have elderly parents and we have an interest in providing for their social security and for their health care and medical expenses."

YOUNG SAID that issues on which legislators are required to vote will inevitably lead to "situations in which a public official is clearly subject to criticism when he votes for legislation which would be of primary or substantial economic benefit" to him.

"Those situations are to be avoided or, if unavoidable, then the interests should be fully disclosed," he said.

"I intend to always put what I consider to be the best interests of my district ahead of any individual economic interest of my own," he said.

Parties unsure of procedure

What will happen in Missing case?

by LYNN ASINOF

Campaign managers of both Wheeling's political parties said yesterday they are unsure what will happen if newly elected Trustee Richard Missing does not take office.

Sheila Schultz, campaign manager of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP), said members of her party had not yet discussed the matter. She said there are presently no plans for the party should a special election be called.

"I think the procedure is very vague and we're interested in finding out what the procedure will be," she said. "The only reaction is one of wondering how it will be handled from here on in. It certainly has a lot of possibilities."

Michael Valenza, campaign chairman for the To Overall Progress Party (TOP), said he too was waiting to find out what procedure the village will follow if Missing does not take office.

He said he did not know if his party would meet to discuss choosing another candidate if a special election is called. "I couldn't even tell you that because technically our party is no more," he said. "I don't know what group would be formed or what. I imagine a lot of people could throw their hat in the ring."

AS AN OUTGOING trustee, Valenza said he is also waiting to hear if he will continue to sit on the village board until Missing either takes office or his seat is declared vacant.

Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said the law does not relieve outgoing officials of their duties until their successors take office. Both Valenza and Albert Lang would qualify to remain on the board as outgoing trustees.

Valenza said any decision about who will continue to sit on the board would be made by the village board. "I don't know," he said. "Theoretically Dick is filling my spot on the ticket. I'm just waiting to find out too."

The first official function of the new village board is the informal recount of ballots from last month's closely contested election. The recount will begin at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The new board will have to decide by that time if either Lang or Valenza will continue in office until Missing either takes his oath or has his seat declared vacant.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER found the heavily flooded Des Plaines River to be an ideal place to launch a canoe. The two paddled their canoe from Dam No. 1 near Wheeling to downtown Des Plaines where the swollen river recently covered Camp Ground Road and Forest Preserve land.

Agreement signed for golf course flood retention lake

Agreement was reached yesterday to construct a five-acre retention lake on the Arlington Golf Course, to help relieve flooding in Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

The lake, which will have a capacity for about 16 million gallons of water, will reduce the amount of water running into the White Pine Ditch and Buffalo Creek during a heavy rainstorm.

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the owner of the golf course, Daniel Taggart, signed the agreement following several meetings with village officials. Although the retention lake will be on private property, it will be maintained by the village, Larson said.

The $325,000 project will be financed with $130,000 from the Illinois Division of Waterways, $120,000 from the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) and $75,000 from village funds. Final approval still has to be given by the state and MSD before the project can be built, Larson said.

TIDE PROJECT will be considered by the village board at Monday night's meeting. Larson said the village hopes construction can begin by next fall.

At the present time, during a heavy rainstorm the White Pine Ditch leaves its banks and floods several backyards. Larson said although the retention lake will not eliminate all of the water in the ditch, it will probably prevent it from overflowing. "It will substantially cut down the amount of water in the White Pine Ditch," Larson said.

Larson added that water which is now free to run into the White Pine Ditch will be caught by the new storm sewers presently being installed on Dundee Road. The sewers will divert the water from the ditch into the retention lake.

Since the White Pine Ditch, which empties into Buffalo Creek will have less water, the amount of water in the creek will be reduced. This will provide flood relief for Buffalo Grove and Wheeling residents who live along the creek.

LARSON SAID that during a heavy rainstorm, the water will be held in the retention lake. After the storm is over, and the chances of flooding are reduced, the water will be released into Buffalo Creek east of Buffalo Grove. Since the water will be released from the lake under controlled conditions, Buffalo Creek will be kept at a lower level, Larson said.

The Wheeling Drainage Ditch which is an outgrowth of Buffalo Creek will also receive less water as a result of the retention lake.

Wheeling village employees have accepted an 8 per cent across-the-board salary increase offered by the village board at Monday night's wage and salary negotiations.

Members of the police department were the last to approve the 8 per cent increase. The police voted Tuesday night to accept the offer, which includes a 4.7 per cent cost of living increase and a 3.3 per cent across the board hike.

The employees in all other departments accepted the board's offer at Monday night's negotiations. The salary increase was the last item to be negotiated during this year's bargaining sessions.

The negotiations, however, will not be officially closed until Village Mgr. George Passolt receives confirmation from the wage and salary committee that the police have accepted the 8 per cent offer.

Passolt said yesterday he had not received any word from August Lockefeer, chairman of the employee wage and salary committee. Lockefeer, in turn, said he had not received any notification from the police department on the offer.

THE COMMITTEE chairman said he had called the police department yesterday. "They said they had nothing for me," Lockefeer said.

In accepting the 8 per cent increase, the employees lost the previously agreed-to quarterly adjustment of the cost-of-living increase.

Village employs accept pay increase of 8 per cent

Students in High School Dist. 214 will have the option of taking some of their classes at night starting in September.

The Dist. 214 board approved a plan in which regular high school students will be gradually encouraged to start taking some of their classes in the evening.

Asst. Supt. Rod McLennan told the board Monday he expects few students to take advantage of the option next year, but added that the number will probably increase as time goes on.

"I would expect that maybe by the third year, we would have 10 per cent of our students going to classes at night," McLennan said.

HIGH SCHOOL students would be integrated into some of the regular adult classes, McLennan said, but in some areas we would expect adults and high school students to be in separate classes.

The board has been unhappy with the installation of the floor since Rolling Meadows opened in 1971. Asst. Supt. Robert Weber said, "We will never accept that as a good floor," but added the arrangement with the contractor "is the best we can get short of going to court."

District officials have complained about the fact that the floor has too many wide cracks between boards. The insurance being provided by the contractor, Weber said, will pay any claims if anyone is injured because of the floor, but will not require the contractor to replace the floor for the school district.

to school with older people and vice versa, so we'll have to see how it works out."

The board also approved an increase in tuition for the regular adult classes of $1 for most classes and $2 for those with the highest tuition. McLennan said the extra revenue from the tuition increase will be used to hire supervisors to maintain order in the buildings in the evening.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board voted four to two to accept the gym floor at Rolling Meadows High School provided the contractor refinishes the floor and provides a certificate of insurance protecting the district from liability for seven years.

Kidnap, robbery suspect goes to grand jury

An Arlington Heights man charged with the armed robbery of a Des Plaines grocery store and the subsequent kidnapping of a 16-year-old store clerk last month has been bound over to a grand jury.

Roy Stover, 24, of 702 Haven St., Arlington Heights, waived his right to a preliminary hearing Tuesday in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court before Judge George Zimmerman; the case will go before a grand jury in Chicago criminal court.

Assistant State's Atty. Steve Kramer said the case will probably come up within the next few weeks because Stover is being held in custody, in Cook County jail.

STOVER was arrested by Cook County Sheriff's police outside his home March 21 after he allegedly robbed a Convenient Food Mart, 1920 Mannheim Rd., of $85 cash and took the girl hostage at gunpoint.

The girl was released about a half hour after the robbery in Oak Park where she alerted police.

The state's attorney's office filed charges of sexual assault against Stover at a preliminary hearing the day after his arrest.

Additional charges also were brought against Stover in connection with armed holdups in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

Stover could receive a minimum prison sentence of four years on each of the robbery charges if he is convicted, Kramer said.

The preliminary draft of the proposed Wheeling Park District master plan will be discussed tonight by the park board.

The discussion, which is open to the public, is set for 7 p.m., just prior to the regularly scheduled meeting which will begin at 8 p.m.

The land use guide is to be presented by a representative of McFadzean and Everly, Ltd., park and recreation planners.

The firm has also been hired by the park district to direct the development of projects approved in last December's referendum.

The proposed plan examines current and anticipated local park and recreation needs and appraises existing park and recreation areas and facilities. It also includes a guide for future expansion of the park district.

McFADZEAN AND Everly developed a similar master plan for the Buffalo Grove Park District in 1971.

In other business, the winners in the recent park district election, incumbent Pres. Lorraine Lark and Hugh Wilson will be sworn in for six-year terms.

The board is also scheduled to discuss the proposed 1973-74 budget which is currently being compiled. Park officials are waiting for figures on the current assessed valuation of park district property to complete the spending guide.

Also on the agenda for consideration by the commissioners is the suggested schedule of pool fees for this summer and the brochure which outlines summer activities to be offered.

Holy Family fire caused by TV

Fire caused at least $1,200 in smoke damage at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Tuesday evening when a television set apparently short-circuited and burst into flames.

No one was injured in the fire, but Mrs. Patricia Brady, the patient occupying the second floor room, along with two other patients in adjoining rooms had to be evacuated.

Firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze before it was able to spread outside the room.

Advance tickets for 'Future' fair available June 1

Advance ticket sales for the Future of America Fair at Arlington Park, Aug. 24 through Sept. 3, will be available through June 1.

Earl Johnson, the chamber's executive director, said his office is accepting written ticket orders now, but that tickets will not actually be available until June 1.

The chamber of commerce is promoting advance ticket sales for the fair in a 100-mile radius of Arlington Park. A line-up of "big name" entertainers has been signed for the 11-day fair which promoters hope will draw half a million people to the race track grounds.

Advance tickets are priced at $2.25 for adults, a 75-cent savings over the gate admission price. Tickets for children aged 6 to 12 are $1, and children under 6 will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

Johnson said advance ticket orders should include a check or money order and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Orders should be addressed to the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 6, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Tickets can also be picked up after June 1 at the chamber office, 103 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Interested persons may call the chamber of commerce at 253-1703 for more information.

Free race track passes are illegal, Scott contends

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Attorney General William J. Scott today issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to issue free race track passes.

Such passes have long been given gratis to politicians, government officials and others.

Scott's opinion, in effect, outlaws the free pass practice. The opinion was sought by Anthony Scarlano, chairman of the racing board.

Scott cited extensive case law, including an Illinois Supreme Court ruling, in reaching his conclusion.

"Although the Illinois Racing Board possesses extensive control over the manner in which races are conducted," Scott said, "it lacks specific statutory authorization to issue free passes."

"While board members or their representatives are entitled to free access to racetracks to insure compliance with the rules and regulations of the board," Scott said, "this cannot be construed as a grant of authority to issue free passes. "Since the Illinois Racing Board, as an administrative body, has only the authority expressly conferred upon it by the statute creating it, it is my opinion that the Illinois Racing Board is without authority to issue free passes to the various tracks located in Illinois."

State freeway system cuts announced

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker yesterday announced he is scrapping vast segments of the proposed supplemental freeway system including roads down the eastern and western borders of the state.

Walker also announced that some roads left in the program will be downgraded from interstate standards either to lesser four-lane status or to two-lane roads.

Segments left in the Walker plan, either as freeways, improvements of existing roads or as two-lane construction, included: parts of the East-West Freeway from Quincy to Springfield; small segments of a Southern Illinois expressway; the extension of the East-West Toll Road to the Quad Cities; and part of the U.S. Rte. 51 corridor from Rockford to Bloomington.

THAT, WALKER said, will "use up all the available highway bond funds" and is all the state can afford. He said the plan will cost $48 million, spread over the next five years. Part of the total will come from the road fund, the governor said.

The governor said only about $390 million is left of the $600 million earmarked in the 1971 transportation bond issue. He said $150 million of the original amount is committed to non-freeway work in Chicago and Cook County as a result of a clandestine agreement between former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Segments approved today include:

• Rockford to Bloomington. The Rockford to LaSalle portion will be four-lane and will run along the U.S. Rte. 51 corridor. From LaSalle to Bloomington, U.S. Rte. 51 will be improved but left as a two-lane road.

• Carlyle to East St. Louis. A four-lane highway will be built on a new corridor, with land to be acquired later to bring the road up to freeway standards.

• Quad Cities to East-West Tollway. Two lanes of an ultimate four-lane road will be built. Land will be acquired for later upgrading.

MAJOR PORTIONS of the original plan, proposed by Ogilvie, were left out of Walker's proposal. They include a north-south highway running the length of the state's eastern border; a freeway running north-south from the Quad Cities to the St. Louis area near the Mississippi River; major portions of the Southern Illinois freeway from St. Louis through Carbondale and to the Indiana border; and the portion of the U.S. Rte. 51 corridor running from Bloomington south to Interstate 57.

To build the whole program, Walker said, would cost $5 billion.

Spring orchesis at Sacred Heart

"Reflections of Life," Sacred Heart of Mary High School's fifth annual spring orchesis show, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the school auditorium, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Tickets will be sold at the door at $1 for adults and 50 cents for grade-school children.

50-member Orchesis Club created their own costumes and choreographed the 17 dance numbers, under the direction of Joyce Kochalka.

Tickets will be sold at the door at $1 for adults and 50 cents for grade-school children.

Arlington Heights tops listList revenue-sharing figures for March Arlington Heights led 11 Northwest suburban communities in the amount of state revenue-sharing funds received for March, according to figures released recently by Gov. Dan Walker.

More than $206,406 was distributed to the 11 communities in March as part of the $7,047,684 distributed to all Illinois counties and municipalities.

The income tax law requires distribution, to counties and municipalities, of one-twelfth the net proceeds of the income on a monthly basis.

The distribution is made on a per capita basis to municipalities. Counties receive their shares on the basis of county population in unincorporated areas. The money is distributed by the state Department of Local Government Affairs.

The amounts distributed in March for:

- Arlington Heights: $43,884.27
- Des Plaines: $38,296.91

- Mount Prospect: $28,680.39
- Hoffman Estates: $18,080.28
- Palatine: $16,519.06
- Schaumburg: $15,951.51
- Elk Grove Village: $14,498.19
- Rolling Meadows: $12,181.32
- Buffalo Grove: $9,926.02
- Wheeling: $9,350.96
- Inverness: $1,061.53

The government of Cook County, with a population in unincorporated areas less than 9,000 more than that of Arlington Heights, received $49,540.70.

Since the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, $65,349,750 has been distributed to local governments, Walker said. The total paid during the last fiscal year was $84,345,277.

Quirks in the news

Everything's up to date in Carson City... those ogled gals fight back

by JIM HARVEY

TALE OF MALE: Women's libbers in a Carson City, Nev., state building believe they found a way to stop male ogling. They organized a competition to decide "on the most patable fanny" among the building's male workers. One gal told the Capital Women's Political Caucus: "It was amazing the reaction we got. The men were so embarrassed they wouldn't come out into the halls... and if they did venture out, they walked sideways so we couldn't see them from behind."

PARK AT THE "CUDDLE NOOK": Mrs. Betty Wells of Tarrant Gunville, England says the village council should set up "cuddlenooks." She said she thought of the idea after seeing a couple making love in a public park. "I know the problems lovers have when they are courting," she said, "but cuddlenooks would keep them away from the public eye."

SHE'S PET QUEEN: Kathleen Shanks, 24, who lost out in about 100 beauty contests, finally won. She now holds the title of British pet queen. She immediately announced her withdrawal from further contests saying: "I'm getting married soon and I'm fed up with watching my figure and slimming... I'd rather be happy and cuddly."

REAL WATER CLOSET: The Darwin (Australia) city council has defeated a move to use one wall of a new public toilet to display works of art. The council decided instead to paint the wall in various colors and install a water trickling system over it. Mayor Harold Breman said the result would be cool and pleasing.

COMPUTER FOR SALE, CHEAP! A computer in Leicester, England goofed, and now seems to be trying to make good... with a vengeance. Seven weeks ago, Mrs. Sylvia Logan ordered two dresses and a pair of carpet shears from a mail order firm. The computer made a mistake and sent her three dresses and a carpet shampooer. Mrs. Logan returned the items and received the correct order. Since then, the computer has been showering her with gifts. First came a dozen earthenware bowls, then a set of cutlery, a power lawnmower, garden shears, sheets and a pair of men's shoes. "If the company wants them back, they can come and fetch them," said Mrs. Logan's husband, David.

"OLD WIVES IN' LONDON": In the county of Northampton, a doctor reported some of his patients think the way to cure an earache is to stuff chopped onions in the patient's ear. For depression, he said some residents eat fresh dandelions. To cure chilblain, he said, many soak their feet for 30 minutes in a lavatory. Dr. C. P. Elliott-Binns, in a recent article, said he found 320 such folk remedies used by some of his 1,000 patients. One cure he said that was likely to die, was putting raw meat on warts. Meat prices, he said, are too high.

NO BED OF ROSES: The village of Wormingford, England has decided to stay out of the best-kept village contest in Essex county. Officials blamed the decision on the fact that many residents have reacted to rising food prices by turning their rose gardens into vegetable patches.

SEX BAD FOR MOTHS: Federal scientists have decided to try sex traps in their efforts to wipe out the codling moth. The experts say they will set up traps with a sticky substance known as "sestar" in an experimental "honeymoon" apple orchard. Hopefully, the scientists said, the destructive moths will "home in" on the substance and become stuck.

State college budget gets OK

by United Press International
Acting at the request of Gov. Daniel Walker, the Illinois Board of Higher Education recently approved a $601 million budget, but warned there would be "adverse effects" if the state's colleges and universities have to operate on that amount next year.

University of Illinois President John Corbally called the revised budget "preposterous."

The board approved the $601 million budget, drawn up by its staff last month, because Walker, in his March 7th budget message, said that was the top amount available for the schools next year.

He asked the board, which had earlier recommended a $647 million operating budget, to approve a new one within the spending limits he proposed.

ON TUESDAY, the board reaffirmed its support of the original $647 million budget, but also gave reluctant approval to the alternate budget.

"I think it is imperative that the board take a definitive position in response to the governor's request," Board Chairman Donald M. Prince said. "To do so is not a departure from the original budget recommendations which we firmly believe reflect the needs of Illinois higher education for fiscal 1974."

The board voted to send the revised budget to Walker "accompanied by a strong statement of the concomitant adverse effects" it would have. Board members also asked Prince to set up a meeting with Walker so they can detail those effects.

Corbally, in a speech before the vote, suggested board members should chuck the revised budget and advise Walker instead that his proposal would mean a "moratorium on growth and expansion" in education next year.

We support second boycott

Even though the April 1-8 meat boycott had little lasting effect at meat counters across the United States, there's yet another opportunity — which we support — to work to cut meat prices.

It was announced last week by a spokeswoman from a group calling itself the Women's War on Prices that this week would attempt to be a repeat of the April 1-8 boycott, which drove prices down temporarily in some areas.

We endorsed the first boycott as an expression of public outcry against meat prices which seem to have gone wildly out of control during the past few months. We still believe that a sustained boycott will have the effect of possibly stabilizing existing prices.

However, as developments during the past few weeks have indicated, the effect will be sharply lessened this time around.

Widespread flooding across the Midwest has had a tragic effect on farm production. Farmers, already hampered by last fall's excessive rainfall, now face floods as they work desperately to plant crops.

Fish everyday

It has been more than six years since the Catholic Bishops of the United States relaxed the church's ban on eating meat on Fridays. Predictions about the imminent demise of the fishing industry have proved to have been somewhat exaggerated.

Today, Americans are eating more fish than before the Friday rule was lifted (and they were also long before soaring meat prices entered the picture), so much so that the U.S. fishing fleet is unable to meet the demand. In fact, a record 64.1 per cent of the fish and shellfish consumed in the country last year was accounted for by imports.

In 1967, the first full year follow-

Married 'success'

The married man still has the best chance of success in business and industry, despite a liberalization of personnel policies, says Industry Week — especially if he's over 30 and the job does not involve a lot of traveling.

The magazine for managers reports that a study of 6,000 men aged 45 to 54, by Dr. John Tropman of the University of Michigan's School of Social Work, found that the married man's prospects for upward job mobility are three times greater than those of divorced, separated or widowed men.

Not the least of the things the married man has going for him is the conscious or unconscious bias of some companies, who still consider a husband and wife a "package." A particular advantage of the married man over the single man is the former's ability to handle informal contacts like home entertaining.

It's almost the opposite with women in business.

While the Tropman study found that marriage in itself did not affect women's careers, unless they had small children, many companies see the single woman as more promotable than the married woman because there is no husband to be considered in moving the single woman to a new loca-

The effect of this will be to reduce the production of all farm crops, thus resulting in an increase in the cost of grain to feed cattle, hogs and sheep — and threatening to bring about another round of meat price hikes.

Only a sustained boycott — and an awareness that meat must be conserved — have any effect. The spirit of renewing the boycott is proper, if it can succeed in rallying most of the people of the United States behind it.

However, the spokeswoman for the boycott, Mrs. Ethel Rosen, did little to advance the cause by making a ridiculous statement which can only hurt the boycott:

"I don't see why they didn't airlift those cattle out of the West when these storms hit."

Causes such as the meat boycott have long been hampered by the kind of ridiculous reasoning which Mrs. Rosen offers. The success of the first boycott was reflected by the wide support from middle-class Americans. Such support will not be aided in the future with the kind of reasoning Mrs. Rosen has offered to the cause.

I would like to take issue with the objective analysis of recent court proceedings as expressed by your reader, Larry Ostling, in his well-written unbiased letter carried in your April 16 edition. My purpose in responding to his letter is that it infers that the reporting of Mr. Von Malder is less than objective.

The issue of the legality of the ballot was placed before the court on two separate occasions. Mr. Ostling reported the facts as he objectively heard them relative to the second hearing. I should like to cover the facts of the first hearing, as I heard them. Simply put, Judge Comerford stated that in his view the ballot was not clear and could be and should be improved. He invited the parties to sit down and voluntarily improve the ballot and they did so. He also indicated that if the election was two weeks away he would stretch the statute and not disturb the ballot. Judge Comerford did not rule on the legality of the ballot, but one could objectively argue that if a ballot would be in conformity with statutory requirements two weeks before an election (even by stretching statute) it would meet the legal requirements of the statute two months or two years before an election.

Mr. Ostling's objective analysis of the preliminary injunction matter is also well written. Again, however, it infers, objectively, that Mr. Von Malder has been less than objective in his reporting. When he has had nothing better to report on than to occasionally quote some of my comments, I have felt, from time to time, he could at least improve my grammar, but he reports well, accurately and objectively. On the other hand, Mr. Ostling's letter, which purports to be objective, in my objective analysis, does not seem to be truly objective, since it summarizes only what the writer has hand picked. It sets forth facts and opinion. Better had Mr. Ostling run an ad stating his opinion. We would then know that such views were subjective, not objective. I, of course, am not objective. I voted for Bob Teichert. Who did you objectively vote for, Larry?

Comerford is a man well recognized by the bar as one of the most skilled in our judicial system. The fact that he did not even hear evidence on the matter speaks for itself.

I have observed four years of matters that have come before the Village Board and subsequently read news reports of such matters as written by Mr. Von Malder. When he has had nothing better to report on than to occasionally quote some of my comments, I have felt, from time to time, he could at least improve my grammar, but he reports well, accurately and objectively. On the other hand, Mr. Ostling's letter, which purports to be objective, in my objective analysis, does not seem to be truly objective, since it summarizes only what the writer has hand picked. It sets forth facts and opinion. Better had Mr. Ostling run an ad stating his opinion. We would then know that such views were subjective, not objective. I, of course, am not objective. I voted for Bob Teichert. Who did you objectively vote for, Larry?

One abortion view

The subject of abortion is one which I am sure will be argued from now until the end of time, but I fail to see the point of letters such as the one written by John Battell, April 5 Fence Post.

It is oh so easy to say a woman who doesn't want a baby just should not get pregnant and should not "murder a child so she can continue to have her fun." It takes two, sir, to make a fetus; woman's lib hasn't gone that far. It is very gentlemanly of you to put the blame solely on a woman for conception. Mr. Battell, I believe you would still approve of branding scarlet "A's" and burning witches.

Religious fanatics who go around smugly quoting the Bible at their self-righteous convenience usually miss the entire point of being any kind of a Good Samaritan. It must be nice to know you are perfect, and look down on the world from your lofty pedestal voicing exactly what the Good Lord whispers in your ear. Your idea of speaking for everyone, with God behind you, fails to include people who do not share your thinking. You are even able to interpret the Bible properly. "Thou shall not kill." "Thou shall not kill a living thing." Interpret it properly that way. Mr. Battell, I take it you are a vegetarian.

God's will. Now can anyone say that this is not God's plan; a world including all the evil may be part of a plan of which we will never see the end. God realizes our faults, Mr. Battell, you cannot find room for human error.

It is so easy to keep comparing abortions with murders — picturing a small infant. This is not the comparison. And to include the thought we were all fetuses — right, I must be a 345 month old one, but I'm not a fetus. I live outside the womb, independently. But what about all the small children, alive now, abandoned, alone, unadopted with no one to care. Let's do something for these children now, and when there are no children alone — then provide for unwanted children-to-be. To make a far-out comparison, abortion is somewhat like prohibition. When liquor was illegal, people still drank, wood alcohol, whatever, and died. Abortion has always been performed; and women, sometimes girls, die at the hands of "quacks" preying on these desperate people. Legalized abortion does not mean the doctors will be yanking pregnant women off the streets to abort them, but if the woman so desires, her pregnancy can be terminated under sterile, antiseptic conditions without danger.

A humble "thank you" to the women who share my views, though I find it very difficult to write exactly what I feel. I do not take the issue of abortion lightly. I have three children of my (our) own, and thank God for each one; especially the one child who needs a little more because he was given an extra burden. I would not want him any different. Whatever heartache or tears I have for my own, I feel also for the children with no one to cry for them. However, I do not intend to speak for any of my children, hoping they will grow independently enough to speak for themselves; in country where it is possible to live by one's own beliefs within the laws of a free society. The Bible is one book I prefer to interpret for myself, I resent freelance quilters. For every argument against abortion, or any issue for that matter, be openminded enough to realize there is another side just as valid.

P.S. The series of articles on divorce printed in the Herald were great! Congratulations.

Thank you

To all of you great, tremendous people, how can we ever express in words the great joy you have given us with your warm expressions of sympathy over the death of our son, Andy. During the past week we have had ever so many phone calls; we've had wonderful gifts of food from people we don't even know; we've had letters, cards, visitors, so many expressions of love and concern that we truly feel most humble and very grateful.

We do not know why God chose to take Andy home to Heaven, but we accept His will and trust Him to know what was best for Andy and for us. God's ways are not always our ways; His thoughts are not always our thoughts, but His ways, His thoughts are always infinitely better.

We thank all you dear people so much for your love.

Richard Nixon's 'bottom line'

A Wall Street friend of Richard Milhouse Nixon advised him recently to remain silent on the Watergate disaster until he saw "the bottom line" — a stock market term for the low point of a sinking stock.

The best that can be hoped at this point is that Nixon's agonized monologue on national television on Monday night represents the bottom line of the United States presidency in the modern era.

If indeed Mr. Nixon has reached conclusions at which he seemed to be fainting in his proclamation, the office he holds for the benefit of the people of this nation may be started back to the heights where it should be sustained.

It is difficult to imagine that it can be restored to its proper glory in the 1,359 days remaining in the administration of the 37th President. But it can be hoped that a measure of dignity can be recovered, if Richard Milhouse Nixon has at long last arrived at some basic conclusions:

—That the office of the Presidency is indeed a sacred trust, not the personal domain of the man who holds it.

—That the highest qualification for men elevated by the President to positions of power is not dogged political loyalty to a man, but devotion to service to the nation.

—That those who dissent from presidential decisions, whether within the administration or in the opposing party, are not to be vilified, but respected.

—That the President sets the moral tone of his administration, and that tone will inevitably be reflected in those who surround him.

—That the demand of the people to know of the actions of the President and those to whom he entrusts authority is an inalienable right, not an affront to the Presidency.

Those are some of the hopes for the recovery of the dignity of Richard Milhouse Nixon and the Presidency.

And yet even in his humbling, even humiliating, address to the nation there were ominous signs that even now Richard Milhouse Nixon has not grasped the awesomeness of his responsibility.

He boasted, for instance, that he would not take the "cowardly" action of blaming those "to whom I delegated the responsibility . . ." It is discrediting to realize that the President of the U.S. does not understand the chief executive can delegate only authority, never responsibility. The faults of those whom he entrusts with authority must be answered for by him.

He anticipated that some will say "that Watergate demonstrates the bankruptcy of the American political system," and added startlingly, "I believe just the opposite is true." How this cheap political espionage could demonstrate the richness of the American political system confounds the mind. That it demonstrated the moral bankruptcy of some who worked within the American system surely comes closer to the mark.

And finally, Richard Milhouse Nixon shared another dream with the nation — his goals for his second term as the leader of that nation.

Among these goals, he listed two which, in light of the topic of his speech, were nothing less than jarring:

—To establish a climate of decency and civility, in which each person respects the feelings and the dignity and the God-given rights of his neighbor.

—To make this a land in which each person can dare to dream — not in fear, but in hope — proud of his community, proud of his country, proud of what America has meant to himself and to the world."

The disturbing thing that won't go away is that in 1,351 days in the highest office in the land, Richard Milhouse Nixon has been unable to instill that sense of decency and respect for others in those closest to him.

NEW YORK — The accounting profession, rocked by the Equity Funding scandal, is preparing another landmark scandal to stop corporate managements from covering up big mistakes.

The only relationship between the bankruptcy of the Los Angeles insurance and mutual fund empire and the upcoming step by the Accounting Principles Board (APB) is public disenchantment over accounting standards.

The public cannot comprehend how such prominent auditing firms as Seldman & Seldman of Beverly Hills and Haskins & Sells of New York could have certified Equity Funding's financial statements year after year without discovering that collateral for $30 million in company loans was missing, that $60 million to $100 million in counterfeit securities possibly were being counted as assets and that two-thirds of its outstanding life insurance policies appeared to be phony.

THE SECURITIES and Exchange Commission and the insurance authorities of a number of states are finding this equally hard to understand.

The public also wonders how H. J. Heinz & Co., National Cash Register Co. and other big firms recently produced reports of good earnings and prospects, at the same time reporting write-downs because of mistakes of $25 million and $30 million, respectively.

Persons with considerable knowledge of accounting may analyze these reports — duly certified by reputable auditing firms — and determine whether the favorable picture painted by management was justifiable.

Philip DeIlesse, chairman of the APB, said a new standard definition of an "extraordinary charge" that can justify a write-off against a company's business may be adopted by early summer.

IT IS NOT just Joe and Susie Doskes who find confusion in this mixture of public relations and accounting better earnings and big write-offs. The Securities and Exchange Commission has complained about such practices.

To persons familiar with accounting, the failure of Seldman & Seldman and Haskins & Sells to uncover the Equity Funding story is not so astonishing. Actually, unless it is specifically engaged to do so, an auditing firm is not obliged to go beyond the records furnished by its clients.

Thus, it is easy for a management willing to engage in forgery and other frauds to deceive an accounting firm. The use of the electronic computer makes it even easier.

Since the scandal broke, the regulatory agencies have employed another large accounting firm, Touche Ross & Co., to make an audit in depth of Equity Funding's affairs. A Touche Ross employee even went out in the pastures and counted steers and heifers on a Colorado cattle breeding farm Equity Funding was operating as a tax shelter.

Conferences set on unemployment compensation

Two day-long conferences sponsored by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce will focus on ways in which employers can better administer their unemployment compensation programs, reduce costs of those programs and more efficiently handle claims.

Downstate employers convene May 8 at Millikin University, Decatur, and Chicago area employers meet May 16 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago.

Speakers include Donald Cryer, district manager, Gates, McDonald and Company, Oak Brook; Charles McKim, manager, payroll tax division, Swift and Co., Chicago; Herbert Gardner, assistant director, Illinois Hospital Association, Chicago; Paul Sommerer, corporate payroll and compensation tax manager, Montgomery Ward and Co. Inc., Chicago; Carl Wagner, assistant secretary, Rockwell Barnes Co., Elkhorn Village; John P. Quirk, manager, midwest region payroll taxes Sears, Roebuck and Co., Skokie, and chairman of the ISCC's Unemployment Compensation Committee; and members of the Governor's Advisory Board on Unemployment Compensation.

Registration information is available from the Labor Relations Department, Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago 60606.

Is America ready for a Soviet car?

by RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — The ideal background sounds for the exhibit of the Soviet-made Lada passenger car at the 17th annual international auto show here would have been...

A furious whirrrrrring, the sound of the late Sen. Joe McCarthy spinning frantically in his grave.

A delicate drip-drip — dripping, the sound of the last vestiges of Cold War ice melting.

An anxious titternabulation, the sound of all those Communist cash registers getting set to collect all that capitalist profit.

But instead, there was only the sound of the same sort of gently milling auto show crowd that surrounded the exhibits of Toyota, Austin, Mercedes, Fiat and Peugeot, other products of erstwhile enemies and present friends.

The curious leafed idly through piles of literature, filled in blanks for a contest to name the Lada's utility vehicle counterpart ("win a two-week trip to Moscow," a sign said) and talked to the salesmen, who were not Soviet citizens but representatives of the Satra Corporation, a trading company run by Americans.

EVERYBODY REPT a decadent eye or two on the blonde model wearing a bikini, fur coat, boots and about three pounds of false eyelashes. (Her accent indicated that she may well have been from Georgia, but the Georgie that produced Ty Cobb, not the one that produced Joseph Stalin.)

It is the new era of peaceful coexistence, in which the Russians are appar-same loosening of trade restrictions that is sending Pepsi Cola to the Soviet Union is what may bring the Lada here.

"May" for a lot of reasons.

For one thing, the trade agreement signed in the wake of President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union last year contained a catch: the Soviets agreed to pay back $722 million in World War II debts but on condition that the United States grant "most favored nation" tariff status to the U.S.S.R. If Congress does not grant the status to the Soviets, higher import duties would make it impossible for the Lada to compete against imports from such "favored" countries as Japan and Italy.

SATRA CORP., which is importing the car to America as the Soviets' agent, also is treading very gingerly. Its plans call for placing the car on the U.S. market in 1975 but it does not yet have any dealers lined up to sell it. And Satra is still conducting market studies to make sure the American public is ready to buy a Soviet product.

Yuri Chumakov, vice-president of Avtoexport, which sells Soviet-made cars overseas, introduced the Lada here with a long speech. It included an extensive plug for the Moscow subway and an exhaustive description of the Soviet auto industry, which turned out 1,300,000 cars last year, (compared to more than nine million produced in the United States).

The speech sounded like an especially dreary moment on Radio Moscow ("The most part of 'Lada' cars is delivered to the socialist countries," etc.) but Chumakov said he was pleased with the reception it got and did not anticipate any serious problems for the Lada due to leftover Cold War hostility.

"THERE MAY BE an occasional outburst but only by an individual," Chumakov said. "We don't expect any real problems. We have been selling cars in Britain since 1968 — they had a Cold War there, too — and we haven't encountered any opposition."

If and when the Lada makes its appearance in this country, it should cost about $2,500, although a Soviet citizen has to pay about $7,500 and be willing to wait at least a year to get the same car.

The Lada is a modified version of the Fiat 124, built by a Fiat-licensed plant in Togliatti, a Soviet city named after an Italian communist leader. The Avtoexport and Satra officials insist that the modifications are "improvements" and will make a lot of American comrades for the Lada.

Agor Chalekian, president of the Satra Trading Corporation says, "There are some people in the United States who still think a Russian is just an animal, of course. But we had worse relations with the Chinese and now all of a sudden you see people wearing shirts made in Peking."

Dividend News

Richardson Co.

The Richardson Co. reported first quarter net earnings of $827,000, or 36 cents a common share, an increase of 11 per cent after provision for preferred dividends, compared with $742,000, or 31 cents a common share in 1972. Net sales totaled $29,511,000, up slightly over last year's first quarter sales of $29,200,000. The increase in sales more than offsets the $2,600,000 reduction in sales resulting from the divestiture of Insurok, Clark, Dietz and Associates, and Richardson Chemical Cleaning Service.

During the first quarter, Richardson made a major expansion of facilities for the manufacture of polystyrene molding and extrusion resins through the purchase of an existing plant located near Houston, Tex. The company's executive offices are located in Des Plaines.

Zenith Radio Corp.

The board of directors of Zenith Radio Corp. voted to increase Zenith's quarterly dividend to 38 cents a share, announced Joseph S. Wright, board chairman. This is an increase of 3 cents per share over the 35 cents a share paid previously. The dividend will be payable on June 30 to stockholders of record as of June 8.

Harvester works to meet demand

PARIS (UPI) — The worldwide demand for farming and construction equipment of International Harvester Co. has increased so fast the company's Chicago-based factories are hard pressed to keep pace with orders, according to Brooks McCormick, president and chairman of the board.

McCormick told newsmen yesterday that because of the fast growth of demand, the firm is expanding output in France and West Germany, and possibly other European countries.

He repeated his remarks made in London early this week that the company is unhappy with the frequent disruptions of its operations in Britain by strikes.

McCormick said the firm would report in two weeks its six-month sales and earnings which he expects to be better than last year's. But he said it was his company's policy not to quote firm estimates on dividends. The 1972 dividend was $3.70 per share.

McCormick said the 100,000-employee company's managing board plans to hold its board meeting next year in Paris, and gradually incorporate in its ranks representatives of its foreign subsidiaries to emphasize its international character.

The environment

by LEA TONKIN

THEIR HANDS are tied, despite the widening shortages of gasoline and other fuels, say the nation's larger oil companies. Blame it on the environmental disaster lobbies and bureaucratic red tape involved in the development of new sources of supply.

It's part of an all-out attack on the environmental groups who've succeeded in holding up the construction of the Alaska pipeline and new oil refineries in the U.S. "Certainly one of the major reasons refineries are not being built in the U.S. is that it's so difficult to locate refinery sites because of environmental objections," says William C. Douce, executive vice president of Phillips Petroleum.

Skimpy profits from the construction of new refineries are another big headache for the oil industry, however. According to Theodore Eck, economist for the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the price environment is the major hangup in shelling out some $200 million for a new refinery. Oil companies earn only an average 4 per cent return for their investors in new capacity, he says.

Saddling environmentalists with the blame for fuel shortages, then, is a convenient means of shifting emphasis away from the oil companies' push for greater profitability. Look for the phasing out of independents, a continued move to higher gasoline price levels, urgent pleas for rational energy planning through the construction of the Alaska pipeline and more tax breaks for major oil firms.

POLITICS of pollution control make it rough going for the state's environmental watchdog, the Environmental Protection Agency. The Senate rejection of Governor Walker's choice for top position in the EPA, Mrs. Mary Lee Leahy, is tied to the failure of Chicago's cleanup efforts, says the governor.

He says the federal EPA issued a report late in March that cited the City of Chicago for failures in enforcement, planning and records keeping.

The City of Chicago is shy of the attention Mrs. Leahy would have focused on these enforcement problems, says Walker. H. Wallace Poston, Chicago's director of the Department of Environmental Control, met with Mrs. Leahy to discuss these problems the week before the Senate vote. The failure by Walker to appoint Milton Pikarsky to head the CTA board, and Mrs. Leahy's representation of dedicated Democrats are also cited in the unfavorable vote.

THE LAKE BILLS of rights is essential to the preservation of lake and shoreline areas, according to the Independent Voters of Illinois. The IVI is among the groups testifying this week in support of the bill, sponsored by Rep. Robert Mann, D-Chicago. The Lake Michigan Federation, the League of Women Voters of Illinois, the Sierra Club and others support the bill.

THEY WEREN'T supposed to like it here, but that doesn't stop a number of giant South American parakeets from taking to our northern climate. The adaptable birds, known as monk parakeets, are flying wild in Illinois and other northern states.

Originally imported into the U.S. as pets, the colorful parrot-sized birds have been spotted in wild flocks over the past months. According to state agriculture director Robert "Pud" Williams, monk parakeets are identified by green bodies with blue and yellow highlights, a long blue-green tail and a grey head.

One account of how the big green birds got here is that a crate of monk parakeets destined for a pet shop escaped from a crate which broke open at New York's Kennedy Airport in 1967. It was assumed by ornithologists that these natives of Argentina and neighboring countries would succumb to cold weather. But hundreds of the hardy birds soon began making appearances in New Jersey and New York and New England, later in the Midwest.

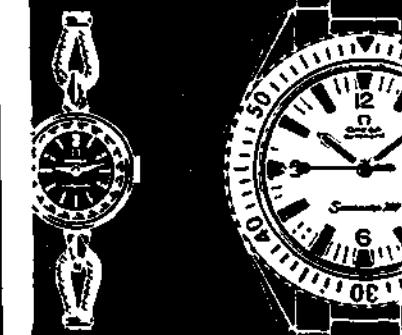

Why all the fuss about a colorful new bird appearing on the scene? If they become established in large enough numbers, say Williams, they could pose a serious threat to grain production. The monk parakeets have a taste for corn and other grains, sunflowers and fruit. Illinois officials are working with federal agencies to develop an eradication program.

Williams cited other animal and insect pests which could have been eliminated if eradication programs had been started when they first were observed. Among these are the English sparrow, the starling and the face fly. Williams would not specify which areas of the state reported the parakeets because he feared an adverse public reaction.

Any effort to wipe out the monk parakeet will probably arouse the wrath of bird lovers. In the Northeast where the birds first appeared, signs of conflict appeared as a Connecticut Audubon Society spokesman said the birds ought to be trapped or shot. Naturalists countered this is an alarmist position. In addition to the crop damage problem, several Audubon Society representatives note the naturalization of any bird or animal is generally accomplished at the expense of other creatures.

Despite the contention of some naturalists that the monk parakeet is just another visitor at bird lovers' feeding stations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is warning that serious damage to orchards and other crops can be expected if the bird species becomes abundant. Monk parakeets have a price on their heads in some parts of South America as a result of this damage.

The FBI one year after Hoover: morale sagging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This week marks the first anniversary of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's death, and the agency he created during nearly 50 years of dedicated effort is in turmoil.

Employee morale has hit a low ebb and a temporary director is trying to salvage the reputation of the nation's top law enforcement agency.

The FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, which Hoover founded, ignored the passing of this day in its May issue and no tributes were planned.

"We've had so much trouble since Mr. Hoover died, we can't afford to live in the past," one veteran agent remarked. "But there's no question that this mess over finding a leader would suddenly hit us."

HOOVER'S AGENCY, which he ruled with an iron hand, remained above politics. He was often criticized in later years, but he survived it all.

The day after Hoover died, President Nixon named L. Patrick Gray III, a career Navy captain and lawyer with no law enforcement background, to serve as acting director until Congress should act on his nomination as the FBI's permanent chief.

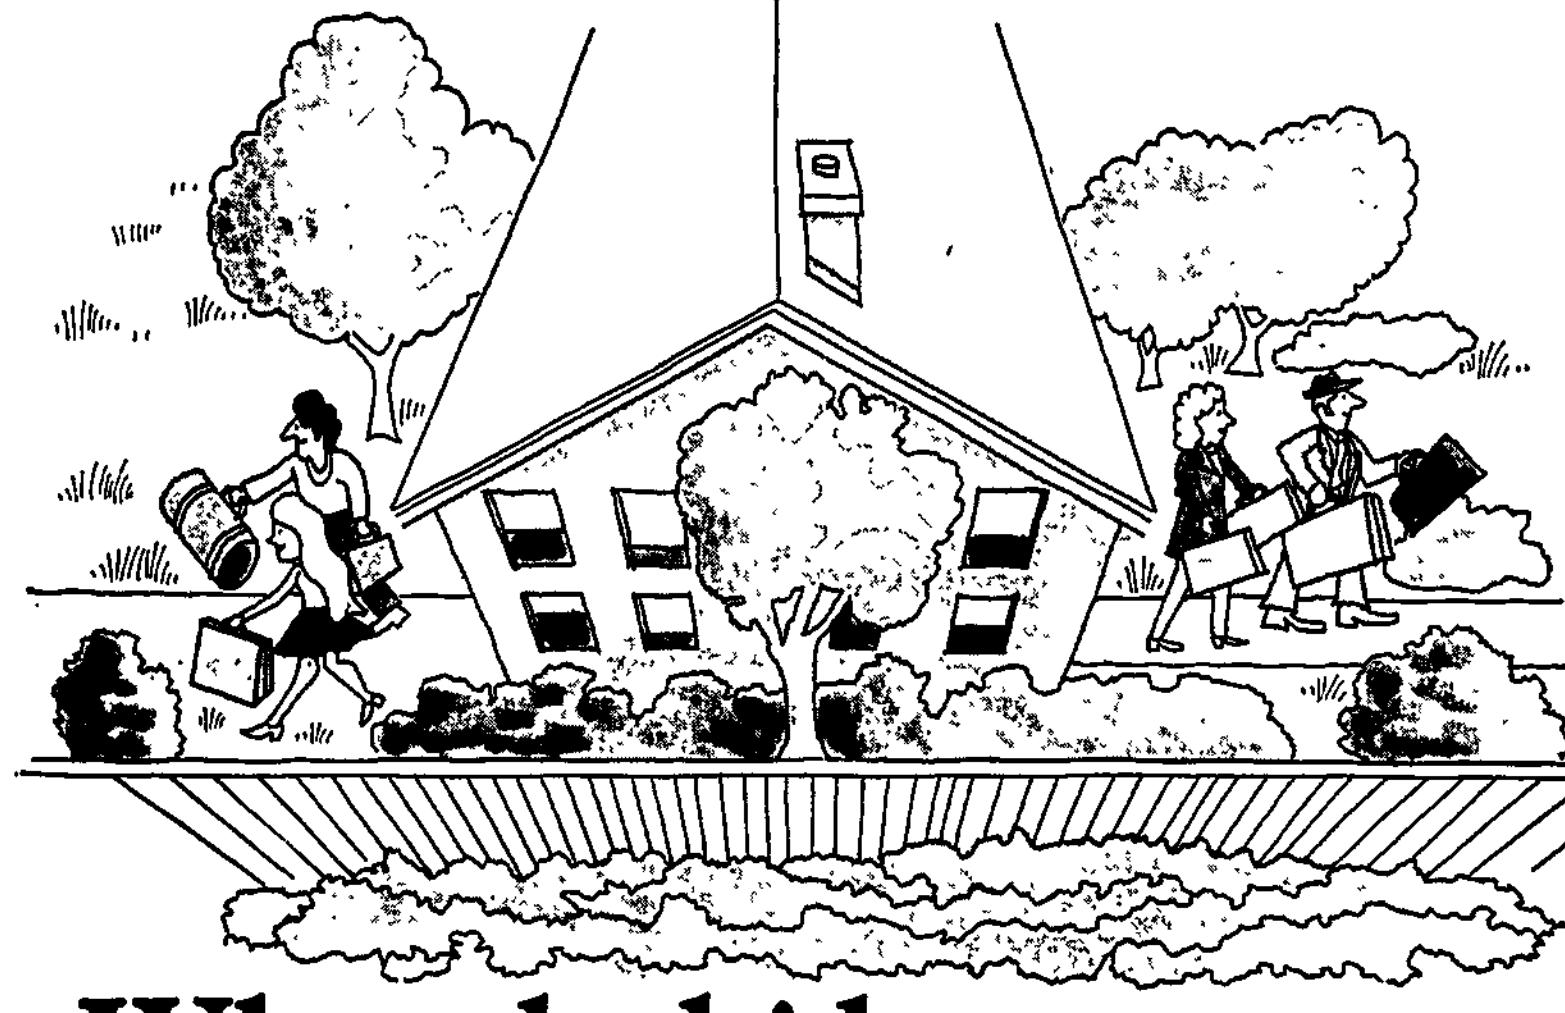

Gray became an early victim of the Watergate affair after he admitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee that he furnished raw FBI files to White House Counsel John W. Dean III — who Monday was fired by the President.

Gray withdrew his nomination, but stayed on as acting director for two weeks until he resigned after further disclosures attempting to link him to Watergate.

GRAY HAS BEEN replaced temporarily by William D. Ruckelshaus, former head of the Environmental Protection

The Williamsburg Colonial

Designed in the stately manner of imposing height and durability, the Williamsburg Colonial reflects the warm feeling of gracious, inviting hospitality.

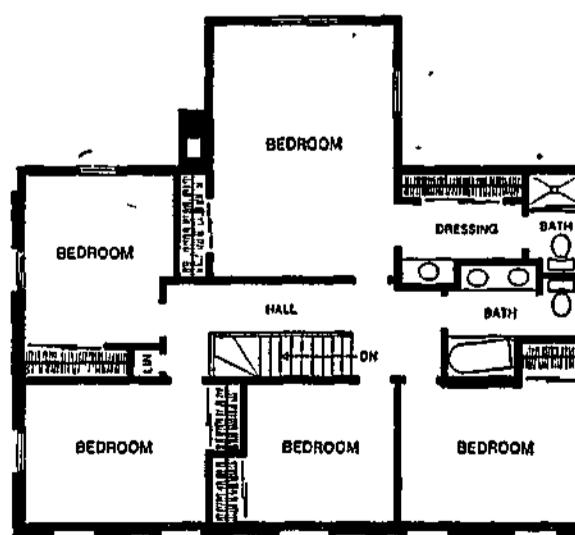

Sometimes referred to as the "Georgian" type home, this particular style reveals the traditional attitudes of Southeastern United States culture and expansive design featuring the handsome double-door entry into a foyer usually large central foyer that projects into all areas of the home.

The solid brick facade with the high roof line gives the Williamsburg style a life long feeling of dignity and boldness while still offering a distinctive atmosphere of graceful security.

Noted for its large living room, dining room, and kitchen, this particular home style can be developed to suit the living requirements of large active families and is a beautiful compliment to any neighborhood or suburban countryside setting.

Seal should insure tops in quality

What you see should be what you get. This is a pledge of the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association. Each member manufacturer places a seal on every mobile home produced at one of its plants to assure the buyer of superior quality.

The blue-and-silver seal represents compliance with the American National Standards Institute's code which regulates body and frame design, construction and installation of plumbing, heating and electrical systems.

"Any home bearing the MHMA/TCA (Trailer Coach Association) seal has been constructed to rigorous safety standards," said Henry Omson, MHMA's Standards Division Director. MHMA has inspectors who check the quality of construction in each member plant at least once every ten working days.

"Our inspectors start at the beginning of a plant's production line and check each segment of production thoroughly," Omson said.

Violations of the standards are discussed with the plant manager so they will be corrected.

THE PLANT is fined by MHMA if violations exist. The amount of a fine depends on the seriousness of the violation. Minor violations are usually handled with a $100 fine. If a construction violation would affect the life-safety of an occupant, the plant is fined $1,000 per violation.

If violations are not remedied within three visits, the manufacturer may be expelled from MHMA. If this occurs, the firm may only be reinstated after the violations have been corrected and a $10,000 fine has been paid.

"We feel we have the best inspection program around. Our inspectors must have an excellent electrical circuitry background before we hire them. Each man is required to take a 30-day intensive training program about mobile home construction. Afterward, he is continually tested to check his production awareness," Omson said.

MHMA's Standards Inspectors are trained to work hand in hand with the quality control personnel employed by each manufacturer.

"A manufacturer must have a built-in quality control program before he can become a MHMA member. It is easy to improve a quality control program but very difficult to install one after a plant begins production," Omson noted.

Condominiums make moving a little easier

Couples who have spent a near-generation or more in an established community like Glen Ellyn often hesitate to pull up stakes when the old house becomes too big.

"That is where condominiums come into the picture," says builder Mel Collins.

Collins, whose Scope Development Corp. is erecting 60-unit Churchill in Glen Ellyn, says the condo eases the transition from house to apartment.

"Families that have been used to a 9-or-10-room life style," he says, "sometimes find being compressed into two or three rooms too abrupt a change. Although they welcome the freedom from yard work and outdoor maintenance, they require more space than the life-time apartment dweller. That is why we are offering with units up to 1,625 square feet, three bedrooms and two-and-a-half baths. This size permits retention of valued furniture, heirlooms, and 'memory items' in a new chore-free setting ... with a spare bedroom or two for visiting children and grandchildren."

Mel Collins

"It also allows people who have contributed to the community over many years to retain church, club, fraternal connections and friendships as well as shop in stores with which they are acquainted."

Collins added, "Churchill's unique location, less than two blocks from station and in-town shopping is probably more convenient than that of the old home. We are fortunate such ground was available."

Give mom a gift to make her housework easier

Surveys show that women do like to receive practical gifts on such occasions as Mother's Day, their birthdays, etc. This is especially true of working wives and mothers.

With Mother's Day coming up May 13, consider this: Around 85 per cent of the country has water that's hard enough to present a problem to the homemaker. Fortunately, the solution is easy: softened water. You can purchase or rent equipment that softens the water before it enters the piping system. These are the advantages to Mom of softened water at the top:

- Clothes and linens come out brighter and they have longer life.
- Dishes and silverware have more luster. There's none of the water-spotting that occurs when water is hard and the soap isn't rinsed off.
- Hair is more lustrous and manageable after a shampoo.
- You feel better after a bath because there's no soap residue left on the skin.
- Coffee, tea, vegetables and other food taste better and even look better.
- The life of your plumbing and water-using appliances is prolonged because there is no mineral scale buildup.

For free booklets on the advantages of softened water, write to the Water Conditioning Foundation, P. O. Box 194, Northfield, Ill. 60093.

Lincoln nudges loan rates up

Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association of Berwyn, trend-bucking $137 million institution, has nudged its 80 per

He urged families planning to obtain a mortgage to act promptly before further escalation becomes necessary.

Last year, Lincoln's maverick interest policy resulted in doubling its previous high annual lending total set in 1971.

The Berwyn institution granted $42 million in mortgages last year, in comparison with $21 million the previous year.

Another record year is under way, Kinst stated. He revealed mortgage commitments for the first quarter, through March 31, exceed $13 million.

Announcement was made by president Frank J. Kinst, who has been featuring "anti-inflationary" under 7 percent loans since February, 1972.

Kinst said today's volatile money market requires the advance from the 6.7 to 6.9 Lincoln has been charging. He hinted that rate announcements must now be on a month-to-month basis rather than the three or four-month span Lincoln Federal has used in the past.

Lincoln continues to package mortgage closing costs at 1 1/4 per cent. This includes appraisal fee and credit report charges. Title cost and fire insurance are not included in this figure.

Kinst cautioned that the new 7.2 rate

Realty firm sells Addison building

Gladstone realty estate brokers has announced the sale of an eight-year-old brick 12-flat building at 423 Green Oaks, Addison.

The building was sold for $150,000 on a contract purchase. The transaction was negotiated by Jeanne George and Marcia Viner of Gladstone's Villa Park office in cooperation with Angelas A. Pataki, a Des Plaines real estate broker.

Seller was Dr. William Sherman, represented by Paul Kalnich of Glen Ellyn. Purchasers were Romesh Amlan and Dr. J. Patel, represented by Henry Jostock of Chicago.

Relocation service insignia changed

The updated insignia of Inter-City Relocation Service is being added to Robert W. Starck & Co., 209 S. Main St., Mount Prospect. Inter-City recently changed its "ICRS" short-form identification to "RELO," adapted from "the first four letters of 'relocation,' which is what we do for families on the move to new cities — help them find new homes that will best answer their housing needs," Robert W. Starck, C.R.B. said.

The new insignia has "RELO" and "member" in light green block letters, with "Inter-City Relocation Service" and a stylized house silhouette, encircled by the "O," in black.

Robert W. Starck & Co. which serves the Northwest suburbs with five offices, is one of more than 600 RELO members who provide assistance in selling former residences and buying new homes for families moving from and to more than 6,000 communities in the United States and overseas.

Mrs. Starck, as Robert W. Starck & Co.'s Miss RELO, provides direct liaison between families on the move and broker-members in destination communities to whom their housing needs are referred.

Annen & Busse sales top $10 million mark

Annen & Busse Realtors, serving the Northwest suburban area for 24 years, recorded more than $10 million in residential sales for the first quarter of 1973. According to William N. Annen, secretary-treasurer of the firm, this is a 15.7 per cent increase over the first quarter of last year.

This sales production can be attributed to the fact that Annen & Busse has forty three full-time sales associates serving from their four locations in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Schaumburg. And that they are charter members of the MAP Multiple Listing Service, and members of the Homes for Living Network, a National Multi-List Service covering 5,000 communities across the nation.

Along with this, Annen & Busse has installed in their offices a telecommunications system which allows the sales associate to make immediate contact with cities across the nation, thus better serving the customer by allowing him to become acquainted with an area he might be interested in before he arrives at his destination. All of these factors, along with Annen & Busse's own sales-orientation course, offered to new associates when they join the firm, and an extensive advertising program combine to make record-breaking production.

'Guaranteed' house idea gets support

A ten-year guarantee program to insure new houses against structural defects being studied by the National Association of Home Builders was "strongly supported" by American Home magazine. From every indication, the idea "is not public-relations eyewash, but a serious effort on the part of quality builders to affirm their faith in their product," the publication said.

An editorial in the current issue said the "guaranteed house" would "raise the quality of home construction" by demanding product manufacturers and installers stand behind their work.

The NAHB has engaged Eugene A. Guleidge, former FHIA commissioner and assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, to report on the feasibility of a "guaranteed house" program. The report is due later this month.

The NAHB program is being modeled after a guaranteed program that is being successfully operated in Britain, the American Home editorial said. Administered by the National House Builders Registration Council, the British program cost homeowners about $28 extra.

CPA to speak at realty dinner

Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors will hold its regular monthly dinner meeting Thursday night, May 10, 1973 at 7:00 p.m. at the Case Royale, 783 Lee Street, Des Plaines, Illinois.

Featured speaker will be H. Richard Collins, CPA with Ernst and Ernst in Chicago. Subject of Mr. Collins' presentation will be "Recent Tax Changes Affecting Individuals and Corporations."

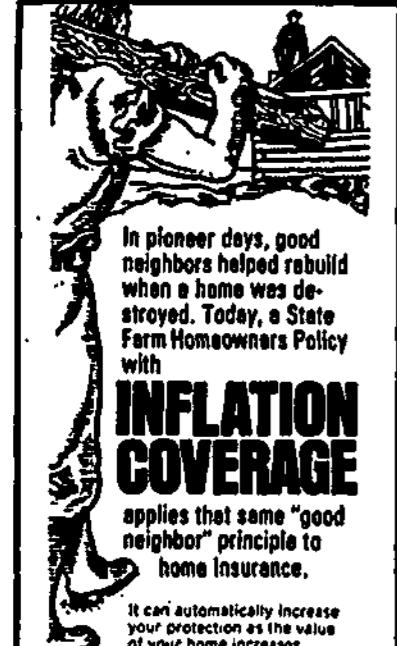

H. Richard Collins is the tax manager for the Chicago office of Ernst and Ernst. He has held this post for seven years. Prior to that he was professor of accounting for both Loyola and DePaul Universities. His knowledge and experience ranks him as one of the nation's leaders in this field and he is in constant demand as a speaker and consultant on federal taxes.

Collins will discuss problems of the self-employed; new estimated tax payments — newest requirements for individuals and corporations and dealing with the Internal Revenue Service; followed by a question and answer period.

Four new Realtor members will be installed at the meeting: Elizabeth A. Gallobo and William T. Zurek with United Realtors in Park Ridge; Daniel B. Light with L. B. Andersen & Co., Inc. in Wheeling and Earl P. Marshall with Homes Plus, Inc. in Mount Prospect. Twenty-four new Associate members will also be installed.

Quinlan and Tyson sets another company record

Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., has set another all-time company sales record — smashing a record mark that lasted only 30 days.

In March, the North Shore and Northwest suburban area real estate firm recorded a new monthly high in sales volume of $13,370,489.

The total surpassed Q&T's previous monthly high of $11,073,050, set in February of 1973.

Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president, pointed out that the $13,370,489 is a "conservative" figure.

In reaching the new record, Quinlan and Tyson's ten area offices serving 45

North Shore and Northwest suburban area communities handled 226 transactions. This topped the previous high monthly mark of 209 in March of 1972.

The firm's total transactions also are moving ahead at a record pace, with 615 through the first three months of this year — 87 more than the same period of 1972. This is an increase of 16 per cent, Rutledge said.

Meanwhile, the total company sales volume for the first quarter of the year has risen 31 per cent over the comparable period of 1972.

Rutledge stated that residential and investment sales for the first three months totaled $34,391,974. The record sales volume is an increase of 31 per cent over $26,285,164 for the same period last year.

At the present rate, Quinlan and Tyson is well on its way toward topping its record sales year of 1972 when the 89-year-old real estate firm participated in the sale of $104.8 million worth of real estate.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

Tips to Home Buyers and Sellers

Summer time is probably the most active home buying and selling period of the year. Obviously, transferred families want to get re-situated before the fall school term begins, and the summer months allow the best time to inspect homes as well as see the homes and communities in their most attractive condition.

MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service offices receive numerous inquiries from transferees who are looking for specific homes in specific locations, especially during the late spring and summer months. If you're thinking of selling, call a MAP Real Estate office for information on current home market data, at no obligation.

MAP Multiple Listing Service offers you the full time sales knowledge of over 900 Real Estate Salespeople representing over 65 area offices that display the bright black and gold MAP MEMBER sign.

Call MAP...the influential Real Estate Multiple Organization that gets you the buying and selling results you demand.

Summer is a great time to buy or sell so let a MAP Real Estate office help you get top satisfaction.

Marriott announces summer swim, tennis club season

With the coming of summer the Chicago Marriott Motor Hotel is offering for the first time tennis club memberships to the public. The outdoor courts are officially open now through Oct. 28 and will be available for use seven days a week from 7 a.m. to dusk.

The tennis club membership will not only include use of the hotel's courts, but also sauna, sun-room, whirlpool, locker, towel service, and shower privileges. The cost of a single membership for the tennis season is $100. Court time costs $5.00 per hour and includes the right to bring up to three guests without additional charges.

The popular Marriott Family Swim Club season will open with a big "splash" on May 14 and will remain open through Sept. 9. Club membership includes unlimited use of the hotel's two spectacular swimming pools, children's wading pools, and hydro-massage bath. The indoor-outdoor pool will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 10 p.m. and the outdoor pool from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week. Membership carries full holiday and weekend privileges.

"Marriott Swimming Club members never have to worry about the weather," cites Joe R. Woods, general manager of the hotel. "Even when the sun isn't shining on the outside our members can use the indoor-outdoor pool, the only one of its kind in the Chicago area. Our other pool is outdoors, so there will never be any disappointed swimmers due to a summer storm."

Cost of the Marriott Swimming Club membership is $100 for single persons; $175 for couples with no children and $250 for families of four or less persons. For each person over four in a family, an additional $25 will be charged.

For membership reservations in the Tennis and/or Swim Club contact David Casper, the hotel's recreation director at 693-4444.

The Chicago Marriott Hotel is conveniently located at 8535 W. Higgins Rd., adjacent to the Cumberland exit of the Kennedy Expressway.

Kole office reports record sales in '73

A total sales volume of $2,500,000 in residential sales has been recorded by the Wheeling sales office of Kole Real Estate, Ltd.

The record sales volume is for the period Jan 1 - March 31, according to Tom Jakubik, manager of the Kole sales office at 749 W. Dundee. The sales were made with the cooperation of other brokers.

Jakubik, who has been manager of the Wheeling office for two years joined the Kole organization in 1969. He supervises a sales staff of 12 persons.

Robert A. Kole is the president of Kole Real Estate Ltd., which maintains offices in Barrington, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows, Des Plaines and Park Ridge, as well as Wheeling. An office will be opened in the near future in Palatine.

Mrs. Sorensen earns real estate award

Coletta A. Sorensen of Rich Port, Realtor, Schaumburg office, received the award for the highest sales volume in the month of March 1973. This was accomplished after only nine months as a Sales Associate with Rich Port.

A native of Chicago, Mrs. Sorensen now lives in Hoffman Estates.

The Schaumburg office of Rich Port, Realtor is located at 8 N. Roselle Rd., and is one of five offices in the northwest and twelve offices in the western suburbs serving more than 100 Chicago communities, all specializing in residential, commercial and investment real estate.

It's easy living at Huntington Commons

Residents of the condominiums of Huntington Commons, a new apartment home community in Mount Prospect, will truly be able to experience the pleasure of a maintenance-free and leisure-oriented life style. Developer Richard A. Stein Associates has master planned the entire development to provide homeowners with freedom to take full advantage of the community's recreational amenities or to just relax in the development's country club surroundings.

All maintenance work is taken care of for residents through the condominiums of Huntington Commons Homeowners Association which will be managed by Seay & Thomas, Inc., the property management firm based in Chicago. And everything from lawn care to window washing is covered through this homeowners plan.

Thus residents, once they enter the development's permanent gatehouse, have complete freedom from all the tedious chores homeowners have come to dread.

Recreational opportunities abound at the development. Over fifty per cent of the grounds are devoted to landscaped, tree-shaded lawns and recreational amenities. The highlight of the development is a picturesque lake that is bisected by a pedestrian bridge and features a gazebo. This lake feeds itself to ice skating in the winter or quiet contemplation in the summer months.

Homeowners will have their own special country club — the Huntington Commons clubhouse. This 1,400 square foot fun-and-social center will include men's and women's showers and dressing rooms, a large multi-purpose party room with fireplace and an efficiency kitchen. It's ideal for informal gatherings and formal affairs.

Adjoining the clubhouse will be the swimming pool surrounded by a 2,500 square foot sun deck.

FAMILY-STYLE kitchens combining function with fashion are found in every apartment home at The Condominiums of Huntington Commons in Mount Prospect. All the imaginable work-saving equipment is standard including electric eye-level continuous clean double oven with exhaust hood, automatic dishwasher, and food waste disposal. Counter tops are of Formica leather and cabinets are furniture-finish. An added bonus is a sliding glass door opening onto a balcony.

Tennis buffs will love the four championship courts located by the lake.

Add to this the nearby parks, forest preserves, golf courses and other forms of recreational amenities available in the area and residents of the condominiums of Huntington Commons can truly look forward to an exciting new life style.

For more information contact the developer, Richard A. Stein Associates, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Officers named

At a recent meeting of the Merchants' Association for Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, located on Golf Road at Meacham Road, just west of Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg, members to serve on the board of directors were named.

President is Louis Seno of Seno & Sons Formalwear; Vice President — Ernest Shapiro of Art Gallery Inn; Secretary and Treasurer — Selig Hersch of DeWitt's Children's Shoes.

Thinking about retirement? Good time to check expenses

A major adjustment of your living expenses to bring them into line with your sources of income may be in order when you retire. If you plan ahead, the adjustment may not be as drastic and painful as it otherwise might be.

"Retirement doesn't always mean a cutback in your way of life," notes Penny Scott, family financial advisor for Oak Park Federal Savings and Loan Association.

"In many cases, expenses associated with working full-time can drop," she says. "And there are often many resources a retired person or couple can draw on for income."

For people planning retirement, as well as for their families who may also them, Miss Scott recommends a careful evaluation of expenses and income.

Expenses. The first expense item is housing, which may change depending on whether you stay where you are or move somewhere else. If you remain in your present home, you have a fairly good idea of what your expenses are. And once your mortgage is paid up, your housing expenses will drop.

If YOU MOVE, though, your expenses could go up if you pick a home or a section of the country where costs are higher. So look into housing costs and associated living costs carefully before you decide.

Other expense items may drop once you stop working. For example, you no longer will be faced with the costs of transportation to and from work or the costs of lunches away from home. Your clothing expenses may be less. After age 65, income taxes are lower, which is important if you derive income from taxable sources, such as interest.

However, some of these savings may be offset by a greater outlay for medical care; for example, you may no longer have group coverage provided by your employer. Also, if you plan to devote more time to hobbies and travel in your retirement, such activities will undoubtedly mean a greater outlay than they formerly did.

"Just as you probably had a budget when you were working, work out another budget for retirement, including fixed expenses, such as rent or mortgage payments, taxes, insurance, savings, and debts," Miss Scott advises.

McNellis receives sales honor

Frank J. McNellis, 438 Cedar St., Palatine, and general manager, Imperial-Eastman International, was recently honored by his company for his personal sales achievements during 1972.

During a sales meeting hosted by Imperial-Eastman Corporation in Key Biscayne, Fla., he was congratulated by Martin J. Butler, vice president, Imperial Division.

"Then get figures on variable expense items, such as food, household maintenance, clothing, transportation, personal items, furnishings, medical care, recreation, and gifts and contributions."

Income. Now that you know what retirement will cost, determine what income you can count on. A major source will probably be Social Security. Other sources could include a pension fund and veterans' benefits.

Also list income from savings accounts, stock dividends, bond interest, and income from real estate, if any. If you plan to work part-time, include that income, too.

The OAK PARK FEDERAL advisor notes that you may have assets that can provide additional income if you readjust them.

For example, you may want to sell your home and buy a smaller home. If you do, you can put the difference into savings account and draw interest.

You may also want to change your life insurance. Depending on what you have, you may be able to convert some insurance into its cash value, or arrange for an annuity. Another possibility is that you reduce the amount of insurance you're carrying, thereby cutting your premium payments.

If you have investments which pay dividends that are reinvested, you might want to arrange for the dividends to be paid to you in cash, to supplement your monthly income.

Now that you have an idea of what your expenses and income will be like in retirement, your task is to bring the two into balance, if these don't already match. Among the possibilities for trimming expenses are these:

Buying a smaller home with less upkeep-expense.

Cutting recreation expenses by taking advantage of low-cost or free programs at local libraries, schools, and community centers, and by patronizing entertainment places that give discounts to retirees.

Traveling with groups on low-cost charter plans.

"These are just a few ideas," Miss Scott says. "Take time to review your circumstances and your desires. In most cases, you should be able to come up with a retirement budget that suits you to a T."

Abbey Springs: a season of celebration

It is a season of celebration at Abby Springs. Everything is grand with the opening of their twin indoor/outdoor swimming pools at the country club, and a new phase of the condominiums — all part of the resort community in Fontana-on-Geneva Lake, Wis.

The swimming pool, which is just a small part of the recreation core, is the first of its type to be built in Wisconsin. The uniqueness of the pool is the indoor/outdoor combination of two connecting swimming pools with a flowing passage in between. Swimmers may go from one pool to the other without getting out of the water.

Although both pools are open now for year-round use, it is expected that only those who enjoy "polar bear" swimming will brave cold temperatures and winter weather outdoors. For rainy summer days, the indoor pool will be a much appreciated place to swim. For an avid swimmer, the combination is ideal.

The swimming pools are located in the Abbey Springs Country Club. To celebrate the grand opening, a children's splash party was held recently, and Friday night family swims will begin in May.

AT THE SAME time, the grand opening of Phase III of the condominiums has been announced by Romeo Mura, marketing director of Abbey Springs. The new phase includes 40 condominiums in the heavily wooded area bordering along the 16th fairway of the golf course.

The condominiums, with two and three bedrooms, are priced from $25,000 to $47,500. They are built in multi-levels with unusual beamed ceilings, fireplaces, fully-equipped kitchens, floor-to-ceiling windows providing wide panoramas of the wooded view, with sliding glass doors leading outdoors to spacious, room-size terraces. The condominium buildings are built in clusters interspersed among the trees allowing a world of privacy for each resident.

Abbey Springs also has single-family condominium homesites nestled into the woods. The developers have a portfolio of suggested custom-built homes or an owner may build his own design with the developers' approval in keeping with their standards of architecture for the entire community.

The homeowner has all the privileges of condominium ownership such as year-round maintenance and use of the recreational facilities.

The Abbey Springs Yacht Club has boat launching and storage facilities as well as a restaurant, lounge and sundae on the shore of Lake Geneva.

The community is located at 484 S. Shore Dr. in Fontana, on the southwestern shore of Lake Geneva. Furnished model condominiums and the sales office are open daily and weekends from 10 a.m. until dusk.

RICH URBANITES who invest their money in farming operations to harvest "tax loss" gains should be stripped of the right to use tax preferences designed for family farmers. That's the opinion of the Agribusiness Accountability Project, a Washington-based research group. The group's recent report entitled, "Sowing the Till," calls for a series of legislative and administrative steps to cut back on such arrangements as the limited partnerships in farming ventures. These partnerships, widely used in cattle feeding operations, should have to pay corporate taxes, the report said. Congress should adopt legislation to limit the farm deductions which can be used to offset non-farm income, with provisions to protect genuine farmers, it continued. Another provision would forbid limited farm partnerships from claiming more in deductions than they actually invested in a venture.

Electric heat tops 67,000-unit mark

Electrically heated homes and apartments now number 67,402 within the Commonwealth Edison system. Ten years ago there were 6,218.

More such units were added in 1972 than in any other year — 10,864, representing a yearly growth rate of 20.2 per cent. Today an additional 15,000 units are under construction.

"Electric heat helps customers economize in at least two ways," said John Ellering, Edison vice-president. "First, because no combustion is involved, household cleaning bills are lower. Second, the electric heat load improves the load factor of our system, resulting in economies of production that ultimately benefit all customers."

Here's why. Edison must invest heavily in new generating facilities to meet the greatest demand for electricity which occurs during the summer air conditioning days.

Because the summer peak demand is substantially higher than the heaviest load in winter, a portion of the company's expensive plant stands idle during the cold months. Increasing the electric heat load therefore utilizes more fully the available equipment and improves operating efficiency.

Of the seven electric heating systems available, baseboard units and central furnace systems are the two most popular. Approximately 50 per cent of all electric heat installations are of the baseboard type, while central furnace systems account for 30 per cent of all completed installations and nearly 52 per cent of those under construction.

Other electric heat systems include ceiling cable, through-the-wall, wall panel, boiler and heat pump units.

How to make trash disposal an easier task

Would you like to eliminate that basketful of cans, bottles, milk cartons and other trash in your kitchen? Are you tired of trips to a smelly trash can? Then investigate the possibility of a trash compactor that compresses a week's trash — enough to fill four cans — into a package weighing about 25 pounds.

Here's how the compactor works, according to Robert Cox of In-Sink-Erator, a pioneer in the food waste disposer and compactor field:

Trash is placed into the compactor through a front door into a plastic bag that's inserted into a plastic basket. To operate, the homemaker simply moves a switch to "start." A ram mechanism runs for one minute, then stops automatically. It's not necessary to run the appliance every time trash is put into it.

There are built-in safety features, Cox notes. There's a key lock and when the lever control is set in the middle, the unit won't run, but the doors can be opened for inserting or removing trash. The unit won't operate when the doors are open, and the doors won't open when the ram is operating.

The compactor comes either as a free-standing or built-in unit in four decorator colors. It can be installed wherever there's an electric outlet. The ISE compactor is available from plumbing contractors.

Older homes are ideal for bath modernization

The old home is a paradox. It has built-in problems for modern-day living. At the same time, it has built-in solutions.

This paradox is especially true with respect to bathrooms. Most old homes have plenty of wasted space which can easily be used for extra bathroom facilities.

Take the old bathroom itself, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Older homes often were built with an oversized bathroom that experienced plumbers contractors now can compartmentalize — that is, divide the bathroom into separate areas that provide privacy for use of each facility simultaneously.

In old homes, the original bathroom usually is on the second floor, and most families also want facilities on the first floor to save steps and offer a convenience to guests. The answer to this problem also is built into old homes.

A plumbing contractor can find numerous "dead spots" in which to install fixtures — for example, the end of a hallway or the space under a stairway. Or he may be able to convert an old closet or pantry into a bathroom.

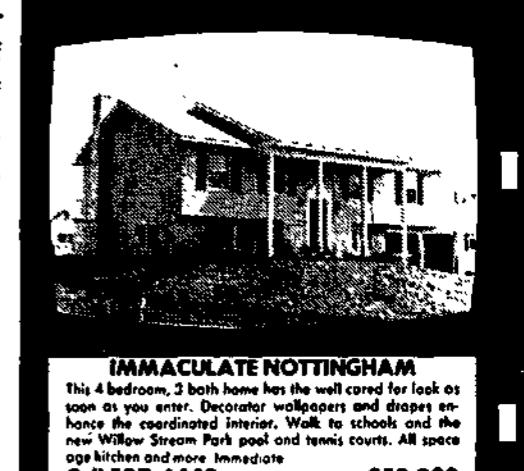

He has considerable flexibility in working in these areas. Some may be large enough to install a complete bathroom. Others may be limited in space, in which case he can install a so-called half-bath or powder room. Essentially, this is a bathroom minus the tub and can be installed in as little as 14 square feet.

Depending on circumstances, the contractor may use special compact fixtures designed for corner installation, as well as shower enclosures.

There are few plumbing problems the qualified plumbing contractor cannot solve. If there is no window in the half-bath, he can install mechanical ventilation. If the door opens onto a heavily traveled area, he may install a sliding door, not only saving space but preventing accidents. If storage is a problem, he may use lavatories with cabinet space underneath.

Insulation can keep heat out as well as in Warm weather causes home buyers to forget about insulation, but it saves energy in hot weather, too.

Keeping summer heat out means your air-conditioning doesn't have to work as hard. So, you use — and pay for — less electricity. The idea is maximum environmental comfort at minimum cost for both heating and cooling.

With the prospect of year-round energy shortages, prospective home buyers should closely question builders about the amount and type of insulation offered.

Beefing up a layer of attic insulation is a fairly simple do-it-yourself chore.

Adding insulation to an existing wall is a far more difficult and expensive proposition. For home owners, the most economical time to upgrade wall insulation is during house construction.

The most popular, and efficient, exterior wall sheathing in general use today is said to be insulation board. The material has millions of tiny cells which retard the flow of heat and cold. More than half of the nation's homes with sidewall sheathing use insulation board panels, says Robert A. LaCosse, technical manager of the Acoustical and Insulating Materials Association, Park Ridge.

The association conducts an industry rating program which stamps the heat resistance value on each sheet of the product. The higher the heat resistance (or R) value, the better the thermal resistance of the sheathing.

LaCosse said the R-value of one-half inch regular density insulation board is 1.32. He said that a one-half inch thickness of this material has a better insulation value than two layers of three-eighths inch plywood, 12 inches of face brick or solid concrete 18 inches thick.

Regardless of the type of exterior siding used, the executive recommended that sidewall sheathing be included on exterior walls for greater economy, comfort and fuel conservation.

KEEPING THE KIDDIES SAFE IN THE KITCHEN

You know, yourself, how often you've had little accidents in the kitchen. Perhaps some big ones, too. And you know a lot about prevention. But young children do not. Teach them early so they'll never forget.

Try a Wonders-of-the-Kitchen Day! Take an hour or so and show your children around. Let them come to understand that knives are sharp, hot water can take their skin off, flames can burn as well as send them to the hospital. Show them the possible dangers of electrical outlets and a range that gets hot when food is cooking, and how these must never be touched.

And when Hide-and-Seek time comes 'round again, make sure that inside the oven or refrigerator or dryer is absolutely Off Limits, and explain very carefully why.

A public service announcement from the AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION

Mobile homes can ease demand for housing

"A decent home and a suitable environment for every American family." This was the objective of the 1949 Housing Act.

When this Act failed to reach Congressional expectations, a more contemporary housing draft was enacted in 1968. That Act reset the country's sights for "26 million new or rehabilitated housing units by 1978."

A recent report compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago stated: "Last June (1972), the President announced the nation was 8 per cent ahead of the path charted by the 1968 housing goals. However, this percentage depends on the inclusion of mobile homes."

With the cost of living rising each year and incomes being trapped in the wage-price freeze, many persons have been priced out of a home. In most cases, a site-built home cannot be purchased for less than $20,000 compared to the average mobile home which sells for approximately $7,200 including furnishings, major appliances, drapes and carpeting.

THE AVERAGE mobile home has about 750 square feet of living space at an average cost of between $8,50 and $10, per square foot. Comparatively, site-built construction is almost twice as expensive — $15 to $18 per square foot — and does not include furnishings.

"In 1972, total housing production including mobile homes approached 3 million, eclipsing the 1971 all-time record of 2.5 million, and double the annual totals of the early 1960s," the report noted.

Last year, the mobile home industry produced a record-breaking 601,250 homes, a 21 per cent increase over 1971 and approximately 46 per cent of 1972's total single-family housing starts.

"Projections for 1973 indicate mobile home production should approach between 635,000 and 640,000 homes," said Donald W. Tschenten, Conchemco Homes Group, chairman of MHMA's Marketing Committee.

This steady rise in mobile home production has partly been created by a mass migration from inner cities to suburbs. Inexpensive housing is being destroyed at a rapid but unmeasured rate which ignites the need for decent economical housing.

The major groups now residing in mobile homes are retired persons who often prefer to retain their own living quarters, although on a reduced scale. Also, young married couples and middle-aged childless couples are major markets for mobile homes. Yet these groups and new segments of the mobile home market will be expanding and opening in the future.

Private water system makes home site choice easier

Early summer — right after the youngsters get out of school — is a popular house-hunting time. If your family will be looking for a new home this year, don't forget an otherwise desirable location just because there's no municipal water supply.

This advice comes from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that you can have a private water system.

A private system is patterned after the municipal supply and consists of a small-diameter well, an electric pump, controls for turning the pump on and off, and a storage tank. Such a system offers the following advantages:

- You have a wider choice of building sites.

You control your own supply. You're not subject to municipal water — using restrictions during periods of drought.

Water from a well is usually purer and tastes fresher than highly treated city water. Where conditioning for hardness or other factors is needed, efficient equipment is available.

The constant high pressure of a properly installed system enables you to make full use of your plumbing equipment. There's no rationing between the bathroom, kitchen and laundry during times of peak use.

Well water is "free." Delivering it to your fixtures with a private water system costs less than half of what you pay for city water. You're also protected against periodic increases in water bills.

For more information on private water systems, write to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Hersh named MGM 'salesman of the month'

Norman Hersh, winner of the 1971 and 1972 Salesman of the Year award for MGM Realtors, has just been named Salesman of the Month for March, according to Robert B. Green, president.

Green said Hersh completed 13 transactions for a total of $328,400 for the month. This was the highest in total sales for any salesman in the firm's four offices.

Hersh was named salesman of the year for 1971 by totaling almost $2 million in sales. His 1972 totals were $1,750,000. A former builder, Hersh has been with MGM Realtors for four years and has been a divisional sales manager since December, 1971. He sells all types of real estate, but specializes in condominiums.

MGM's Northbrook office has awarded Martha Friedrich its salesman of the month award for completing seven transactions totaling $266,360. She is the first salesperson to win the award at the Northbrook office which was opened Dec. 1, 1972. Mrs. Friedrich lives in Skokie.

Lincoln Federal adds new closing rooms

Four new closing rooms have been added by Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association of Berwyn.

"These new customer service facilities at 6555 W. Cermak Road are in keeping with Lincoln's policy to save time for people. They are the result of our unprecedented growth in lending activity during the past two years," President Frank Kinst said.

In 1972, Lincoln placed $42 million in mortgages.

Kinst said the new accommodations permit the closing of up to six deals simultaneously at Lincoln Circle, thus saving time for all parties concerned.

300 Villa Verde apartments rented

300 apartments in Villa Verde in Buffalo Grove have been rented. 36 remain available.

Tracy Hill, vice president of Kimball Hill Inc., management agent, said the rentals occurred during an eight-month period since the complex was opened but more than 100 new residents joined the community in the past month.

"Villa Verde was designed as part of an environment that contains small lakes, old trees, and winding roads at Dundee Road near Ill. Rte. 53. The 336 apartments are in six L-shaped, three-story elevator buildings that feature deep red-brick facades and wood-shake rooftops. A total of seven different styles of living units are available in convertible/studios, one-bedroom, two-bedroom and two-bedroom with den apartments.

The large L-shaped swimming pool opened Tuesday. Set amid landscaped greenery, the pool adjoins Villa Verde Center, the club house with sauna and changing rooms. A children's pool and playground are nearby. A sun deck with lounge furniture and groupings of redwood tables with umbrellas complete the outdoor picture.

Villa Verde Center is a recreational facility for the community, housing Finnish sauna baths for both men and women, an exercise room, card room and a hospitality house, whose kitchen allows residents to expand their parties beyond the confines of the individual apartments.

Furnished model apartments and the rental center at Villa Verde are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, and from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Sundays.

York, LaGrange dominate Prospect Invitational; one winner from area

Paul Logan

A little about a lot of things

SHANKS OF meat and shanked golf shots have something in common — both are more costly.

A telephone poll of the nine golf courses in the Herald area revealed that over half (5 out of 9) have raised green fees.

Buffalo Grove Golf Club made the smallest boost — $2.25.

Hiking their prices to $5.50 were Mount Prospect, Arlington, Chevy Chase and Golden Acres country clubs.

It's no big deal to most golfers, but those taking up the game for the first time might think twice. There's something about forking out $7 for weekend play. Some of these increases bring seven of the nine to that figure.

Of the courses that held their 1972 price line (Old Orchard, Rob Roy, Palatine Hills and Arlington Park), only the Palatine park district course and the mainly par 3 layout next to the race track remain the most reasonably priced.

Nobody can match Palatine Hills' $4.50 weekday rate for 18 holes or Arlington Park's $3.50.

The largest student-athlete in the state of Iowa lumbered into Illinois last week for the National A.A.U. Wrestling Championships. Namely Chris (as in Chris-Craft boat) Taylor (as in tailor-made clothes).

One of the Herald reporters soaked up the Waukegan scene and brought back this report (partly tongue in cheek) on the 400-pound plus bronze medalist:

"Quickie quiz — name the only collegiate wrestler to defeat him during his two-year NCAA career at Iowa State. (After grappling with the next few paragraphs, the answer will be found.)

"During his third match, Taylor lifted his left arm over his head, a feat never before seen in the Midwest. Taylor's opponent, incidentally fainted.

"Taylor was scheduled to face Robert Johnson of the Minnesota Wrestling Club in the finals. However, Johnson had to forfeit the match due to injury (or was it due to the possible impending injury?).

"Taylor stayed in the Gurnee Travelodge. He requested a 6 a.m. wakeup last Saturday. The lodge refused. Not until 6:30 do calls go out was the answer. This makes one wonder what it takes to throw one's weight around?

"Taylor's getting married (scoop?)

this fall, a point at which he'll probably go into pro wrestling.

"Regardless of your answer, it's wrong. Taylor never lost a collegiate match. He was tied once — Bill Struve, Oklahoma, 1971 — at 1-1."

Toss that heavy quiz question out sometime to some outspoken friend of yours.

Speaking of the Taylor's Olympic background, the sports department received a poll put out by Pepsi-Cola asking to rank the most important sports stories over the past 75 years.

What do you think of these:

1) Jackie Robinson breaking the color barrier in major league baseball.

2) UCLA's domination of collegiate basketball.

3) Bob Beamon's leap of 29-2½ in the long jump at the 1968 Olympics, over two feet farther than the existing record.

4) Joe Namath's leading the New York Jets to the American Football League's first victory in the Super Bowl.

5) Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak with the Yankees.

6) Lou Gehrig's 2139 straight games played with the Yankees.

7) Don Drysdale's 58 2/3 scoreless innings pitched with the Dodgers.

8) The New York Yankees' domination of baseball.

9) The 1969 pennant race — a surging expansion Met team overtaking a fading Cub team.

10) Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier battle of the champions heavyweight fight.

by LARRY EVERHART
Track & Field Editor

So far ahead of the rest of the field were York and Lyons, that it almost seemed like a dual meet.

And so hard did it rain near the end that it almost seemed the affair would have to be switched into a swimming meet.

But there were too many performers and too many different colors of warmup togs for it to really be a two-team affair. (There were 16 in all, including six from the Herald area — Hersey, Forest View, Arlington, Prospect, Maine East and Maine West).

Fortunately, when the sheets of rain began cascading down (at 8:28 p.m. in the second heat of the mile run), all but four events — the mile, 220-yard dash, mile relay and pole vault — had been completed. So only these events really suffered from the elements, while the dashes and hurdles benefited from a stiff wind.

While York had without a doubt the best team, Lyons had the best individual. He is hurdler Ron Sterrenberg, who was not only the only double winner of the night but also set two of the four meet records that toppled. (In a fifth event, two boys tied the record).

Sterrenberg's dazzling times were :14.1 in the 120-yard high hurdles (way ahead of the record: :14.8) and :19.6 in the 180

FINE MARK. Hersey's Mark Kleiner fleshes over the 120-yard high hurdles in a dazzling :15.3 for third place in the Prospect Invitational Tuesday. This was one of the best times in the area this year in a very tough field.

as freshmen — Terry Ormsbee of Arlington and Jim Stauner of Palatine.

Both of these talented freshmen are fighting for starting positions, Stauner at defensive safety and Ormsbee at quarterback.

Of the two, Ormsbee has the greatest challenge for no less than four potential quarterbacks will be tried out in the intra-squad game.

"I imagine each of them will play a half," said an Illinois spokesman of the signal caller struggle during a phone interview Monday. "It's too early to know who will be starting. It will be Thursday or Friday before we know."

As of Monday, he said the ranking looked like this — McCartney (senior), Jim Kopatz (freshman), Ormsbee (freshman) and Jeff Hollenbach (junior).

Stauner, a former quarterback for the Pirates, will have to out-duel last year's No. 2 player, junior Bill Kleckner.

Illinois backers are hoping for a better break in the weather than was the case last year in Joliet.

"We sold 10,000 tickets and 3,000 people showed up in the quagmire," continued the Illinois spokesman. "Halfway through the second quarter, you just couldn't see because it was coming down so hard."

About 15,000 tickets have already been mailed out to alumni in the Chicagoland area, but Illinois is hoping for a bigger crowd than that.

"If it's a good warm night, there's no telling how many will be there," said the source. "One thousand people would probably show up just to see why the lights are turned on."

Another freshman is already performing very well in a starting capacity — George Pattee.

Pitching for Harper College, Pattee has been nearly untouchable in his three Skyway Conference appearances. He presently leads the league with a sparkling 0.41 earned run average.

The former Conant hurler has a 1-0 record, coming on a 2-0 victory over McHenry. Pattee had two shutout innings against Oakton and went 13 innings against Lake County before darkness halted a 1-1 tie. Considering the Lancers have the best overall record of the SC teams (13-2) and possibly the best hitting team, his limiting them to one run is all the more impressive.

Although the season is at the halfway point, Pattee's superb ERA is being closely pursued by marks of 0.66 and 0.69.

So this lanky 18-year-old will have to bear down the rest of the way to keep his lofty position.

The difference between pitching in high school and college, according to George, is "concentrating more. You have to work on each hitter. In high school you only have like three good hitters, but in junior college ball there are eight or nine good hitters."

"I try to throw to spots," continued this hurler of 18 strikeouts. "I try to keep it low and let them hit it into the ground."

Pattee doesn't worry about strikeouts, just keeping runners from scoring. So far he's been nearly perfect — only one in 24 leaped 20 feet, 4½ inches for fourth place and Prospect's only two points.

JIM DANDY. The only area winner Tuesday in the discus-throw with a 145-foot, 9-inch-toss. He helped the Falcons finish seventh, one-half point from a tie-for-fourth.

Demon netters fall to Deerfield, 5-0

In no real surprise, state contending Deerfield shutout Maine East, 5-0, in varsity tennis on Tuesday afternoon. The Blue Demons' record dropped to 1-7, the only win coming over Maine North.

Bob Weidner and Tim Brosnan were shutout at first and second singles respectively. Dave Mozena managed to score only a point while losing at third singles.

East's first doubles team of Ed Passen and Bill Jensen lost 6-4 and 6-2 to Deerfield's K. Baritz and M. Johnson. At second doubles, Jon Cwaygel and Kent Silbert lost both sets by identical 6-3 scores to W. Davis and B. Franke.

Cards post 9th victory in net play

Undefeated Arlington tuned up for its showdown with Prospect, Palatine just survived and Forest View nearly posted a shutout in an abbreviated Mid-Suburban League tennis schedule Tuesday.

ARLINGTON NOTCHES No. 9
Fremd's second doubles team of Tom Jensen and Dan Seeley provided the best test for the highly touted Cardinals, but Dave Mack and Todd Reese were up to the task with 6-3, 10-8 wins.

The rest of the matches saw the Cards only giving up 10 games:

Jim Merkler over Chris Laffey 6-1, 6-4; John Paczkowski over Rich Courtney 6-0, 6-1; Don Rodig over Mike Lincoln 6-2, 6-0; and Rex Miller and Craig VanGorp over Bob Norris and Mitch West 6-0, 6-2.

And so the Cardinals will carry a perfect 9-0 MSL mark into perhaps their toughest test in the league to date this afternoon with hosting Prospect. Although some feel Arlington will win the important conference dual, the question is by how much.

The Knights boast an excellent doubles team in Jeff Risteen and Charles Clemens. They also have other formidable players.

PIRATES NIP COUGARS
"I thought we had it," said Conant coach Roger McCoy of the dual with visiting Palatine. But Matt Borman, the Pirates' No. 1 man, rebounded from an opening set 6-4 loss to win 6-2, 6-3 over Buddy Edmondson. This gave the Pirates a 2-2 victory.

"He used the wind to his advantage," continued McCoy, who said the balls were being blown around pretty good by the 40 m.p.h. gusts. "That was the difference."

Mac Bennison accounted for the other singles win for Palatine. He stopped Eric Burseth 7-5, 6-1. Marty Rohr won second singles for Conant by handling Steve Sayers 6-1, 6-3.

Palatine ruled first doubles as Andy Hazel and Lou Sevey stopped Bruce Kochler and Rob Wade 6-2, 6-0. Vince Kirby and Kurt Eckert defeated Fred Hoegler and Dave Bais 6-2, 6-4.

FALCONS ENJOY VICTORY
Hosting Glenbard North, Forest View rolled to a 4-1 decision, only their second in MSL action.

The Falcons swept singles play as Joe Karwinski led the way at first singles with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Walt Keele. Greg Meyer stopped Jeff Howat 6-1, 6-0 at second singles. Charles Cooksley needed three sets before disposing of Dan Keele 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

Jeff Aebert and Chris Phillips just missed making it a complete team victory at first doubles. They lost to Mark Ables and Ben Homola 6-3, 6-0. Dave Jacob and Randy Router survived a scare in winning 3-6, 6-2, 6-0 over Walt Lewis and Frank Russ.

Falcons drop 3 tennis duals

Forest View, thanks to the play of Dave Jacob and Randy Router, avoided being shutout in one of its three dual meets on the Falcon courts Saturday.

The second doubles team beat John Gasky and Dave Colleta of Lake Park 6-1, 6-4, but the Falcons went down to defeat 4-1.

Glenbrook North and Whenton Central posted 5-0 victories over their hosts.

The Forest View fresh-soph team, lacking regular No. 1 player Bill Duggan because he had to play with the varsity, dropped all three duals by 3-2 scores. Pick up six point summaries

Lancers too much for Mustang netmen

Rolling Meadows, sky high from a fine second-place finish in the Addison Trail Invitational on Saturday, was brought down to earth quickly by visiting Lake Park Monday.

The Lancers, a strong tennis team from the Tri-County Conference, proved much too tough for the Mid-Suburban League entrant. The Mustangs fell 5-0 on both levels.

This was how the varsity action unfolded:

Duane Hemmerle over Don Bohac 6-3, 6-4; Tom Pauyl over Mark Shannon 6-7, 6-6; Dave McDonald over Stan Hiltz 6-4, 6-4; Dave Daugherty and Tom Tierney over Curt Anderson and Charles Fischer 6-1, 6-3; and Steve Peacock and Joe Perry over Larry Pressi and Paul Germano 7-6, 6-4.

BIG BOYS can sprint too, as shown by the unique Big Boy 100-yard dash in the Prospect Invitational Tuesday. Jim Glueckert of Arlington, shown here in the preliminaries, was best area boy in this event with :11.1 for fourth place in the finals.

low hurdles (nipping the old record by .01). Both are the best in the state this year.

Another record and one of the state's top marks was a 13-foot, 8-inch effort in the pole vault by Highland Park's John Putnam, break the old record by one inch.

The other record to fall was in a special, rare treat — the Big Boy 100-yard dash. Bill Saban of Lyons ran :10.6.

Kolman Plumbing golfs

to early lead in VFW

The first returns are in for the Arlington VFW Monday Night Golf League at Old Orchard.

Kolman Plumbing has taken a lead of one point over Kehe, Foy & Snelten Insurance in the 12-team division. Members of the leading team are Al McDougall, Bud Kreusch, Joe Kolman, Carlo Streblow, and Ernie Dettinger.

Tom Johann had low gross of 38 on the par 36 layout and Bill Becker had low net of 40-13-33 (par 34). Flight leaders are Johann (1), Virgil Rolfs (2), Leo Larson (3), Ed Piepenbrink (4), and Becker (5).

Competition was held on a cold, windy night that prompted league secretary

John Kehe to comment, "The only real oddity of the evening was that we were able to play the round at all under those conditions."

Team standings:

Summer cage camp at Maine East

Two summer recreational basketball camps for all Herald area youths who will be sixth through ninth graders next fall will be held this summer at Maine East high school.

Blue Demon head basketball coach Paul McClelland and his staff will conduct the separate three-week sessions.

A class for boys entering sixth or eighth grade next fall will be held beginning Tuesday, June 26, and running through Friday, July 13. The program will run from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. four days a week for the three week period.

Fundamentals will be stressed with games and scrimmages occurring after the first week. A swim in the Maine East pool will cap off each session.

Boys who will be in ninth grade next fall, regardless of the high school they will attend, may enroll in basketball classes scheduled for Tuesday, July 17, through Friday, August 3.

Costs for each session will be $21 or $7 per week. A youngster may make special arrangements to enroll for just a portion of either three-week camp.

Parents of all interested boys should contact McClelland by writing him at Maine East high school, Dempster and Potter Roads, Park Ridge, 60068.

Elk Grove boys football signup begins

The Elk Grove Village Athletic Association is having their football registrations in May before the vacation season starts in.

Registrations will be on Saturday, May 5; Saturday, May 12 and Saturday, May 19 from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at Elk Grove Bowl meeting room and Grant Wood School. All boys should register on these dates so that the proper equipment, fields, insurance, etc. may be in order for the practice season beginning in August.

All teams play under the Pop Warner Certificate of Charter. Age and weight groups are as follows: 130 and over (Cougars) age up to 15 not in high school, 108 team (Panthers) age up to 15 not in high school; 123 team (Knights) age to 13; 103 team (Saints) age to 12; 85 teams (Falcons) age to 11; PeeWee teams: 85 age 9 to 11 (Colts and Redskins); Instructional 75 ages 8 & 9 year olds.

All ages are as of Dec. 1 and weights as of the official weigh-in in September (before first game). For further information call Bob Curtin, Traveling Team Football Commissioner, 437-8164 or Chuck Steiger, PeeWee Commissioner, 439-0304.

Expansion program at Northbrook club

The Northbrook Racquet Club is undertaking a major expansion and building program which will make it the largest indoor tennis complex in the United States, with 16 indoor courts, nine outdoor courts, a swimming pool and sauna club.

Plans call for the construction of a second, eight-court indoor facility on a six-acre site one-half mile from the present club at 2995 Dundee Rd., Northbrook. The new building will be open for play at the beginning of the 1973-74 indoor tennis season Oct. 1.

Also included in the master plan is an outdoor swim and tennis facility on the new site. Featuring an Olympic-size swimming pool, cabana area and nine outdoor tennis courts, this phase of the project will be ready for member use in June, 1974.

The second indoor facility will closely resemble the architectural design and interior decor of the present Northbrook Racquet Club which opened for play on Oct. 1, 1971. Modifications to the new facility will include increased parking and larger observation lounge and locker room facilities. In addition, the original club will be resurfaced and relamped prior to Oct. 1.

Members will enjoy full privileges at both facilities and will have first option on summer swim and tennis club memberships.

The Northbrook Racquet Club is located in west Northbrook, convenient to both the Edens Expressway and the Illinois Toll Road. The facility has been considered a pioneer in indoor tennis club design. It was the first in the Chicago area to feature indirect metallic halide lighting, air conditioned courts and whirlpools and saunas in both the men's and women's locker rooms.

FLYING FALCON. Forest View's Mike Jule, consistently over 20 feet in the long jump, did it again Tuesday at the Prospect Invitational with a leap of 20 1/4 for fifth place in the 16-team field.

A Royal job

The Kansas City Royals had more trouble with White Sox pitching than any other team last year, getting an average of just 2.38 runs per nine innings. Detroit Tigers hitters were roughest on Sox pitchers, who had a 4.22 earned-run average against the Tigers.

THE NORTHBROOK Racquet Club will become the country's largest indoor tennis complex when a new eight-court indoor facility opens Oct. 1 at Dundee and Huehl Roads, Northbrook. Identical in most details to the club's first eight-court facility at 2995 Dundee Road, this Tudor-styled building is designed to blend with the surroundings in booming west Northbrook.

FORE! Wheeling's Vince Allendorf follows through after toured Buffalo Grove with nines of 39 and 41 for a sparkling 80. Wheeling finished in a tie for 13th with 331 strokes. (Photo by Bob Finch)

North gets better but golfers winless

The golf has been getting better, but golfers have yet to arrive over at Maine North.

Now winless in 10 shots, the Norsemen played their best golf to date during Monday's double dual loss to Niles East and Niles North.

Golfing at Rob Roy, the Norsemen shot 166, Niles North 164 and Niles East 156.

Maine's previous best had been a 163 shot just last week against Glenbrook South. The Norsemen have now dropped 12 strokes from a season beginning 178 against Provviso East.

In Monday's double dual, North's scorers were Don Snelton 38, Jim Geisheker 41, Bob Russo 43 and Tom Moran 44. Snelton and Russo are sophomores.

Fresh-soph results were Niles North 169, Niles East 170 and Maine North 171, by far the Norsemen's lowest total yet.

Maine South tops Forest View 5-0

Forest View made up its meet with Maine South Monday, but now the Falcons probably wish they hadn't.

The hosting Hawks won in straight sets, 5-0, with G. Mulpulos over Joe Karwinski 6-0, 6-0; B. Ellsworth over Greg Meyer 6-1, 6-0; J. Haas over Charles Cooksley 6-0, 6-2; D. Bergson and B. Lee over Jeff Aubert and Chris Phillips 6-2, 6-1; and B. Hildebrandt and R. Miller over Dave Jacob and Randy Router 7-5, 6-3.

The Forest View fresh-soph team also lost 5-0.

At Rolling Meadows

In the Thursday Eye Openers the Eau d' Odors captured first place with one week left to bowl ... The Wind Songs and the Kikus are battling for second ... This past week the Wind Songs fired both high series of 2012 and high game of 702.

Top bowlers for the week were Angie Pilcher 562-216, Claire Bakowski 518-191, Darleen Eaves 490-196, Lorraine Dall 485-195, Grace Lischling 177, Nora Amato 176, and Lorrie Forsyth 173.

At Rolling Meadows

In the Wednesday Morning Melodies high game and series went to the Silverbirds with 764-2170 ... Individually Betty Schmelzer had high series of 533-190, Pat Hofer 525-207, Gert Grogan 517-200, Claire Bakowski 501-190, Marilyn Graham 499-198, Marilyn Elliott 493-174, Barb Bader 176, Julie Grassly 176, Pat Sauter 174, Carol Werner 173, Pam Smith 170, Ila Hart and Janet Shampine 167 ... Gabriele Pietrowicz covered the 5-7 split and Dolores Sapp the 6-7-10.

Colt league signup

Seven teams are already entered in the Northwest Suburban Colt Traveling League which will kick off the season Sunday, June 10.

Mundelein, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Deerfield are ready to play, but the league is still looking for 1-3 additional teams to fill the schedule.

Teams from Park Ridge, Morton Grove, Skokie, Schaumburg, Niles and a few more are still holding entries open until Monday, May 7.

Plans for the 1974 season are for a 16-20 team league split into four equal divisions — north, south, east and west. Winners of the North-South Division and the East-West Division would meet in the best 2-of-3 playoff series. The two winners would then clash for the Suburban League Championship.

For further information, call Albert J. Ericson, President at 255-7276.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the PIs Gazebo the Spare-Os won the second half with the Hollywood Squares and Groveettes tied for second ...

Top scores were turned in by Marlene Jacobsen 547-196, Ardell Bleatman 545-230, Judie Dunne 527-191, Bea Nehlsen 503-177, Muriel Majewski 503-171, Judy Kramkowski 502-195, Mary Geary 482-185, Marlene Jones 481-173, Sharon Harrod 480-183, Iris Hobe 475, Marilyn Walsh 181, Glynys Domrowski 178, Barbara Conroy 177, and Ethel Copeland 174.

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

Canada to issue commemorative for Howe on May 16

The Canada Post Office May 16 will issue an 8-cent commemorative stamp marking the 100th anniversary of the death of Joseph Howe, former Premier and Lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia.

Born in Halifax in 1804, Howe was a man of many talents — poet, journalist, orator and politician. He applied these talents to the cause of government reform and became one of the most controversial and most influential Nova Scotians during the critical years prior to Confederation.

Howe's 37-year political career began in 1836 when he was elected to the provincial assembly. In 1869 he entered the federal government, accepting a cabinet seat as secretary of state for the Provinces, where he remained until May, 1873 when he was appointed Lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia. Three weeks later he died suddenly at Government House, Halifax.

THE 8-CENT Howe stamp was designed by Allan Fleming of Toronto. Ashton-Potter Ltd. will print 24 million stamps in two-color lithography.

Marginal inscriptions including the designer's name appear on the four corners of each pane of fifty stamps.

The entire production will be tagged.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to "Howe Stamp, First Day Cover Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0B5" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost, in Canadian funds, of the stamps to be affixed plus a five cent service charge for each cover requested. If the amount of the stamps totals 15 cents or more, the service charge is waived.

THE CANADA POST Office has added three issues to its 1973 stamp program. On July 20 an adhesive will mark the bicentennial of the arrival of the Scottish settlers at Pictou, Nova Scotia.

Two stamps will be released Aug. 2, marking the visit of Queen Elizabeth II and the meeting of the Commonwealth Heads of Government.

Details on these Canadian postal issues will be released later.

"WOW!" WAS THE word which burst forth from my 10-year-old son when he spied the sheet of Postal People stamps lying on the desk. He got away before I could get that transcribed into the King's English but usually it means he has been favorably impressed.

Finishing a letter to a friend, my 12-year-old daughter refused to lick the new stamp "with the ink on the back" and sallied forth for the dish cloth, a trip she considered a colossal waste of time and steps.

The 9-year-old quibbled about the mailman in a brown station wagon and the head of the house muttered "nonsense" when shown the adhesive side.

A woman at the post office refused to buy them because "they're too big" and a man felt they should have made them bigger and put the "propaganda" on the front.

The postal people issue will present album problems particularly for FDCs but then, it won't be the first time that's happened.

The stamps are colorful and certainly postal people deserve recognition for the battle they wage in getting the important mail through the volume of junk mail cluttering up the nation's post offices.

What's your reaction to the new issue? Your thoughts on a postcard or in a letter would be appreciated. Send them to Stamp Notes, Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Collecting Coins

Minerva, in Roman mythology, is the goddess of Wisdom, Skill, Contemplation, Spinning and Weaving, and of things related to mother earth. Her helmeted profile occupies the obverse of the famous $50-dollar gold commemorative issued in 1915 honoring the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Now she appears as the dominant figure on the obverse of a coin issued by the Republic of Minerva, a "Free Enterprise" state located roughly 400 miles south of the Fiji Islands at 23 degrees 40' South Latitude and 179 degrees West Longitude in the South Pacific.

ALTHOUGH the tiny republic is hardly more than a year old, it is already under seige by forces from neighboring Tonga. But the exiled government, in cooperation with the Minerva Development Bank Ltd., has authorized the striking and distribution of a limited edition of its coin in the denomination of 35 "Minerva dollars."

The obverse device is a sculptured bust of Minerva struck in pure gold (24 karat) against a background of mirror finish pure silver (.999 fine) with frosted lettering. The gold head should not be confused with the common principle of gold plating. The two metals are metallurgically united allowing the solid gold image to become a part of the silver surface.

A limited issue of 10,500 pieces has been placed on the 1973 Minerva coin. A maximum of 500 will remain with the Minerva Development Bank Ltd.; 4,000 pieces have been set aside for previous reservations, and 6,000 pieces are being made available to collectors-at-large. It sells at face value with a limit of 10 pieces to a buyer. Interested readers may write: Minerva Coin, The Letcher Mint, P.O. Box 107, Lancaster, Calif. 93534.

A HOUSE BANKING subcommittee has formally approved a Senate bill permitting private ownership of gold by any United States citizen. The ban against such ownership was placed on gold in 1934 and it prohibited anyone from owning gold in any form other than coins minted prior to 1934.

There is just one small catch to the bill's approval. It leaves the timing of the legislation to the discretion of the Nixon administration. However, the President is said to be in favor of removing the present restriction but prefers to withhold final approval until the international monetary system is more stabilized.

MRS. MARY BROOKS, director of the Mint, announced today that the Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint St., San Francisco, Calif. 94103, is accepting as of May 1, orders for the 1973 Eisenhower Proof Dollar.

Orders will be accepted only until the Mint's production quota is reached. All orders received prior to May 1 and after the production quota has been reached will be returned to the sender.

The price per coin is $10, which includes handling and shipping charges by first class registered mail. There is a limit of five coins per individual.

An announcement of the acceptance date of orders for the 1973 Uncirculated Silver Eisenhower Dollar will be made at a later date.

FIRE DEPARTMENTS from the Northwest suburbs will join with departments from the north and west suburbs to celebrate the third annual Fire Recognition Week Monday through Saturday at the Randhurst Shopping Center, Euclid Avenue and Elmhurst Road, Mount Prospect.

Nightly demonstrations will be conducted in the mall area and area residents may again be able to view the Rosemont Fire Department's 1923 Ahrens-Fox pump truck, shown in the foreground here.

35 departments to take part

Fire Recognition Week activities slated

Thirty-five fire departments from the north, northwest and western suburban areas will participate in the third annual Fire Recognition Week Monday through Saturday.

As in past years, exhibits and demonstrations will be available at the Randhurst Shopping Center mall, Euclid Avenue and Elmhurst Road in Mount Prospect. The Mount Prospect Fire Department will host the week of events.

Planned demonstrations, all beginning at 7:30 p.m., are a paramedic program Monday by Mount Prospect firemen, a house fire furniture salvage operation Tuesday by Buffalo Grove firemen, water safety on Wednesday by Mount Prospect firemen, home use of fire extinguishers Thursday by Des Plaines firemen and cardiopulmonary resuscitation on Friday by Arlington Heights firemen.

SPECIAL FEATURES are planned for Saturday, May 12. The day at Randhurst will begin at 10:30 a.m. when a number of fire departments will compete for the "Randhurst Trophy" in a water fight contest. Various firefighting techniques and equipment will be exhibited, starting at 1 p.m. In conjunction with the skill show, 2,000 plastic fire helmets will be given away to children. About 40 vehicles will be exhibited.

Prior to the "fire happenings" at Randhurst, there will be a parade of fire vehicles north on Rt. 83 to the west side of Randhurst. The parade will begin about 10 a.m.

The last event Saturday will be the 23rd annual Firemen's Ball, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Volunteer Fire Department. The ball will be on the Randhurst mall after the Velvet Notes begin the music at 9 p.m.

The purpose of Fire Recognition Week is to promote fire safety in homes and businesses and to promote better communication between the fire departments and the residents.

Paddock wins award for benefit coverage

A certificate of recognition for news coverage of the annual Candy Day for the Blind was presented to Paddock Publications Tuesday night by members of the Arlington Heights Lions Club.

Members of the Lions traditionally raise funds each year for the benefit of the organization's many projects for those afflicted by blindness.

The award was presented to Paddock Publications by Carl Weinrich, president of the Arlington Heights Lions Club. Accepting the certificate was Robert Y. Paddock, executive vice president of Paddock Publications Inc.

YOUR MONEY...

In the late '60's and through the 1970's, a tremendous boom in college enrollments is being planned for by the nation's colleges and universities. The children of the immediate post-war years will swell the coming classrooms and dormitories to overflowing.

Yet even with the rapid expansion of facilities and long-range planning, authorities admit it's going to become more difficult for a student to get into the college of his choice.

This is a factor every parent should bear in mind. A college education is going to become even more important in the decade ahead... and long-range family planning is vital to make that education possible.

An important part of that planning is regular savings with Mount Prospect Federal Savings & Loan Association where you enjoy insured safety and the higher dividends that make your savings add up faster. Open that "college fund" savings account with us now!

The Volunteer bureau

'It may take awhile, but they'll find it...'

"The volunteer is extra special. He does not replace the teacher or the teacher aide. Ask for whatever you want; it may take a while to find what you want, but ask," said Diane Olsen of Palatine's Lincoln School as she spoke to the faculty of Lincoln School in her role as volunteer coordinator.

The volunteer coordinator in each Dist. 15 school serving Palatine and Rolling Meadows fills a vital role in the formation and execution of a volunteer program. Mrs. Olsen is the Volunteer Services committee chairman of the PTA at Lincoln School and received her training as coordinator from the Volunteer Service Bureau, Northwest Cook County. Her requests are handled through the Lois Moore branch office serving Palatine, Rolling Meadows, and part of Hoffman Estates. Helen Gustafson and Ruth Stipe are branch directors in Palatine.

The Lincoln School PTA, headed by Ann Fuller, assists principal Larry Stilgebaumer in the operation of the school through the Volunteer Services in the Library-Resource Center, story telling, picture lady, and motor facilitation programs. Kindergarten registration and lunchroom supervision also use volunteers.

Mrs. Olsen has placed volunteers in clerical and in tutoring work, in the Resource Center. They also catalogue, file, tell stories and work with the math and reading games.

THE ENRICHMENT volunteer program has brought programs into the school such as the folk singer who was the request of a second grade teacher, the architect who was the request of a sixth grade teacher, the Australian consulate who spoke on the Aborigines of Australia for a fourth grade class, the former resident of Alaska who shared her experiences with another fourth grade class, and the Rabbi who spoke of the Kibbutz program of Israel.

"You meet the most interesting people in this job," Mrs. Olsen says as she prepared for another program utilizing volunteers on May 10 and 11 at which time 40 different careers will be presented to the students as an educational exposure. "Most of those 40 volunteers will be from the parents of the students at Lincoln School."

At Lincoln School not all the volunteers are parents of students. Of special interest is Dorothy Goldberg, a grandmother, who has no children in the school system. Mrs. Goldberg is a member of PTA, however, and is also a very active volunteer at the school in various capacities such as the motor facilitation program, clerical aid, tutoring.

"She is very much a part of the team," said Mrs. Olsen, who is the mother of two children.

PRINCIPALS OF schools served by the Volunteer Service Bureau are now on the lookout for their volunteer coordinators for the 1973-74 school year. Some of the volunteer coordinators will be repeating their assignment as will Mrs. Olsen, but some are moving on to other assignments. Training of coordinators in the fall will be geared to both principal and coordinator although the school which has a principal and coordinator already familiar with a good volunteer program is more able to start early in the school year with a functioning program. Some schools will be conducting inservice training for coordinators at this time while the retiring coordinator is still with the school. The Arlington Heights PTA Council has developed a chairmanship on volunteer services at each school level for the year 1973-74 similar to the procedure in Lincoln School. Marty Kraybill, coordinator at Ridge School in Arlington Heights, is the Volunteer Services chairman at the council level.

The branch offices of the bureau will be closed as the end of the school year approaches. Only the central office will remain open through the summer months, Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Requests for volunteer help for the summer months are already listed in the offices, and information about summer volunteer jobs can be acquired by calling. The Elk Grove branch office will be closing this week, but the Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, and Palatine offices will be open for the rest of May.

Do-It-Yourself

If it's time to put on summer-weight clothing then it also is time to store woolens. Suits, sweaters and blankets are generally put away until fall this time of the year. Just casually hang them in a closet or stuffing them in a chest is a way to invite damage from moths.

If you've gotten away with it before, consider yourself lucky and don't tempt fate again.

First of all, it's the larva that does the damage, not the moth. Larvae feed on wool and other animal fibers (down, mohair, feathers, fur). The adult moth fluttering about isn't eating anything.

FIRST STEP is prevention. Keeping everything clean will cut down or eliminate infestation. Lint, dust and hair that has accumulated give the larvae something to feed on and hide in. Store clothing away in a dirty closet and you are asking for trouble.

Vacuum storage areas regularly. Pay special attention to cracks, baseboards, moldings and other surfaces that are hard to reach.

You can get rid of insects, their eggs and larvae from fabrics by cleaning them. Frequent brushing and sunning whenever possible will help. Dry cleaning will get rid of them.

When you brush garments and hang them in sun and air, be sure to get into seams, pockets, cuffs, etc.

CLEANING AND AIRING will get rid of what is there but doesn't prevent reinfestation. There are insecticide solutions which can be sprayed on to prevent infestation. Read the labels carefully and follow instructions. Sprays used generally contain methoxychlor, Srobane or Perthane.

Apply by first hanging the clothing and blankets on a line and then spraying lightly and evenly. Do not soak the fabric. Too much spray will leave a white deposit after it dries.

Never treat infants' apparel or blankets unless they are to be stored. Before using again, launder or dry clean.

After treating woolen articles, allow them to dry before storing.

YOU CAN PROTECT woolen articles to be stored by using moth crystals, flakes or balls. You must use a sufficient amount and the storage must be airtight. As the chemical evaporates it gives off a vapor which kills moths. It is not the smell that repels them and the fact that you can smell the chemical is no indication there is enough of it.

In trunks or closets the recommended amount is one pound for each 100 cubic feet of space. Since the vapor is heavier than air, place the chemical high — a quantity on a shelf, a bag or perforated container hung from a clothes rod. Such storage areas should be sealed shut.

Woolen articles can also be protected by first making sure they are not infested and then wrapping them and sealing them tightly.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD — One of the wonders of nature, a solar eclipse, was given special coverage by NBC-TV in 1970 as it occurred in the Western Hemisphere, and video's remarkable potential in the scientific field was illustrated.

Next month, NBC-TV again will offer lengthy special coverage of a solar eclipse, a total one, as it occurs June 30 over Kenya in East Africa.

And, with the use of a low light level television camera, the network says it expects to be able to present "human and animal reactions to total darkness in the afternoon (4 p.m. Kenya time)."

This eclipse will not be visible in America except on video. NBC-TV notes: "On (June 30), the sun will rise in eclipse off Venezuela, cut a track across Africa and set in eclipse over the Indian Ocean."

OF ITS SPECIAL camera, the network says it "can produce pictures in near darkness — down to the starlight level. RCA developed the camera, and this will be its first use for a non-military purpose."

"In addition to low light level capability, the camera also performs in bright sunlight and is relatively immune to damage even when it is pointed directly at the sun."

The origination point for NBC-TV's eclipse reporting will be a site on the eastern shore of Lake Rudolph in Kenya, and correspondents John Chancellor and Jack Perkins are scheduled to be on hand there.

That site is also where about 80 American scientists are expected to be to observe and study the eclipse. The network says the location is "a sparsely inhabited area in which tribesmen live in thatched huts and survive by herding animals and cattle."

NBC-TV's first scheduled special report on the eclipse is a 20-minute preview in prime time on Friday, June 29, with a live satellite feed from Kenya planned for inclusion.

Then, on the following day, the day of the eclipse, the setup is for a 10-minute broadcast, "almost entirely live by satellite," starting at 8:30 a.m. EDT. Says the network: "The actual eclipse will come at 9 a.m. to 9:05 a.m. EDT, a period of totality regarded as unusually long. There is a maximum possible time, a little over 7 minutes and 10 seconds."

The same night, the plans call for a 75-minute broadcast "recapping the eclipse and showing its effects on the primitive peoples and wildlife in the Lake Rudolph Areas."

Between 30 and 40 nations are expected to receive video's eclipse reporting, and NBC-TV's coverage, headed by executive producer Robert Northshield, who also was at the helm when the network aired the 1970 event — will be in collaboration with the European Broadcasting Union.

IN ANOTHER broadcast in the area of science, CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" series this Sunday will be devoted entirely to the subject of cancer, its possible cures and causes.

CBS-TV, by the way, this summer is moving "60 Minutes," a notable public affairs program, from its current early Sunday evening hour to prime time on Fridays, for 11 weeks, starting June 29th, with its broadcasts in this period beginning at 8 p.m. in the East and West, and an hour earlier in the Midwest.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Forty years ago Ted Lightner of New York was one of the five or six best players in the world. He still plays rubber bridge regularly and in our opinion is now the best octogenarian player anywhere.

Through the years his game has been characterized by soundness rather than brilliance, but once in while he comes up with a real barn-burner play.

He hit on the happy choice of the nine of clubs opening against South's four-spade contract. East promptly collected three club tricks and it was up to Ted to discard on the third one.

He thought quite a while and finally got rid of his ace of hearts.

East looked surprised. A kibitzer almost fell off his chair. Dummy laughed uproariously, but declarer was strangely silent. He knew what was coming and he knew his contract was doomed.

Sure enough, East led a fourth club and Lightner's queen of trumps was the setting trick.

Was his play a lucky guess? Not at all. He was sure to beat the contract this way. He wasn't sure any other way.

Klugman, Randall looking to new vistas, though

'The Odd Couple' enjoys living the role

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — It's hard for Jack Klugman and Tony Randall to remember back to the days BTOS — Before "The Odd Couple." All they know now, Tony says, is that it's getting weird.

"We seem to be living our parts," Tony says. "And I'm not sure if we were this way before the show. But now Jack is messy and I'm clean, Jack drinks beer and I drink wine, Jack smokes cigars and I don't smoke at all."

"He's a real Oscar and I'm a real Felix."

Maybe that's the price of success in two such strongly-conceived parts. Maybe all actors who have to live with their characters so long and so intimately would get that way. Or maybe it's because deep down inside Jack and Tony were really Oscar and Felix all along.

THERE'S NO DOUBT about "The Odd Couple's" success. As Tony says, "The ratings are too good to be true." It seems certain to run for a few more years, which is all Tony wants out of it.

"By then," he says, "I'll be well enough off financially that I'll never have to take a job I don't like."

He's already talking about jobs he'd like to take, when and if. He says he's heard that the Metropolitan Opera in New York is thinking of starting a "Piccolo Met," a little Met, to do smaller operas as opposed to Grand Opera. He says he'd like to become a part of that project.

"I love the show more than anything I've ever done," he says. "We get to rehearse and we get to do it in front of a live audience. I even have a say in the casting. All would be well — if it was only done in New York."

"But they figured it out for me — it would cost $5,000 more per show to do it in New York. That's $120,000 a year and that's too much."

He prefers the East because he likes what New York has to offer — the opera, the museums, the art galleries.

"Here in California," he says, "when I have no roles to do, I can't find anything to do with myself."

So far, his time in California has been busy, and he has slight thumb-twiddling time.

"ALL MY SUCCESS has meant to me here," he says, "is that I work 14 hours a day. We have found that we can't get good quality if we shoot fast so we work long days. Besides, both Jack and I would rather work than sit around here doing absolutely nothing at all."

Apropos of nothing at all you might be interested in Tony's least favorite time of all time: "This program has been filmed in front of a live audience."

And, when you think about it, he's right — it is redundancy rampant. As he says, "What do they mean? A live audience as opposed to a dead one?"

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON — Even his political enemies must concede that President Nixon has managed to get his way on a remarkably high percentage of issues.

It does appear, however, that in his advocacy of the "work ethic" Nixon is on the losing side.

Various polls taken during the past year indicate that work is no more popular now than it was before the President began extolling it.

To the contrary, in some areas work has even fewer fans than it did six months ago.

This loss of esteem for work is particularly prevalent among people who have jobs. Which suggests the work ethic may be based partly on myth.

IT HAS LONG been assumed the main opposition to work was coming from the unemployed — that aversion to work was the primary reason for joblessness.

But recent surveys show it is the jobholders who are giving work a bad name. They are the ones you hear badmouthing work, saying work isn't all it's cracked up to be and uttering other heresies.

In contrast, a surprisingly large number of the unemployed are willing to put in a good word for work. However, they may be under the influence of nostalgia.

If confronted with work, they might not be any more fond of it than those who actually do it.

AT ANY RATE, it is clear that merely speaking well of work, as the President has been doing, will not of itself revive the work ethic. What is needed is research to determine why work has been losing status.

In that connection, a study made by Dr. Edicott Torporolt of the American Sloth Foundation may be instructive.

Torporolt, a leading authority on infidelity, persuaded a group of volunteers to perform various types of work while wearing electrodes to monitor their responses.

"Although men have toiled since the dawn of creation, little is known about the basic nature of work," Torporolt said.

"Our Puritan forefathers rejected the concept of work as a physical function and gave it moral values in keeping with the precepts of their day."

"THIS HAS LED to all sorts of hang-ups and guilt feelings that tend to prevent people from enjoying work. Therefore, our experiments involved work performed by consenting adults purely for pleasure."

His research disclosed that in seven cases out of nine work required a greater degree of effort than is demanded by leisure.

"Obviously that is the real reason why more and more people are turning against work," Torporolt said. "It makes them tired."

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Rape, Incest, Infidelity: sexual crises. Common to men and women of any age — any socio-economic background.

According to Dr. Dover Roth, staff psychiatrist with Forest Hospital, the sexual crisis is a common occurrence in our society.

"These crises are isolated incidences of sexual trauma," Dr. Roth explained, "and they often lead to chronic sexual problems as an outgrowth. For instance, in the case of a rape, there is the initial crisis. A woman's pride and self esteem take a real blow and often there is actual physical abuse to the woman who is raped."

"The woman faces humiliation particularly if she reports the incident. The people who learn she has been raped often act as if the women had invited her attacker on. She feels ashamed."

"Then she's faced with another crisis: the memory of the rape. She responds to so-called normal sexual overtures with fear and distrust. She cannot enjoy sex even if it's the kind society sanctions. This is often a long-term sexual crisis for the woman who has been raped."

DR. ROTH SAID rape is probably the most traumatic sexual crisis a person goes through but he added there are a number of other sexual crises.

"Acute impotence is another crisis. This is a common occurrence. In fact impotence happens to almost every man at one time or another in his life."

"He may develop impotence because he's had too much alcohol to drink or he's taken some drugs. He may be with a strange woman or be under mental strain or fatigued. Any of these situations can cause impotence. So can an X-rated movie."

"A man may watch an X-rated movie, think he should perform as well as the man he saw on the screen and instead — maybe out of the fear of failing — he ironically develops impotence."

DR. ROTH ALSO cited infidelity as a sexual crisis. "When one spouse cheats on another and is discovered — there is a blow to the pride of the person who has been cheated on. A couple almost invariably reacts with hurt pride and anger and the incident usually precipitates one of two things: divorce or a greater understanding between the partners."

Who usually handles these sexual crises? "People without training," Dr. Roth explained, "like parents, ministers, school officers or the police. Many times these people don't realize the emotional consequences of a sexual crisis and they don't know how to help the victim deal with it."

"Anyone who comes into contact with the victim of a sexual crisis," Dr. Roth added, "should be aware that an emotional crisis always accompanies the 'act' and he should be non-judgmental toward the victim. That's probably the best help a non-trained person can give."

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Just what is bursitis? How does it work and what causes it? The doctors say I have it, but the medicine they have given me hasn't done any good. I can move my arms freely, but they sure are sore and have terrible pains.

Dear Reader — Bursitis refers to inflammation of one or more bursae. The bursae are little sac-like structures around the joints and tendons.

The material which makes up a bursa looks very much like the plastic material that is used for plastic bags and food containers.

These sheets of material encapsulate the joints and tendons and contain fluid. In this way they cushion the joints and provide smooth movement.

When this membrane becomes inflamed, it affects the joints as pleurisy affects the chest. Inflammation of a bursa irritates nerve endings which in turn affects the muscles in the area. There is usually muscle spasm around the joints involved and the pain tends to limit movement, as you no doubt observed.

THERE ARE multiple causes for bur-sitis and very often the actual cause is never determined. It is often treated symptomatically, providing heat and medicines that relieve pain. Sometimes, depending on the location and severity, doctors inject medicine into the joint space involved.

This may include Novocain as a pain killer and steroid hormones like cortisone. Sometimes such injections have miraculous results and help relieve the problem immediately.

It is important to maintain full range of motion in the presence of bursitis to prevent a frozen joint that would require considerable effort to regain its normal function.

In general, the treatment of bursitis is less than satisfactory in many instances, and no doubt this stems from our lack of knowledge about its cause, and therefore, the necessity to rely on symptomatic treatment rather than eliminating the cause.

America's original form of democracy

Town meeting—alive and kicking in New England

by TOM TIEBE

PEMBROKE, Mass.—When the last of the stragglers found a folding chair in the Center School gymnasium, moderator John Walsh opened the meeting with the inevitable announcement:

"Will the owner of a green station wagon, license number G3589, please move his car. It's blocking traffic in the parking lot."

That done, Walsh gavelled the ancient rites (Pembroke was founded in the early 1700s) to order. Bang, bang. Later, when the 350 voters present began to get restless and feisty, Walsh was forced to bring out a three-foot gavel with a six-inch head to preserve Robert's Rules of Order. Yuk. Most of the time, however, the only disorders were coughs, sneezes, sighs and the ringing of the dadratted microphone.

The three-foot gavel aside, there were precious few jollies this evening. The Town Meeting, as one official kept telling a visitor, "is no picnic." More than $8 million worth of community expenses had to be considered for an 18-month period (normally, finance decisions are for 12 months but a change in fiscal year dating necessitated an extension; and considering the sum, many there were downright grim.)

True, some of the budget would be coming from "revenue sharing," and special interests kept reminding the audience that this raise or that raise "would only add a dollar or so to the rate," but the mostly middle-aged, mostly middle-class voters had little to really cheer.

"A DOLLAR HERE, a dollar there," grumped one resident, "if taxes go up much more we might as well move to Russia."

That, of course, was the ultimate lament. These were solid Americans assembled, the kind who put flag decals on their windshields. Pembroke was a patriotic community when the Indians were teaching the Pilgrims about corn. All signs in this area seem to lead either to the Miles Standish monument or Plymouth Rock. And many man hereabouts has preserved his World War II uniform faithfully in an attic place of honor.

Alas, he protested too much. About the time he rose, for the umpteenth time, to question the need for new fire hoses, the frustrated Moderator brought in his big gavel: "Mr. Jaahdon, how would you like to serve on a committee to inspect the old hoses?" After that, Jordan kept his seat and measure after measure passed virtually without questions.

Indeed, nippicking was not welcome at the Town Meeting. There simply wasn't enough time. The 1973-74 budget catalogue ran 56 pages, covering everything from a multimillion dollar school budget to a $247 salary for the herring fisheries superintendent. Besides, as the moderator repeatedly reminded, the budget proposals had been worked on "all year" by a finance committee made up of townpeople.

"So unless you have really serious objection, let's move along."

Move they did. Before the evening was over, the conservative, penny-watching Pembrokians had not only voted for the proposed expenditures but added to them. The apparent contradiction between conviction and action, was not unusual.

"THEY DO IT EVERY year," said Mrs. Birchmore, who doubles as Pembroke's news correspondent. "I don't think they want to but they have to. Nobody likes to look like a cheapskate in front of his neighbors. So unless there's a groundswell of resentment against an item, it will just breeze through. It's one of the weaknesses of the Town Meeting."

There were other weaknesses apparent in this meeting. The audience comprised, at best, only about eight per cent of the eligible voters. Citizens with good points lacked the articulateness to express them clearly. And the weight of the proposed budget was too massive for most people to deal with intelligently; many in the audience, in fact, had not read the proposals before coming to the meeting.

"The big thing is," said one old-timer present, "a lot of these damn fools have their priorities confused. Last year we had a two-and-a-half hour floor fight over the feeding of ducks in the pond, but nobody said nothing when we voted on nearly three million dollars for the school system. Damn, I don't know. They don't seem to pay attention. Somebody's always arguing sewage when drainage is being considered."

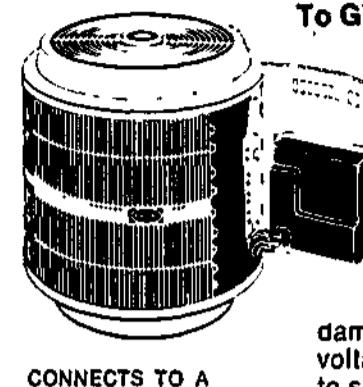

Despite the deficiencies, though, Pembroke is more than satisfied with its Town Meeting. There has been talk of change, perhaps to a more manageable "representative" meeting, but few are really interested.

Except after a long manual session when the gymnasium air is stale, and the rumps are tired from sitting, and spirits are exhausted; then someone or another will stand up shortly before midnight, and, only half in jest, move "that this blasted meeting be adjourned until the moon comes over the mountain."

He's a Herald Carrier boy.
He's our hero!

He's our "anchor man" performing the last task in a team relay of effort to keep the Herald readers and the Northwest suburbs the best informed possible.

Without him, all the labors of reporters, editors, photographers, salesmen, production people, pressmen and many others would be futile.

Without him, hundreds of advertisers would wait in vain for customer response.

He shoulders a big responsibility; and he's up to it! A good student, honest, dependable, energetic: these are the attributes of a Herald carrier. Small wonder that we take this time and place to recognize his sizable contribution.

We have over 2000 such carriers and each one of them is . . . OUR HERO!

Old Fashioned Variety Show

Home bread baking, once a domestic necessity, is again gaining great popularity — but with a difference. Baking bread is now recognized as one of the most rewarding of the culinary arts, and as an outlet for creative expression, has won a new generation of converts.

Most often associated with the gold prospectors of California and the Klondike — indeed they were namesakes — sourdough bread was a frontier favorite. Many a batch of sourdough starter crossed the plains in covered wagons, a treasured possession not to be left behind in the westward march. Today it's easy to make your own starter with commercially packaged yeast, then use it in Golden Gingham Sourdough Bread. The tops of these handsome loaves are slashed to resemble checked gingham, and the characteristic sourdough flavor is complemented by the addition of hearty, whole grain quick or old fashioned oats.

The homespun virtues of quick breads like Bran-Oatmeal Muffins shouldn't be overlooked. A hot bread can make even the simplest meal memorable, and these classic muffins, flavored with molasses, will be welcome at breakfast, lunch or supper.

Bake your way back through history to a time when bread was baked in brick ovens in fireplace walls with our recipe for Anadama Batter Bread. Legend tells us that anadama bread originated in New England, cradle of our American culinary tradition. A hardy fisherman was forced to do the cooking in his household because his wife was too lazy. One day, experimenting with the familiar corn meal mush, he added molasses and flour and baked the mixture. The resulting bread was named "anna, damn her" — since modified by polite society. Our version has been updated to allow quicker preparation by the yeast batter method (no kneading or shaping required), but the classic flavor components of enriched corn meal and molasses are retained.

There's a bit of spicy glamour in Cinnamon Swirl Loaves. Honey lends subtle sweetness to the basic oatmeal yeast dough, and a filling of brown sugar and cinnamon is rolled up inside as the loaves are shaped.

Our next recipe is a real bread winner — Quick Buttermilk Bread. Quick or old fashioned oats and chopped nuts add flavor and texture to this homely loaf.

Whole Wheat-Oatmeal Bread can be shaped in 2 large loaves or 8 miniature ones. Quick or old fashioned oats, whole wheat flour and wheat germ contribute whole grain goodness and texture to this hearty, flavorful bread.

SOURDOUGH STARTER

1 pkg. yeast
2 cups warm water or milk

2 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar

Combine all ingredients in large glass or ceramic bowl. Cover with cheese-cloth and let stand at room temperature 24 to 48 hours, stirring occasionally. Cover loosely with plastic wrap and store in refrigerator. Allow to come to room temperature before using. Use or replenish every 7 to 10 days. To replenish, add equal amounts of warm water or milk and flour. Let stand at room temperature until mixture begins to bubble, then cover and refrigerate. Starter can be frozen if you do not plan to use for several weeks. Allow to come to room temperature before using.

GOLDEN GINGHAM SOURDOUGH BREAD

Makes 2 loaves

1 pkg. dry yeast
1 1/2 cups warm water
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 cup butter or margarine
4 to 4 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 1/2 cups sourdough starter
3 1/2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

Soften yeast in 1/4 cup of the warm water. Pour remaining 1 cup water over sugar, salt and butter. Stir in 2 cups of the flour, sourdough starter, oats and softened yeast. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.

Knead on floured board or canvas until smooth, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl. Lightly grease surface of dough. Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; shape into 2 large round loaves. Place on greased cookie sheets. Let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 40 minutes. Slash tops with sharp knife or kitchen shears. Bake in preheated hot oven (400 degrees) 35 to 40 minutes. Cool on wire racks.

BRAN-OATMEAL MUFFINS

Makes 12 medium-sized muffins

3/4 cup bran cereal
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup molasses
1 egg
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

Combine bran cereal and milk to soften. Beat together butter and molasses. Add egg; mix well. Add bran and milk mixture. Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt.

Add sifted dry ingredients to bran mixture, stirring just until moistened. Stir in oats.

Drop mixture into greased medium-sized muffin cups. Bake in preheated hot oven (400 degrees) 15 to 18 minutes.

WHOLE WHEAT-OATMEAL BREAD

Makes 2 large loaves or 8 miniature loaves

2 1/4 cups milk
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon salt
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 1/2 to 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups whole wheat flour
2 pkg. dry yeast
2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1/2 cup wheat germ

Heat milk, butter, salt and sugar to lukewarm. Pour into large mixer bowl. Add 1 cup all-purpose flour and 1 cup whole wheat flour; beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Add remaining whole wheat flour and yeast; beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Stir in oats, wheat germ and enough additional all-purpose flour to make a soft dough.

Knead on floured board or canvas until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball. Place in greased bowl; lightly grease surface of dough. Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; divide in half. Roll one half to form a 14 x 7-inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter; sprinkle with half of filling made by combining sugar and cinnamon. Starting with short side, roll up as for jelly roll.

Punch dough down; shape into 2 large or 8 miniature loaves. Place in greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 or 4 1/2 x 2 3/4-inch loaf pans. Let rise in warm place until nearly double in size. Bake in pre-heated moderate oven (375 degrees) 45 minutes for large loaves or 30 minutes for miniature loaves. Remove from pans immediately; cool on wire rack.

CINNAMON SWIRL LOAVES

Makes 2 loaves

1 pkg. dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
2 cups milk, scalded
1/4 cup honey
1 tablespoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
5 1/2 to 6 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

Filling:
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons cinnamon

For dough, soften yeast in warm water. Combine corn meal, molasses, shortening, salt and soda in large mixer bowl. Stir in boiling water; cool to lukewarm. Add scalded milk over honey, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast and oats. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; divide in half. Roll one half to form a 14 x 7-inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter; sprinkle with half of filling made by combining sugar and cinnamon. Starting with short side, roll up as for jelly roll.

Place in greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2-inch loaf pan. Brush lightly with melted shortening. Repeat with other half of dough. Cover; let rise until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in pre-heated moderate oven (375 degrees) 45 to 50 minutes. Remove from pan; brush with melted butter. Cool. Drizzle with thin confectioners sugar glaze if desired.

ANADAMA BATTER BREAD

Makes 1 loaf

1 pkg. dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water
1 cup enriched cornmeal
1/2 cup dark molasses
3 tablespoons shortening
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/4 cup boiling water
1 egg
2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Soften yeast in warm water. Combine corn meal, molasses, shortening, salt and soda in large mixer bowl. Stir in boiling water; cool to lukewarm. Add softened yeast, egg and 1 cup of flour; beat 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 vigorous strokes with a wooden spoon. Stir in remaining flour. Spread batter into a well greased 2-quart casserole. Cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 1 hour. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 to 55 minutes. Cool on wire rack about 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool thoroughly. (Bread will slice better if wrapped tightly and stored one day before slicing.)

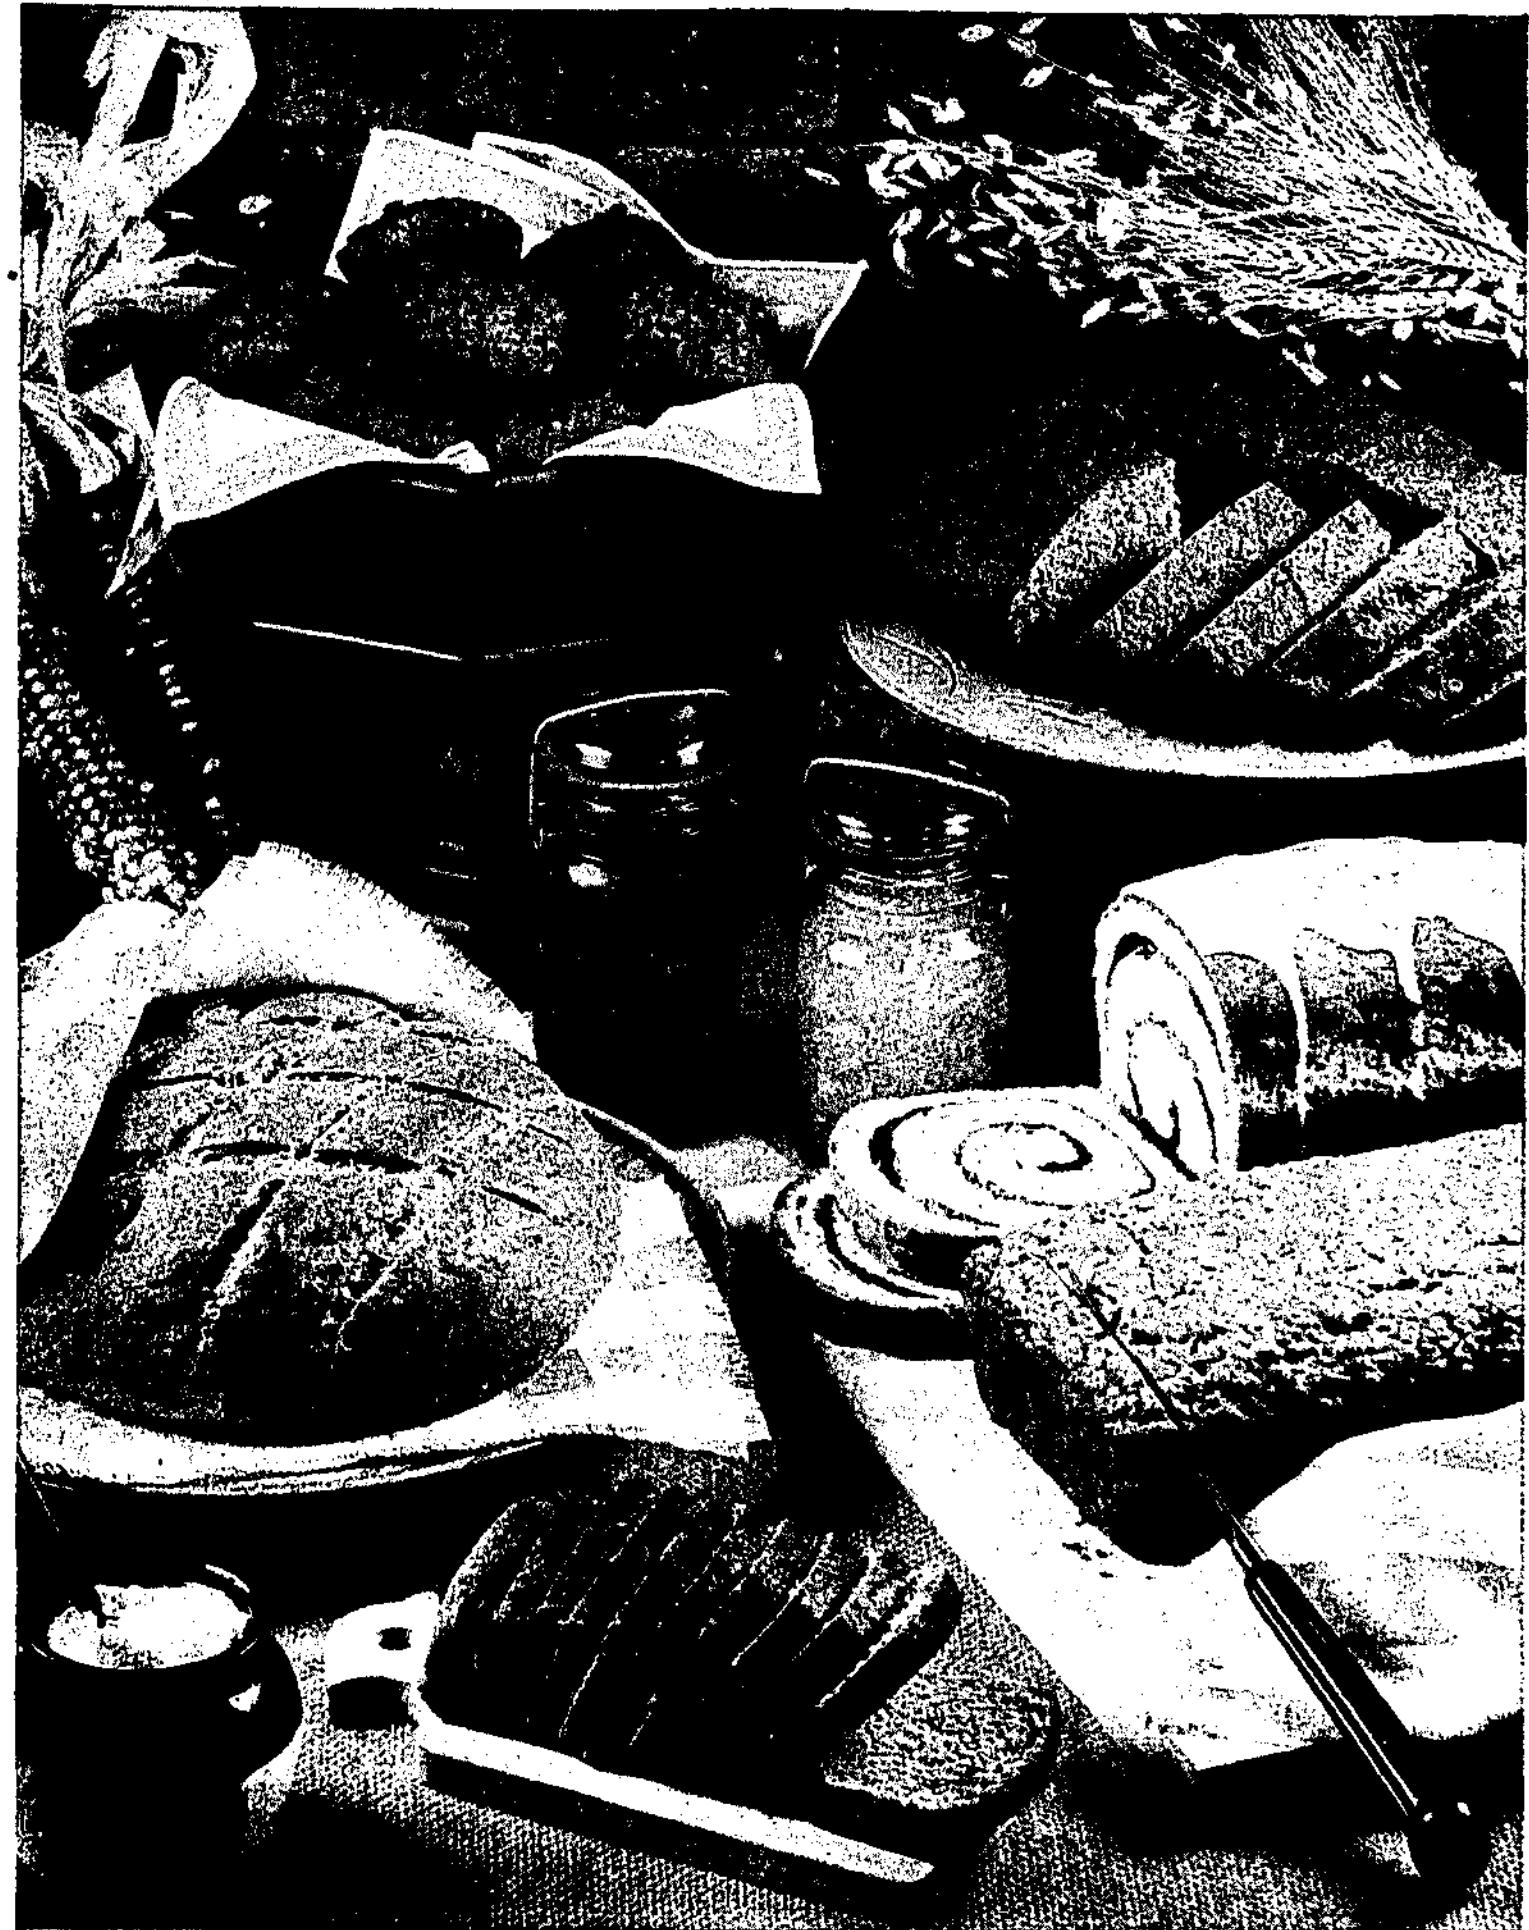

QUICK BUTTERMILK BREAD

Makes 1 loaf

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 1/2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup vegetable oil
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup chopped nutmeats

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and brown sugar into bowl. Stir in oats. Add remaining ingredients; stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour batter into greased 9x5-inch loaf pan.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 to 55 minutes. Cool on wire rack about 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool thoroughly. (Bread will slice better if wrapped tightly and stored one day before slicing.)

Mrs. John Dunn

She adds fruit filling to cake

lows an angel food cake and fills it with a mixture of gelatin, fruit and whipped cream. She simply replaces the top and frosts the entire cake with whipped cream creating an elegant dessert for birthdays and special occasions.

by LOIS SEILER

A luscious fruit-filled angel food cake is bound to become the highlight of birthday parties and special occasions this spring.

The recipe is a favorite of Mrs. John R. Dunn, Jr., of Mount Prospect, who finds it versatile enough for year round use.

She cuts a slice from the top of the cake, hollowing out the remainder to form a shell. This is filled with a gelatin, fruit and whipped cream mixture. The top is replaced, and the cake is frosted with whipped cream.

"During the summer months, this dessert is great made with fresh fruit," Barbara said. During the winter months she uses frozen strawberries or raspberries. This is added to red gelatin with whipped cream folded in. The filling is a pretty pink, making the cake look extra-special when cut in slices. The Dunns' children, Karen, 12, Jeffrey, 9, and Briar, 6 like it for their birthdays.

Of Italian descent Barbara automatically cooks with lots of Italian seasonings, adding garlic, bay leaf and oregano to dishes without even thinking about it. On special occasions she even makes her own pasta for spaghetti, ravioli or manicotti using a method learned from her mother. However, one of her favorite Italian recipes was acquired from her husband's Bohemian grandmother, who also appreciated tasty Italian Food.

Called Chicken Milano, Barbara terms it similar to Chicken Cacciatore, yet more appealing in flavor. Along with garlic, onion, celery, green pepper and oregano, the tomato sauce is seasoned with wine and Parmesan cheese. The chicken is cooked in this sauce until tender.

Heaped over a platter of buttered noodles also seasoned with cheese, Chicken Milano makes a colorful entree. As accompaniments Barbara suggests a salad tossed with vinegar and oil dressing and dinner rolls.

Having a husband who is adventurous in his eating habits has been an incentive for Barbara to try different ethnic dishes. Her enjoyment of cooking is obvious from her membership in two gourmet groups sponsored by Mount Prospect Newcomers Club. She made a unique bean sport salad recently for one of the groups which met with immediate success.

Fresh spinach and romaine lettuce are combined with canned bean sprouts, water chestnuts, hard-boiled eggs and crumbled bacon, and all is tossed with a sweet-sour dressing.

"It looks peculiar but tastes delicious," this cook remarked. She recommends serving it with beef fondue, steak or prime ribs.

In addition to her homemaking duties, Barbara works part time as a registered nurse and she also enjoys bowling with the Newcomers League.

FILLED ANGEL FOOD CAKE

- 1 10-inch angel food cake
- 1 3-ounce package red gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 2/3 cup cold water or fruit juice
- 1 cup fresh, canned or frozen and thawed fruit, drained
- 2 cups whipping cream or 2 envelopes dessert topping mix

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water or juice and the fruit. (Strawberry or raspberry gelatin makes a nice combination with frozen strawberries or raspberries.) Chill until slightly thickened. While this is chilling, prepare the cake.

Cut a half-inch slice from the entire top of angel food cake. Set aside. Very carefully, with a fork, hollow out the remainder of cake, leaving a half-inch on sides and bottom. Be careful not to break or filling will seep through.

When gelatin-fruit mixture has thickened, whip cream or topping mix as directed on package. Blend just two cups of it into gelatin. Spoon a good layer of gelatin mixture into bottom of cake shell. Toss up and layer some of the cake pieces on top. Repeat layers until all is used up.

Place top slice on top and secure with toothpicks. Use remainder of whipped cream to frost top and sides of cake. (If whipped cream is used, sweeten with a little powdered sugar and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.) Refrigerate until served. Garnish with whole berries, if desired. Serves 12 to 14.

CHICKEN MILANO

- 1 1/2-pound frying chicken
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- 1 large onion, minced
- 1/2 cup celery, minced
- 1 green pepper, minced
- 1/2 cup oregano
- 1/2 cup sautee
- 1 6-ounce can tomato paste
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 tablespoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Cut chicken into serving pieces.

In a large skillet, heat oil and butter. Add garlic, onion, celery, green pepper and oregano. Sauté about three minutes. Remove from pan and set aside.

In pan drippings, add cut up chicken and brown until golden in color.

Combine wine, tomato sauce, water, baking soda, cheese, salt and pepper in a bowl and mix well. Pour over chicken. Add the sautéed vegetables. Cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes or until tender. (The sauce may be thickened with 1 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in 2 tablespoons water, if too thin.)

Serve chicken and sauce over cooked flat noodles or green spinach noodles which have been buttered and sprinkled with additional parmesan cheese. Serves 4.

BEAN SPROUT SALAD

- 1/2 bag spinach, washed and drained well
- 1/2 bunch romaine lettuce
- 4 water chestnuts, sliced thin
- 4 hard-boiled eggs, chopped in large pieces
- 1 can bean sprouts, drained
- 1/2 pound bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
- 1/2 pound bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
- Croutons for topping

Break spinach and romaine into small pieces. Place in a large bowl with the water chestnuts, eggs, bean sprouts and bacon. Prepare the following dressing:

- 1 cup cooking oil
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/3 cup catsup

Combine all ingredients in a large covered jar and shake very well until blended. (Do not use an electric blender.)

Pour over salad and toss lightly. Garnish with croutons. Serves 6.

Apricot puffed pastry

A dish for all seasons and all meal times is an Apricot-filled Puffed Pancake. The nutritious and tasty apricot was an early settler, so to speak, in America. Captain John Smith reported it was growing in Virginia in 1629. Spanish missionaries introduced the drupe (a fruit with hard, woody pits) to California and that state now leads in apricot production. The pancake is filled with canned apricot halves making it a good year-round treat.

APRICOT-FILLED PUFFED PANCAKE

- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 5 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup sliced blanched almonds
- 2 cans (10 ounces each) apricot halves
- Dash each of ground nutmeg and cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- To prepare pancake:
- Beat eggs lightly in large mixing bowl; beat in milk and flour until blended. (Butter may be slightly lumpy.) Melt butter in a 10 to 12-inch skillet with a heat-proof handle over medium heat until butter begins to foam. Stir in al-mmonds. Remove from heat. Pour batter into hot skillet over almonds. Bake in 425 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes or until pancake is puffed and golden browned.

To prepare apricot filling: About 10 minutes before pancake is done, drain apricots, reserving 1/2 cup apricot syrup. Pour reserved syrup into large skillet. Add nutmeg, cinnamon, lemon peel and juice and sugar. Bring mixture to a boil. Add apricots. Simmer gently until heated through, spooning syrup over apricots. Spoon apricot filling onto hot pancake and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Net butterfly chops?

No, you don't catch them in a net on a warm spring day. Butterfly chops, cut from the pork loin, are available in many meat markets. It's also easy to "butterfly" sections of the loin at home. Purchase either boneless pork loin or the bone-in meat. (If the bone is present, remove it by running a sharp knife between the bone and meat.) Cut the loin into slices 1 1/2 to 2 inches thick. Cut each slice almost in two from fat side, knife parallel to surface of meat. Use care to cut only to opposite edge of chop so that the meat is hinged together. Separate and spread the two sides of pork so that the chop lies fairly flat.

pared with a simple marinade, cole slaw, garlic-buttered hard rolls, with coffee and a fruit cheese tray for dessert.

Begin by washing 1 pound (2 rounded cups) pinto beans. Add 6 cups water. To soak, either let stand overnight in water or in the morning, put beans and water in a large heavy pot or Dutch oven, place over high heat and bring water to boiling point rapidly. Boil two minutes. Remove from heat. Cover tightly and let stand for one hour. This is equivalent to having beans soak overnight so use whichever method is more convenient.

To cook, place beans and water in which they were soaked over high heat. Add two tablespoons drippings or vegetable oil to keep down foam. Bring to boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer. Cover and cook gently until beans are completely cooked but not mushy, about 2 hours. One test, provided you discard the beans you have tested, is to blow on a few of them in a spoon. If the skins burst, they are sufficiently cooked.

A leaflet providing consumers with a basis for comparing the cost of protein from various meats and meat alternates has been released by USDA.

Tables in the leaflet show prices for meats and meat alternates based on the latest national figures (February, 1973). Food shoppers can compare the cost of protein from dry beans and sardines, for example, with the cost of protein from hamburger or roast beef.

For a single free copy of "The Cost of Meat and Meat Alternates" readers may write to SERVICE, Room 541-A, Office of Communications, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Besides being rather dull, dry beans are time consuming to prepare. But don't be too hasty to scorn them before weighing the advantages.

Dry beans are an excellent source of protein and one of the most inexpensive foods available. They respond favorably to ham and a variety of seasonings.

There is no quick-cooking method but dry beans do not require a lot of watching or attention. The low cost will often balance the time factor.

Pinto Bean Pot, a versatile year round dish, is an excellent approach to bean cookery. This is a good dish with barbecue-baked or rotisserie-spareribs pre-

Cook 1 cup coarsely chopped onion in 2 to 4 tablespoons drippings or along with 1/2 cup bacon or salt pork bits, cooked.

Add 1 clove garlic mashed with 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon coarse-grind black pepper, 1/2 teaspoon crushed oregano, 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin, 3 teaspoons chili powder and 1 cup (8 oz.) tomato sauce.

Cook 5 minutes. The oregano and cumin may be omitted, but you may wish to add more chili powder then. Add this mixture to the beans. Cover and allow to simmer for 2 hours to blend flavors. Or turn into a casserole and bake, uncovered, in a 325 degree oven for 2 hours or more. Adjust salt if necessary before serving.

Garnish the top of Pinto Bean Pot with thin-sliced onion and green pepper rings, shreds of nippy Cheddar or of Provolone cheese.

Bacon at its best

The secret to successful bacon cookery is low heat. Place the meat in a cold skillet and separate the slices as they begin to cook so that each slice is flat in the pan. Continue cooking over low heat, turning the slices often, until they are browned evenly on both sides. Remove the slices to drain on absorbent paper.

Executive Chef Danniell

'Contented Sole' is his domain

by FRAN HECKART

Chef Danniell's quiet, soft-spoken manner belies the fact that he could have a "hell of a temper" by his own admission.

Perhaps he is prone to emotional explosions but Danniell remained unbelievably calm during a recent interview with numerous interruptions. Those concerned with meetings, pay checks, the key to the liquor room, verifications of food orders and deliveries and employee schedules had their ruffles smoothed in minutes by Danniell. He seems to radiate self-confidence with an air of one who does a job well and expects the same from those around him. All who knocked on his office door received respectful attention regardless of the problem.

Danniell is executive chef of The Contented Sole, located in the new Sheraton Walden-Inn on Algonquin Road, Schaumburg. Coping with all the problems of opening a new dining room as well as actually producing excellent fare, Danniell sits in the middle and efficiently runs the show.

THE EXECUTIVE chef brings "over 30 years of experience" to the Contented Sole, his last performance being the London House North in Chicago.

His training began at a very early age (about nine) producing a background that reads like an international travel schedule. From Paris to California, back to Paris, then on to Chicago with various stops along the way. One would not expect to find Schaumburg among the impressive stops.

The Contented Sole can be added to the growing list of sophisticated dining rooms in suburbia. The menu offers primarily piscatorial entrees along with Steak Diane, Chicken Kiev, prime rib and Chicken Francaise.

It became apparent that Danniell is much more at ease talking about food than himself and his menu does make lively conversation.

Danniell uses a French saute method for nearly all kitchen preparations. Even the spinach noodles for Alaskan King Crabmeat Martinique are sauteed. The chef feels that the saute method produces the most flavorful results. "The only thing wrong with it is that you can kill a good saute man on a busy evening," smiled Danniell.

THE MENU LISTS Seafood Omelette with Fried Mushrooms for $6.75. Although omelets on a continental menu may surprise some, Danniell guarantees that his creations look more like souffles than ordinary omelets.

Other seafood entrees include Royal Silver Pompano Marquise of Unity Lake, platter of cold jumbo shrimp, Dover sole, shrimp creole, baked red snapper, lobster a la Newburg, lobster tail, baked jumbo shrimp de Johnnie, poached filet of sole and mountain brook trout. Prices range from about $5 to $8 for the entrees which, according to Danniell, is very reasonable for fresh fish.

Escargots, jumbo shrimp cocktail and exotic Lobster Cocktail Hawaiian and marinated herring in wine sauces are a sampling of the a la carte section.

Danniell calls his escargots a "unique experience." He uses "something besides garlic and butter" but won't divulge his secret ingredient. The chef just smiled and said, "An escargot is just a dry little muscle and you must really flavor him up with something besides butter."

BESIDES OFFERING impressive dinner fare, Danniell has initiated a Sunday brunch table of gourmet foods. Offerings range from favorite breakfast items of scrambled eggs, ham, bacon, sausage and sweet rolls to decorated salmon, blueprints, chicken livers, pate and beef a la mode. A variety of desserts, fruits and salads are also included on the table which looks more like a banquet spread than brunch fixings.

Danniell feels his responsibility as a chef is to rely on fresh foods of quality. "I cannot put out a meal in 30 seconds," he said adding that the advent of the fast food service restaurants led a lot of people from the dining room to the eat and run places.

"But fast food will never replace continental cuisine," he remarked. "All fine chefs are battling the fast food industry, but people are beginning to appreciate the leisurely dining that was neglected for a while."

Shrimp Imperial is an original recipe created for The Contented Sole by Executive Chef Danniell.

SHRIMP IMPERIAL

6 large raw shrimp
3/4 ounce can tiny shrimp
3/4 ounce can crabmeat
3/4 ounce package, frozen lobster pieces
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Salt and white pepper to taste
6 eggs

Peel the six raw shrimp — leaving the tails on. Lay them on their sides, and with a small knife, "butterfly" them (i.e. split, but not clear through.) Next, wash the shrimp and lay on a board, open side up. For the shrimp stuffing, mix together the tiny canned shrimp, crabmeat and frozen lobster pieces. Sauté these three seafoods in a pan with the 2 tablespoons butter, melted. Add to this the 2 tablespoons flour. Season with salt and white pepper to taste. Use a teaspoon to smooth this mixture as you stuff each shrimp and close together. Next, dust the shrimp with flour and then dip into an "egg-wash" (6 eggs beaten). Lay the shrimp, stuffed side up, into a skillet with a quarter inch of hot, but not sizzling, melted butter.

The next step is most important: after 3 minutes, place each shrimp with the tail up — next to the outer rim of the pan. Put in a 400-degree oven for 6 to 8 minutes. Serve with lemon wedges or Chef Danniell's original Bernaise sauce.

CHEF DANNIELL'S SAUCE

for SHRIMP IMPERIAL 1/4 cup (1/2 sticks) butter
3 large egg yolks, well beaten
4 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped tarragon
Salt and cayenne pepper, to taste

Break butter into 3 pieces. Put 1 piece in top of a double boiler; add egg yolks and lemon juice. Beat constantly with a wire whisk over hot water — reduce heat to be sure water does not boil — stir until butter is melted. Add the second piece of butter; continue beating until mixture thickens. Do not allow water to boil. Add last piece of butter, continue stirring until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and add chopped tarragon, salt and cayenne pepper to taste. Serve with fish, shellfish or Imperial Shrimp. If mixture curdles, add 1/4 tablespoons of boiling water, beating constantly to rebuild emulsion. Yield: 2 1/2 cups.

THOSE WHO savor the subtle, delicate flavors of just-caught fish will be estatic over the selection at The Contented Sole located in Sheraton Inn-Walden, Schaumburg. Diners have the opportunity to net their own trout from a specially designed tank. After the catch, the mountain brook trout will be sauteed in almond flavored butter and boned.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Visitors to San Francisco are often encouraged to reserve a dinner date for Ernie's Restaurant at 847 Montgomery St., a beautiful establishment with the glow of mahogany and glitter of crystal chandeliers which are a throwback to the city's Gilded Age.

The menu is a combination of French and Italian cuisine, excellent in quality and high on the tab. While many people settle for aged steaks for which Ernie's is famous I found Chicken Cynthia ala Champagne to be delectable.

My version to serve two to four is somewhat changed from that of Chef Paul Quaid since I eliminated whipping cream as being a little too rich. Cut a 2 1/2 pound frying chicken into serving pieces. Reserve the back, neck and giblets for another purpose.

Bone thighs and breast but not the wings and legs. Easier still, you can purchase individual pieces as you and family or guests may desire. Salt and flour (1/2 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt) the chicken pieces by shaking in a paper bag.

Heat 1 tablespoon butter and 1 tablespoon oil in a skillet and saute chicken pieces until lightly browned, about 10 minutes on each side. Pour off excess oil and butter and place the chicken covered, in the oven for an additional 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Remove from oven and pour on 1 ounce Curacao, an orange-flavored liqueur, and 3 ounces champagne (or good dry white wine). Add 1/2 cup consommé or chicken bouillon, 8 to 10 fresh mushrooms which have been washed, sliced and sauteed in butter (or a 2 1/2 ounce jar of sliced mushrooms, drained and sauteed).

Again cover and keep hot on top of the stove or in the oven until ready to serve. If you wish a richer dish, stir in 1/4 cup whipping cream. Garnish with wedges of orange and seedless grapes.

ZUCCHINI SQUASH, now appearing in the markets, is a versatile vegetable and excellent served uncooked as an appetizer or relish. A Champaign cook uses sliced zucchini sprinkled with Lawry's seasoned salt and chilled in a covered dish until served.

For a relish or salad, try this recipe.

Wash 3 zucchini (about 1 1/2 pounds), cut off ends, then slice 1/4-inch thick.

Combine 1/3 cup salad oil, 1/2 cup wine vinegar in a mixing bowl, add 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish, 2 tablespoons minced onion or finely chopped little green onions, 2 tablespoons chopped pimento, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, several dashes of seasoned pepper and 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt. Blend.

Pour dressing over zucchini, stir to coat all slices, then cover and refrigerate several hours or over night. Use as a salad on wedges of lettuce or in a bowl as a relish.

EXECUTIVE CHEF DANNIELL brings more than 30 years of experience to the kitchens of The Contented Sole. He assumes responsibility for varied administrative duties as well as actual food and menu preparation.

Often found at the expedition line with a watchful eye on all the food passing into the dining room, Danniell considers "pleasing customers" his ultimate function.

Orange Tomato Pork Chops

Fresh flavors accent pork chops

Looking for something different to have for dinner tonight? Orange Tomato Pork Chops are a natural choice.

These are browned pork chops simmered with orange juice and fresh tomatoes. Slices of fresh orange and avocado accent this blend of fresh flavors, borrowed from Mexican cooking.

Oranges are in good supply at markets so now is an excellent time to serve them in main dishes, desserts and for snacks as well as at breakfast. One medium (3-inch) orange packs enough Vitamin C for the recommended dietary allowance for the day.

Serve your favorite potatoes and a seasonal green vegetable such as broccoli with the pork chops. For dessert, make a big surprise — Fresh Rhubarb Mousse.

The rhubarb is sliced and cooked in orange juice with some sugar. The slices soften and "shred" themselves during cooking, to just the right texture for making the mousse so no blender is needed for the job. Unflavored gelatin is added, the mixture is chilled, whipped cream is folded in, and the mousse is chilled till firm. The result is a beautiful pink dessert that's festive and fascinating.

FRESH ORANGE TOMATO PORK CHOPS

1 tablespoon salad oil

4 loin pork chops

1/2 cup chopped

fresh onion

1 tablespoon flour

1 cup chopped peeled fresh tomatoes

1/2 cup fresh orange juice

1/2 cup water

1 1/2 teaspoons salt

1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme

1 avocado, sliced

2 oranges, peeled and sliced

Heat oil in skillet. Add pork chops and brown on both sides. Remove. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender. Sprinkle with flour; stir to mix well. Add tomatoes, orange juice, water, salt and thyme. Add pork chops, cover and simmer 1 hour or until meat is tender. Add sliced avocado and oranges; heat.

Makes: 4 servings.

Note: To prepare oranges, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane. Or cut off peel round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again to remove any remaining white membrane. Cut into crosswise slices.

BROCCOLI WITH LEMON BUTTER

1 bunch fresh broccoli

3 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

To prepare broccoli, cut off large leaves and the bottom of the stalks.

Wash well. Cut into flowerets. Cook, uncovered, in boiling salted water to cover for 10 to 15 minutes, until crisp-tender. Drain. Turn into heated serving dish and keep warm. Melt butter in same saucepan; add lemon juice and pour over broccoli. Garnish, if desired, with lemon slices. Makes: 4 servings.

FRESH RHUBARB MOUSSE

1 pound fresh rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces (3 cups)

1/2 cup fresh orange juice, divided

1 cup sugar

1 envelope unflavored

gelatin

2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice

1 cup heavy cream

Red food coloring

Combine rhubarb with 1/4 cup orange juice and sugar in saucepan. Simmer, covered, 10 minutes, until rhubarb pieces come apart into "strings." Meanwhile, soften gelatin in remaining 1/4 cup orange juice; stir into hot rhubarb mixture until dissolved. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice. Chill until mixture is thoroughly cool and mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Whip cream; fold into rhubarb mixture. Add a few drops of red food coloring to tint delicate pink. Turn into 6 dessert dishes. Chill until set. If desired, garnish with whipped cream.

Makes: 6 servings.

Team tuna with asparagusFresh duo for mealtime pleasure

Combine tuna with fresh asparagus for two treats that bring pleasure to spring and summer meals. Canned tuna is a natural for refreshing lunches and dinners that are uncomplicated for the cook — yet interesting and substantial.

When you read that a tuna dish is substantial or satisfying, it means that tuna is comparable in complete protein to lean red meat and provides equal nutrition. However, canned tuna is lower in cholesterol, lower in calories and lower in cost per edible portion.

Charles Lamb commented, "Asparagus inspires gentle thoughts" — and these tuna-asparagus recipes inspire not only gentle thoughts about your culinary ability but appreciation for something new added to the standard repertoire. Buying fresh asparagus, look for stalks that are straight, green and brittle — with close, compact tips. Avoid those with white, woody stems and a wilted appearance. Before cooking, be sure to wash asparagus thoroughly. (It's often grown in sandy soil.)

Tuna-Asparagus Parmesan is simply cooked asparagus topped with a luscious tuna-cheese sauce that is heated until browned and bubbly under the broiler just before serving. The Tuna-Asparagus Salad is an attractive main dish salad — a delightful bouquet of lovely foods and flavors of spring.

A recipe booklet, "Tuna: As You Like It," is available free. It is filled with a variety of recipes — as well as nutritional information. Readers may send requests — together with name and address — to Tuna Research Foundation, Box 338, 215 Cannery Street, Terminal Island, California 90731.

TUNA-ASPARAGUS PARMESAN

2 pounds asparagus

1/4 teaspoon salt, divided
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup flour
2 cups milk
1/4 teaspoon each nutmeg and Tabasco pepper sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese, divided
2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil

Break off ends of asparagus as far down as they snap easily. Place in large skillet; add water to partially cover and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer, covered, just until lower parts of stalks are crisp-tender when tested with fork, 5 to 10 minutes. Drain. Melt butter in saucepan; remove from heat and blend in flour. Gradually stir in milk; add remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt, nutmeg and Tabasco. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Arrange cooked asparagus on heatproof platter or in shallow casserole; sprinkle with 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese. Place tuna on top. Pour sauce over tuna and asparagus. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup grated cheese. Place under broiler until lightly browned, or place in 450 degree oven for 5 minutes. Yield: 4 servings.

TUNA-ASPARAGUS SALAD
3 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 cup diced celery
1/2 cup sliced pitted ripe olives
2 pounds asparagus, cooked until crisp-tender*, chilled
1/4 teaspoon salt

Tuna-Asparagus Parmesan

1/3 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon dried dill weed
1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
Salad greens
Cherry tomatoes or tomato wedges

Break tuna into pieces; place in large bowl with celery and ripe olives. Reserve half of asparagus; cut remainder into 1-inch pieces and add to tuna mixture.

Sprinkle salt over salad. Combine mayonnaise and sour cream; stir in lemon juice, onion, sugar, dill and Tabasco. Add to tuna-asparagus mixture and toss lightly. Chill. At serving time, mound salad in center of lettuce. Garnish with salad greens, reserved asparagus spears and cherry tomatoes. Yield: 6 servings.

Fruit drink study

A new process for making citrus fruit drinks which utilizes the whole fruit may cut costs and give the consumer a better product.

The Texas Agricultural Market Research and Development Center reports a consumer panel of 600 families in Dallas, Texas, and Columbus, Ohio, rated experimental orange and grapefruit juices better than an already successful product on the market.

The drinks, based on a puree made from the whole citrus fruit, were developed by researchers of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Food Crops Utilization Laboratory at Weslaco, Texas.

Update old-time recipe for after-school treat

Date Bran Butterscotch Bars

Times have changed — or have they? Remember coming in after school and finding a tall glass of milk and a platterful of something to nibble on set out on the counter top? Well, mothers are still doing this, although their recipes have changed slightly. This recipe for Date Bran Butterscotch Bars, a version of the old-time favorite date bars, has been adapted to improve the flavor and texture, but the taste is every bit as savory and mouth-watering as it ever was!

They're great as an after-school munch-on. However, if you're puzzled by tonight's dessert, try spooning whipped topping or ice cream over the layered date-nut bars.

DATE BRAN BUTTERSCOTCH BARS

1/2 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2/3 cup shortening
1 egg
1 package (3-1/2 oz.) butterscotch instant pudding and pie filling
1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup bran flakes with sugar-coated raisins

1/2 cup chopped nuts
Combine dates, water, sugar, and lemon juice in a small saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally until mixture thickens. Cool.

Meanwhile cream shortening. Add egg and pudding mix. Beat until light and fluffy. Mix flour with soda, salt, and cinnamon. Stir into egg mixture. Add cereal and nuts and mix until well blended. Spread half of the pudding mixture in the bottom of a greased 8-inch square pan. Cover with date mixture. Top with remaining pudding mixture; spread evenly over surface. Bake at 375 degrees for about 25 minutes, or until nicely brown. Cool and cut into 12 portions. Serve topped with whipped cream, ice cream, or prepared whipped topping, if desired.

Fruity surprise in rice pudding

Everybody loves rice pudding, and a rice pudding that comes to the table looking like an elegant meringue dessert rates special raves. Colorful fruit cocktail adds refreshing sparkle to create a new family favorite.

RICE PUDDING SURPRISE

1 can (17 ounces) fruit cocktail
1/2 cup converted white rice
2 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1/4 cup sugar

Drain fruit cocktail. Put rice, milk, and sugar in top of double boiler. Cook for 60 minutes. Add slightly beaten egg yolks, nutmeg, lemon rind, and drained fruit cocktail. Turn into baking dish. Beat egg whites until frothy. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until egg form soft peaks. Cover pudding with egg whites. Bake in 325 degree oven for 20 minutes. May be served warm or cold. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Cobbler with two fruit favorites

Strawberries — plain or with cream, classical strawberry shortcake, or spectacular strawberry pie. However you serve them, these plump, juicy berries have become one of America's all-time favorites.

Although fresh berries are now available almost year round, they are an extremely good buy in late Spring. When selecting strawberries, look for bright, plump, well shaped berries that are solid in color. The caps should be attached.

At home, sort the berries and place in a shallow container or on a cookie sheet and refrigerate. Wash gently just before using, removing the caps after washing in order to preserve the best flavor and texture.

Among the interesting strawberry desserts your family will enjoy is Strawberry Rhubarb Deepdish Cobbler. The combo of sweet red strawberries and tangy rhubarb is a pleasing taste sensation — and it's light enough to provide a good finale to any meal.

To make, the fruits are first sweetened, then heated until slightly thickened. The hot mixture is transferred to a casserole, then we add the finishing touch — an easy-to-topper made from a can of refrigerated biscuits. The ready-to-use dough is cut in half, arranged atop the hot fruit and sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar.

The cobbler bakes only 20 minutes and should be served warm with just a splash of cream.

STRAWBERRY RHUBARB DEEDEDISH COBBLER

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
2 cups fresh rhubarb, diced
1 tablespoon lemon juice

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (9.5 oz.) refrigerated flaky, fluffy or butter flavored biscuits
Cinnamon-sugar

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In large saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in strawberries, rhubarb, lemon juice and butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until hot, bubbly and slightly thickened. Pour into 2-quart casserole or baking dish. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; cut each in half. Arrange cut-side-down on hot fruit in circle around edge of casserole. Sprinkle biscuits with cinnamon-sugar mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until biscuits are golden brown. Serve warm with cream. Tip: 1 package (16 oz.) frozen rhubarb, thawed and undrained, may be used for fresh rhubarb. Decrease sugar to 3/4 cup. Makes 6 servings.

SPRING THINGS, from the Durham Division of the Leisure Furniture Group of General Housewares Corp., has added a new folding table to the line. There are four matching chairs available for the continental height table. The ensemble comes in spring green, earth brown and a bright new sunshine yellow. Chairs have vinyl straps and they as well as the table fold for easy, convenient storage.

A FLOWER PATCH of seating is offered with the Le Fleur chairs by Grosfillex. Creating an extra outdoor living room, the chairs are lightweight and can be stacked together for storage. The Le Fleur chairs retail for about $40.

WITH A GOLD-SPRAYED spade Mrs. Laddie Poduska dug the first shovelful of earth at the Arbor Day groundbreaking of the Fragrance and Recreational Garden for the Handicapped at Kirk Center, Palatine. Principal Ron Sterrett and Designer Harold Klopp steady a tree as Barry Drader, student, gives Mrs. Poduska a helping hand.

TRADITIONAL REDWOOD adapts to backyard parties and picnics with seating to fit everybody's taste. Rockers, love seats, benches and chaise lounges are available in the redwood designs along with tables and serving carts. The pictured arrangement by Samsonite is available with yellow and brown or blue and green floral cushions.

Lawn furniture

Sit outdoors in style

by FRAN HECKART

There may be some fancy sitting under the shade trees this summer. Outdoor furniture has become as gay and colorful as the flower garden itself, with enough variety to suit all tastes.

In general, patio styles are more durable, more flexible and more comfortable than in the past. Many styles are designed to withstand years of wear and need only new pillows or coverings for that "new look."

For the utmost in comfort, Samsonite has designed a line of mesh furniture called the Body Gloves. Featuring contemporary styling and design, the Body Gloves adjust automatically by simply shifting your body. Colors include blue, yellow, green, orange and marbelle cameo.

Traditional redwood is claimed to be one of the most weather resistant construction materials. The redwoods are still some of the most popular designs since variety can be added with a mere change of cushions.

SEATING pieces plus tables, benches and service carts are available in the redwood. The well-padded cushions come in a wide range of patterns and floral printed vinyl, most with water-repellent ducking.

Arlington House, by Plantation Patterns is offering an all-aluminum outdoor grouping of furniture called Sea Breeze. It features perforated aluminum seats and backs and is available in eight frame finishes which include antique Pompeian, honey, black, white, antique Empire, avocado, charcoal and pine-apple.

One set has a five-piece patio dining group which has tables available in three diameters with fiberglass slate tops, continental height umbrella table and four arm chairs.

Chairs that look more like giant daisies will brighten the most modern pool side. Called La Fleur and made by Grosfillex, the "daisy seats" are made of lightweight polyethylene with nylon-coated steel frames. Cushions are available in either yellow or brown to accent or match the yellow and white seats.

Living
Especially for the Family

LOUISIANE, Victoria, Old Orleans and Castel are other lines manufactured by Grosfillex for those who prefer other than the usual styles.

A sleek, contemporary wrought iron patio set called Cristine is made by Arlington House. In addition to a five-piece patio group there is a four-piece group which includes a love seat, two arm chairs and a cocktail table. Straight, clean lines highlight this line which also comes in a variety of colors.

Finkel Outdoor Products has one of the most impressive umbrella lines. Polka dots, stripes, florals and patterns accent the versatile sun umbrellas, many of which are portable. Styles include garden, beach, golf and doorman's umbrella.

(More information about this lawn furniture available from Reader's Service, 394-2300, Ex. 263.)

Kirk Center Garden

It's to touch, sniff, hear

Groundbreaking for the Fragrance and Recreational Garden for the Handicapped, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, was marked by a tree planting ceremony on Arbor Day, last Friday, on the grounds of Kirk Center, Palatine.

The center serves trainable mentally, physically and visually handicapped pupils from 10 school districts including Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, River Trails, Schaumburg and Wheeling. Sixteen trees, spaced throughout the garden in accordance with the landscape design, were donated by Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, Arlington Heights.

At the groundbreaking Mrs. Frank Currier, president of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, presented a $1,100 check for Kirk Center to Ronald Sterrett, principal. The amount was earned by the woman's club for the benefit of the garden for the handicapped by means of an antique show last October.

OTHERS participating in the Arbor Day event were Carl Klehm; Harold O. Klopp, landscape architect, Rolling Meadows; Mrs. Laddie F. Poduska, chairman of the garden project; Mrs. Richard Blair, first vice president of the woman's club; and the following committee members: Mrs. James T. Dodds, Mrs. John Flaherty, Mrs. Brian Jacobson, Mrs. Harold O. Klopp, Mrs. Albert J. Lietz, and Mrs. William Stark.

Klopp, designer and coordinator of the Chicago World Flower and Garden Show each year since its inception 15 years ago, has donated his professional services to the club's project, giving every consideration to the special needs of the visually, mentally and physically handicapped.

TREES WERE selected for the different sound the rustling foliage of each type will project to the attentive listener. Benches in shaded spots will invite relaxation in recreational grass areas and in a bark covered play and work area.

Walks will be of various materials so that the blind may be guided along garden paths by the sound of their footfalls. Plants will be labeled in braille for easy identification by the blind.

All the senses through which a blind person sees are considered. For touch and sound, there will be a circular pool and fountain.

TO AVOID monotony, which would be created by having one continuous planting, Klopp planned several triangular beds which permit greater perimeter. This is important, as it is the plants that are near the edge that are of interest to folks who must see with their fingers, according to Mrs. Poduska. The beds will be planted within stone walls 24 inches high to facilitate touching.

For the sense of smell, there will be raised sections for fragrant flowers and herbs; for touch, additional beds will include plants of varying textures and vegetables. There is a ground-level area allocated for planting of vegetables and flowers from seed by the pupils themselves.

The eagerness of the pupils to participate was demonstrated recently when committee members held an indoor seed planting session to help pupils get an early start on seedlings for their outdoor garden.

A SPECIAL feature of the garden will be an aviary designed to be brought indoors for the winter. The songs of the birds will provide auditory experience for the handicapped.

The garden is designed to occupy space near the center's vocational wing. This wing includes a furnished home living unit which serves as a workshop for teaching home skills. Principal Sterrett observed that the garden will be a valuable addition to the center's vocational training program, as it can be used as an outdoor workshop for the teaching of garden skills.

Through the medium of the garden, instructors believe that the sighted handicapped can gain a feeling of accomplishment and usefulness while being trained to maintain the garden for themselves and the visually handicapped, and the blind can gain pleasure plus a heightened awareness in a new learning experience.

The garden, expected to be completed next year, will be open to the public. Meanwhile contributions from individuals or clubs "will be most welcome," said Mrs. Poduska.

Spring sets bridal theme

Bridal attendants in lilac and pink ensembles preceded Paula Ellen Greeley down the church aisle for her April 7 marriage to Mitchell R. Fazek of Buffalo Grove.

The girls wore lilac organza gowns with long sleeves, high neckline and a white Venise lace yoke and they carried pink and lilac shades of roses, daisies and baby's breath. The pink roses and lilac baby's breath also made up headpieces to match their gowns.

Paula is the daughter of Mrs. Lura Greeley of 322 S. Bristol, Arlington Heights, and William F. Greeley Jr. of Denver, Colo.

She and Mitchell were married at four o'clock by candlelight in the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines, then greeted 120 guests at a reception at Heuer's Restaurant in Rosemont.

THE BRIDE&GROOM'S parents are Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell P. Fazek of 175 Hawk Trail, Buffalo Grove.

Paula's wedding gown was of white silk organza with Alencon lace and pearl trim on the mandarin neckline, the Empire bodice and bishop sleeves. A border of the lace enhanced the A-line skirt and chapel train.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in May To:

1. Stop and listen closely to a singing bird.
2. Make a favorite family dish which you have not served in a long while.
3. Renovate your lawn furniture with gay paint and water-proof fabrics.
4. Ask yourself if your community is a little better because you dwell here.
5. Take your children to an art exhibit. Have everyone pick a favorite.
6. Look for new ideas on how to manage your household more efficiently.
7. Do something fun on the spur of the moment. Be more spontaneous!
8. Note this by Vauvenargues: "The greatest achievement of the human spirit is to live up to one's opportunities and make the most of one's resources."

Beta Sigma Phi marks 42 years

Northwest Suburban Area Council of Beta Sigma Phi celebrated the 42nd anniversary of the organization's founding Monday with a banquet at Mangun's in which the 11 local chapters participated.

Forty-two years ago, the first chapter of the sorority, a service organization, was formed in Abilene, Kan. There are now approximately 16,500 chapters and 250,000 members in the United States, Canada, 23 foreign countries and territories.

In addition to the banquet traditional ceremonies were observed, histories of the local chapters were reviewed and new members received their first welcome into membership.

Mrs. Larry Bell, Schaumburg, Xi Eta Epsilon served as chairman of the banquet. Mrs. William Giedl, Arlington Heights, Xi Eta Rho presented the message from the sorority's president which she received from international headquarters in Kansas City.

Spring's here! Time to clean

With spring cleaning at hand, home-maker consultants of National Family Opinion Inc., a consumer research firm in Toledo, Ohio, pass on the following hints:

—Use a small amount of baking soda on a damp cloth to disinfect your Formica top counters and keep them looking fresh.

—Use window cleaner to brighten window pulls and metal counter pulls in your kitchen.

—Dye odor will disappear from clothing if the garment is aired on clothesline for several hours.

—Pencil and ball point ink marks can be removed from cloth with hair spray. Spray on spot, rub, then wash as usual. Repeat if necessary.

—Ketchup is an excellent cleaner for brass and copper if you run out of your commercial polish. Salt and vinegar — two ingredients in ketchup — cleans brass.

—Crumpled newspaper is good for cleaning mirrors, windows, glass doors. Use any spray cleaner or simply water with a bit of ammonia and wipe off with the newspaper.

—To scour pans, use a piece of fine emery cloth. The pans scour up bright and there are no scratches.

—Use turpentine for removing gum from cloth and for removing tape glue from appliances and other metallic surfaces.

—For a plate and pot scraper that does not sour or wear out easily, cut nylon mesh citrus bags into four-inch lengths and gather into a bundle. Either tie or wrap a bread tie lightly around the middle.

—Put garbage in half-gallon milk cartons. When full, slip the carton into old bread wrappers and fasten with plastic strip. Helps prevent the messy garbage can problem.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Aluminum siding can be a worthwhile home improvement, but it does not come cheaply, as the ads of one area firm have suggested.

This aluminum siding company, headquartered in Waukegan, recently published in a Chicago newspaper exact, low-sounding quotations for "complete installation" of aluminum siding in 4, 6 and 8-bedroom houses.

The Herald first asked the owner of an Arlington Heights aluminum siding firm about these price quotations and was told that they were "ridiculous." This contractor said the price of aluminum siding "depends on the size of the house by square feet" as well as the cost of the labor of installation.

THE AD was then turned over to the Consumer Fraud Division of the Attorney General's office, where an investigation was undertaken. During the past week,

Misleading ads can be costly

The Herald received a letter from Assistant Att. Gen. Norman Wexler stating that his office had reviewed the matter with the company.

"They have modified the content of their advertising so that it complies with the guidelines of fairness our office deemed necessary under the circumstances," Wexler wrote.

When questioned over the telephone, Wexler confirmed that the cost of labor was not included in the prices in the ad. Wexler hedged on whether this constituted deceptive advertising, since, he said, it was "not intentional."

Intentional or not, such an ad deceives consumers, who end up paying a lot more than they bargained for.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman (D-Arlington Heights) is the sponsor of one of 17 consumer bills introduced recently in the Illinois state legislature.

Mrs. Chapman's proposal would amend the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act to define "perishable foods" and "shelf life" and to prescribe labeling criteria for such foods. Dates on perishables now are a source of confusion to consumers, since they may indicate any of several possibilities.

Another bill launches a legislative attack on the butchers' union, which does not allow the sale of meat after 6 p.m. Rep. James M. Houlihan (D-Chicago) has proposed a Retail Labor Act, which would prohibit labor contracts from restricting times at which necessities may be sold when the store is open for business.

A significant amendment to the Consumer Fraud Act, proposed by Rep. Leland Rayson (D-Tinley Park), would allow the courts to determine any consumer sale or credit transaction "unconscionable," in which case the court may rescind the transaction or limit the liability of the consumer.

OTHER BILLS would: Abolish the confession of judgment clause, in which a consumer signing a sales, rental or credit contract also signs away his legal rights to break or contest the contract if its results are unsatisfactory;

Limit the holder in due course practice, which requires consumers to pay the bank, loan office or credit card company even if the merchandise or service involved is unsatisfactory;

Preserve liability of auto repair shops for damage to cars left for repairs and provide for licensing and regulation of such shops and mechanics;

Create a consumer advocate who would be able to go to court on behalf of consumers and represent them in administrative proceedings. According to Rep. Rayson's office, this ombudsman could evaluate state agencies in their consumer dealings and could get consumer information released from the government. The consumer advocate would have a broader concern than the existing Consumer Fraud Division, which is limited to fraud.

The latter bill reportedly has the support of both the Consumer Fraud office and the governor.

With a fuel shortage crisis looming in the coming months, such American traditions as the family auto can no longer be taken for granted. With regard to the auto — not to mention a lot of other things — the question must be asked, "Is this a necessity or a luxury?" That question particularly applies to certain automobile options.

The size and usage of the family car may well be restricted soon by "Out of gas" signs on the nation's gasoline pumps. But short of walking, there could well be some conservation of resources with minimal sacrifice of comfort. For instance, does the world owe Americans the luxury of an air-conditioned car?

ACCORDING TO THE Environmental Protection Agency, auto air conditioners reduce fuel economy by a cool 20 percent per gallon of gasoline. Yet air conditioning has become practically standard equipment on the larger cars — which already guzzle gas because of their weight.

Thus, a car such as the Pontiac Grand Prix, which by EPA testing got 10 miles to the gallon, or 180 miles per 16-gallon tankful, would get only 8 miles per gallon with air conditioning — or 128 miles per tank. That's 32 miles lost with each fill-up.

By comparison, the auto emission control devices ordered by the EPA — and hotly opposed by the auto manufacturers and some consumers because, among other allegations, they would eat gas — only cut mileage by 7 percent.

Juniors present 'day care' check

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines recently presented a check to the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center from funds earned at the 1973 benefit fashion show. Mrs. Robert DiLeonardi, founder of the center, accepted the check, saying the money would be used for teachers' salaries for the summer months.

Located at First Presbyterian Church, Des Plaines, the center provides an educational curriculum for children 3 to 5. Due to the cutback in federal funding, it will lose its largest source of income; therefore outside financial support is needed, said Mrs. DiLeonardi.

The juniors have also donated toys, clothes and books during the year.

Best man assists Cupid

A best man is even a better man when he's the one who introduces the bride and groom in the first place. Mike Sink, Chicago, brought about the meeting of Susan Warland and Fred Charles Schultz of the University of Illinois and happily took the key spot in the groom's party when the couple were wed April 7.

Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moeller, 73 Dempster, Des Plaines. Fred's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schultz of Fox Lake.

The double ring, 5 p.m. ceremony by candlelight was conducted by Pastor Clifford Kaufman at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

SUSAN'S SCHIFFLI embroidered bridal gown of organza with chapel train was trimmed in yellow ribbon. Her three-tiered Venise trimmed fingertip veil was attached to a Camelot headpiece. King white orchids, tinted yellow on the edges, and baby's breath comprised her bouquet.

Pam Snobie of Des Plaines was the maid of honor. Mrs. Kim Price, formerly of Des Plaines, and Mrs. Sandra Scanlon of Melrose Park served as bridesmaids. With their maize chiffon gowns they wore matching picture hats and carried yellow daisies, white carnations and baby's breath.

Ann Moeller, 8-year-old sister of the bride, wore a long maize gown trimmed in ruffles and lace as she assumed her role as flower girl. She wore a floral headband and carried a basket of flowers.

In addition to Mike Sink, the groom's party consisted of Ken Fullerton of Fox Lake and Gary Jones, the groom's cousin of Hoffman Estates. A reception was held at the Billy Caldwell American Legion Post on Chicago's northwest side.

THE NEWLYWEDS spent a week at Lucayan Beach, Grand Bahama Island, and are now residing on the north side of Chicago.

Susan, a 1969 graduate of Elk Grove High School, spent her first college year at the University of Miami in Coral Gables, Fla., and the past three years at Circle Campus, University of Illinois, with graduation scheduled for August. She will, in addition, pursue medical technician training at St. Joseph's Hospital in Chicago.

Fred received his bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Illinois in 1970 and is currently employed at Chicago's Central Water Filtration Plant.

DES PLAINES NEWCOMERS

James Baker will speak on "We Are a Conditioned People," a study of psychology, at tonight's meeting of Des Plaines Newcomers Club. The group will be meeting at 7:45 in First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 749 Lee St.

The evening will include election of officers who will be installed at the June luncheon at the Camelot Inn.

All new residents interested in Newcomers and its hobby groups may contact Mrs. Denis Bastas, 299-8315 or Mrs. Steve Russo, 824-8606.

ELK GROVE JAYCEETTES

The monthly meeting of Elk Grove Village Jayceettes is next Monday evening at 8 in the home of Mrs. Lee Rodriguez, 60 Arlington Heights Road.

The annual election of officers is slated, and the group will make bows to go on corsages to be sold May 12 for A leisurely luau has been planned for Mother's Day.

ALPHA XI DELTA

the May 16 meeting of Northwest Suburban Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta. The luau will be held in the Arlington Heights home of Mrs. Donald Landver, 2332 Lafayette, with Mrs. David Moninger of Mount Prospect as co-hostesses.

Cost of the evening is $2.50 and reservations are due with Mrs. Landver by this next Monday. Her phone is 392-8335. Members attending will be wearing appropriate dress.

MOUNT PROSPECT WOMEN

The last meeting for the year of the bridge department of the Mount Prospect Woman's Club will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m.

All money realized from the bridge sessions are used toward the Mount Prospect Woman's Club philanthropies. Players meet at the Mount Prospect Community Center and co-chairmen are Mrs. W. G. Medlar and Mrs. Harold Beck.

BUFFALO GROVE GARDENERS

Due to popular demand, Fred Jorgenson, the ecology-minded rose specialist and certified consulting Rosarian with the American Rose Society, will once again address the Buffalo Grove Garden Club membership and its guests at the club's meeting Tuesday, at 8 p.m. In the science lab of St. Mary's School, Buffalo Grove Road.

Jorgenson, whose garden was begun in a plat of rocks and rubble, will discuss "The Queen of Flowers" and invites all rose fanciers to tour his Palatine garden of 300 roses open daily except Mondays from June through September.

Mrs. Bernard Mollenhauer will illustrate dividing chrysanthemums in the horticulture portion of the program. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Oscar Weidner and Mrs. Joseph Emmerich.

During the business meeting club members will make final plans for their plant sale scheduled for May 14 and 15 at Gelmer Greenhouses.

211 FACULTY WIVES

A European tour will be presented at Tuesday's meeting of the District 211 Faculty Wives Club. Countries traveled through will be the Netherlands, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, France and England.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge at Schaumburg High School. Mrs. Robert Wheat, Mrs. Thomas Hillesheim and Mrs. Dennis Keppen are working on the event.

The following slate of officers for 1973-'74 was presented and approved at the April dinner meeting: Mrs. John Vayo, president; Mrs. Dennis Keppen, vice president; Mrs. Jarrett Calrns, secretary; and Mrs. Ronald Persche, treasurer.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Nu Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will be meeting at 6:30 Wednesday eve-

Mrs. Joel Wells to direct 7th District Junior clubs

Mrs. Joel Wells, retiring president of the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines, was recently elected 7th District Junior Director.

In this capacity she will preside over the seven junior women's clubs of the 7th District: Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Streamwood. Her other duties will include attending the State Junior Board meetings to inform the 7th District of activities throughout the state, and to institute the formation of new junior clubs in the district.

During 1971-73, Mrs. Wells served as president of the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines. Under her guidance and leadership, the Des Plaines Juniors received recognition from the Illinois Federation and the General Federation of Women's Clubs for their community projects.

Mrs. Wells has also given her time to the American Cancer Society, the Bible School at Trinity Lutheran Church in Des Plaines, the Well Baby Clinic and as a Cub Scout den mother. Despite her busy schedule, she has pursued advanced educational studies and plans at a later date to return to the working world.

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have your article about what to do with the pantry weevils and am a little disturbed as I've heard that you can't do a thing about it because even warehouses could be infested. Consequently the food you buy comes infested into your home. I've opened a fresh box of macaroni and cheese and had a weevil come out of the box — and it just came from the store. I put everything in the cereal like directly in tight plastic containers but that doesn't seem to help. What if we unknowingly ate one of these bugs? How harmful is it?

—Lila Shepherd

Sure, warehouses could be infested but this would be the exception rather than the rule. Food processors wouldn't last long in the business if they didn't try to take the necessary precautions. I'd have taken that box straight back to the store. I've heard that weevils can make their way into even the tightest plastic containers. Glass or metal containers are safest for cereal products. It's an unpalatable thought but I guess we've all eaten weevils without knowing it — and without any effect.

Dear Dorothy: We just moved into a brand-new home and I'm very upset to see scratches on some of the windows. What can I use to get rid of them?

—Mrs. Thomas B.

The only thing that might work is jewelers' rouge. But if the scratches are deep, nothing will help.

Dear Dorothy: I don't need rubber cement often but have to keep it on hand. It's annoying how thick it gets. What can I do with it to thin it out?

—Muriel J.

Stationery stores stock a thinner specifically for this.

Stitchin' time

Sew summer's swimwear

by JOANNE SCHREIBER

Don't look now — but summer is almost here! It's time to start stitching the swim suit, so you'll be all ready for the first swim of the new season.

Sewing your own swimwear is a terrific budget-booster. A home-stitched suit costs just a fraction of a ready-to-wear one, and will probably fit you better besides. The savings are even greater in children's suits.

Pattern books are full of attractive patterns; stores are loaded with the special two-way stretch knits in sizing colors and patterns that have been specially developed for swimwear. In addition, alert manufacturers are providing notions and findings such as linings, elastics, bra-cups and hook closures. All ingredients for swimwear have been specially processed so they are resistant to sun, salt and chlorine.

The Armo Co., makers of Gingerbread knits and swimwear findings, offers the following suggestions for successful swimwear-stitching:

Lay out the pattern so the greatest stretch in the knit goes around your body. Work on a large, flat surface (the floor, if necessary) to prevent stretching the knit. Avoid color-shading differences by laying all the pattern pieces in the same direction.

Use sharp, bent-handle shears, ball-point pins, polyester thread and size 11 ballpoint needles to cut and sew stretch knits easily. Select a loose, balanced stitch and a length of 12-15 stitches per inch. You can sew these knits with a straight stitch machine if you get the tension loose enough to stretch with the knit. Stitch a test seam on a swatch of the knit and pull the seam. If the thread breaks, loosen the tension more. Remember that the polyester threads have some built-in stretch, and that helps.

Never machines have special stretch-and-overlock stitches; a simple zigzag stitch also works well.

Hold both thread ends behind the presser foot to avoid jamming your machine when you start to sew. Don't stitch over pins — this may result in skipped

TAKE THE PLUNGE! Sew up a swim-suit like this in a bright Seafarer print on two-way stretch nylon knit.

PEO entertains

At old fashioned picnic coffee

MARIANNE SCOTT
Women's Editor

An opportunity to spend an afternoon in an atmosphere of the good old days was offered Monday by PEO Chapter IX of Arlington Heights to members of all the village's PEO chapters.

It was the chapter's Reciprocity Day and members chose to entertain their 63 guests at the Historical Society and Museum of Arlington Heights where the day also marked the first public opening of the coach house.

It was in the coach house of the museum complex amid stalls, a carpenter shop, blacksmith shop, an open cutter sleigh, early motorized fire engine and hundreds of exhibit items that the host chapter served a picnic coffee with colonial breads, spreads and cookies. The refreshments were served from an iron-wheeled wagon members had decorated with geraniums and other garden flowers of grandmother's day.

The flowers also added color to the complex courtyard which is surrounded by a newly installed rustic wrought iron fence.

INCLUDED IN THE afternoon were a slide-lecture by Virgil K. Horath, curator, depicting the restoration of the buildings, a tour of the museum, browsing and shopping in the Museum Country Store, a visit to the exhibit hall and a peek at the still unfinished log cabin.

Tour guides explained that the museum, built in 1882, was once the home of the Frederick W. Muller family. Portraits of the couple hang high on the walls from a dado in the formal parlor. A family room sitting room and dining room house displays of dolls, fans and jewelry as well as a scale model of the village as it appeared in 1896. The house also contains a document room, sewing room, play room and two bedrooms. Many of the furnishings belonged to the Mullers; others have been donated.

THE MUSEUM COUNTRY STORE, once an old pop factory, retains the flavor of the early 1800s with its brick floors and hand-painted scenic window with roller shades. Antiques, collectibles and fine handicrafts are sold here on consignment.

The Exhibit Hall, where displays vary from a collection of rocks to mounted animals and birds to a dial typewriter and a sewing machine with pearl inlays, is on the second floor of the factory.

The tiny log cabin, an authentic replica of its day, is nearing completion. A cement floor and mortar instead of mud filling the spaces between the logs have updated the cabin and will slow deterioration, Horath said.

In the museum is another touch of updating — a spotlight in the parlor operated by an electric timer! It is a realistic reminder that while it's fun to spend a nostalgic afternoon back in yesteryear — maybe, just maybe, the good old days weren't all that good?

'Horsing around' benefits center

Mrs. William Scott of Arlington Heights is taking reservations for "A Winning Combination," an evening of dinner, dancing and "horsing around" for Friday, May 18. Sponsored by the North Shore Service League, the benefit will be held in the Skyline Room, at Arlington Park.

Jockeys will be on hand to display their silks and give guests a few tips for the races which will be shown on a screen with a bugler sounding the call to the post.

Reservations are $12.50 per person. Mrs. Scott can be contacted at 332-4020. The league supports the Chicago Maternal Center.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Each of us in that very private part of us — our minds — holds a philosophy of life.

Famous naturalist and author Roger Caras has summed up what I wish I could have expressed before he beat me to it, and what some people feel, but cannot convey about man's position in the environment.

In a World Wildlife Fund publication, Caras comments on the effort to save the Indian tiger from extinction, but in his words we can read much deeper meaning:

"When you get right down to it, who needs a tiger? What difference would it make to the future of mankind if all the big cats did end up in coats and boots and rugs? Perhaps we need not care all that much whether or not there is grace and speed and strength and surge to life in Asian jungles? Who needs a tiger?

"WE MIGHT, however, think for a moment about our own descendants. We build empires for them to inherit, we lay the foundation for their societies in the laws we enact, we paint for them, we write and we compose. And we call out to them to ask that they remember us . . . in many, many ways we structure our life so that we ourselves may be immortal."

"What would your own childhood have been like if there had been no Asian jungle, no darkest Africa? And what would these places have been if they had contained no mysteries and no danger? What made your life richer when you were young — the knowledge that there was a place where the tiger roamed and whose eyes burned holes in the night — or the assurance that the next town had a bigger shopping center than your own? Which was the concept that stretched your mind?

"ANOTHER consideration: and perhaps it is metaphysical, or perhaps it is the most valid of all. Does beauty require an excuse or an application? Cannot beauty, like life, simply exist because it has somehow come into being? Even the men who dwelled in caves looked first to the animals around them when they found the magical power of graphic representation. These primitive peoples named their clans after these animals and we so name our automobiles.

"But on the other hand, perhaps we need not worry about the natural poverty of our descendants . . . After all, weeds force themselves up through concrete and asphalt. Perhaps sensitive souls can as well. And if not, well so be it . . ."

Who needs a tiger — or a flower or fresh blades of grass for that matter?

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U. S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 105 persons for official corruption.

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they should get out."

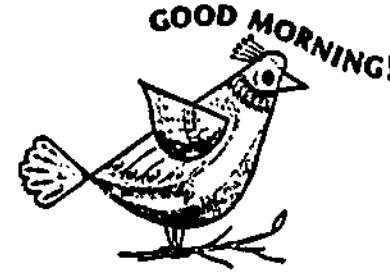

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing."

Agreement signed for golf course retention basin

Agreement was reached yesterday to construct a five-acre retention lake on the Arlington Golf Course, to help relieve flooding in Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

The lake, which will have a capacity for about 16 million gallons of water, will reduce the amount of water running into the White Pine Ditch and Buffalo Creek during a heavy rainstorm.

Advance tickets for 'Future' fair available June 1

Advance ticket sales for the Future of America Fair at Arlington Park, Aug. 24 through Sept. 3, will be available through the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce June 1.

Earl Johnson, the chamber's executive director, said his office is accepting written ticket orders now, but that tickets will not actually be available until June 1.

The chamber of commerce is promoting advance ticket sales for the fair in a 100-mile radius of Arlington Park. A line-up of "big name" entertainers has been signed for the 11-day fair which promoters hope will draw half a million people to the race track grounds.

Advance tickets are priced at $2.25 for adults, a 75-cent savings over the gate admission price. Tickets for children aged 6 to 12 are $1, and children under 6 will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

Johnson said advance ticket orders should include a check or money order and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Orders should be addressed to the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 6, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Tickets can also be picked up after June 1 at the chamber office, 103 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Interested persons may call the chamber of commerce at 233-1763 for more information.

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the owner of the golf course, Daniel Taggart, signed the agreement following several meetings with village officials. Although the retention lake will be on private property, it will be maintained by the village, Larson said.

The $325,000 project will be financed with $130,000 from the Illinois Division of Waterways, $120,000 from the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) and $75,000 from village funds. Final approval still has to be given by the state and MSD before the project can be built, Larson said.

THE PROJECT will be considered by the village board at Monday night's meeting. Larson said the village hopes construction can begin by next fall.

At the present time, during a heavy rainstorm the White Pine Ditch leaves its banks and floods several backyards. Larson said although the retention lake will not eliminate all of the water in the ditch, it will probably prevent it from overflowing. "It will substantially cut down the amount of water in the White Pine Ditch," Larson said.

Larson added that water which is now free to run into the White Pine Ditch will be caught by the new storm sewers presently being installed on Dundee Road. The sewers will divert the water from the ditch into the retention lake.

Since the White Pine Ditch, which empties into Buffalo Creek will have less water, the amount of water in the creek will be reduced. This will provide flood relief for Buffalo Grove and Wheeling residents who live along the creek.

LARSON SAID that during a heavy rainstorm, the water will be held in the retention lake. After the storm is over, and the chances of flooding are reduced, the water will be released into Buffalo Creek east of Buffalo Grove. Since the water will be released from the lake under controlled conditions, Buffalo Creek will be kept at a lower level, Larson said.

The Wheeling Drainage Ditch which is an outgrowth of Buffalo Creek will also receive less water as a result of the retention lake.

Board votes against teacher pact

The High School Dist. 214 board voted 4 to 3 last night against a proposed three-year salary contract with its teachers.

Following the vote, representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the teachers, said some teachers would react "violently" to the board action and said the move is sure to intensify a power struggle within the teachers' ranks.

The proposed contract, which would have raised the base pay for a beginning teacher from $8,600 a year to $9,300 a year next year and to $9,650 by the 1975-76 school year. It was worked out by a six-man "impass resolving committee" which included two board members, Sup't Edward Gilbert and three teachers.

Board members Jack Costello, Arthur Aronson, Richard Bachhuber and Warren Schabinger voted against the pact. Board Pres. Gene Artemenko, Jack Matthews and Donald Hoeck voted for it. Artemenko and Matthews served on the "impass resolving committee."

THE CONTRACT dispute will now be submitted to a three member fact-finding board which will be made up of one representative from each side and a professional arbiter. The board designated Costello as its representative on the fact-finding board.

Earlier in the day, the district's teachers voted to accept the pact by 563 to 116.

The board members voting against the contract said they objected to the fact it left the index, which makes all salaries a fixed percentage of the base, untouched. Board members have objected to the expense caused by the index, saying the district could not afford to guarantee that top pay will be more than twice the base pay.

Vince Carloti, president of the education association, said he was surprised and disappointed by the board action. "This is going to apparently confirm the suspicions of some teachers that the board is not to be taken at face value," he said.

He said the board action will be used by teachers who have been trying to get the district association to affiliate with a state and national organization, either the Illinois Education Association (IEA) or the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

The state

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Giglotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collingsville, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced negotiators" surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The world

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

Hundreds of police seized the coffin of a slain colleague from its hearse and paraded it around downtown Madrid demanding permission to use firearms against demonstrators.

The market

The expectation of traders that President Nixon would take a strong stand on stemmin inflation boosted prices in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average gained ground, closing up 11.13 at 932.34. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, climbed 1.33 to 118.43. The average price of a NYSE common share gained 49 cents.

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruth Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulling back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .375 calibre Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

- Carbona ordered her home at 10:15 p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

- When she arrived home, Carbona

"cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

- Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

- Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

- She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

- Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he was going to blow my ---- guts out," she said. She said she told Carbona her leg and body hurt so badly "I didn't care what he did."

- Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

- She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

- Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

- Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your ---- brains out," before he started down the stairs.

MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Policemen told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

Ruth Carini, 11 and William Carini, 10, said they were awakened in the middle of the night Dec. 21, 1971 by the argument between their mother and stepfather.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing their stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruth Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

New reading techniques at Cooper

Spark of interest key to learning

by JILL BETTNER

The tall, soft-spoken teacher gently prods the young boy for answers to questions on the day's lesson, searching for a spark of interest. That spark is the key to Bonnie Genrich's job of awakening the desire to read in students at Cooper Junior High School.

Cooper is part of School Dist. 21, which serves Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights.

"Our goal is to encourage kids to want to read and help them develop the skills they need to make reading an enjoyable experience," Mrs. Genrich said.

In order to stimulate a child's interest in reading, Mrs. Genrich believes it is first necessary to understand why he doesn't like to do it.

Often, she said, students dislike reading because they have not mastered the necessary skills. She heads a team of five language arts teachers who give students exhaustive tests each fall designed to spot reading problems. The team then plans an individual program suited to the needs of each child with his particular reading difficulty.

"We really believe in the clinical approach," Mrs. Genrich said. "You have to recognize the specific weaknesses a child has in reading before you can help him overcome his problem."

Children with similar reading difficulties meet together in small groups each day in a multi-use reading center. Each of the three teachers assigned to the center every period directs the activity of a group. The instruction might include reading a story on film, discussing a selection as a group or working on word-building.

EACH ACTIVITY and the material used is aimed at the interests of junior high students. The old predictable adventures of Dick and Jane and their friends have been replaced with selections by contemporary authors rewritten in some cases with easier vocabularies.

"I think publishers are beginning to realize they have to have material that is interesting to kids on their own age level, but is simple enough that they can understand it if their reading level isn't up to where it should be," Mrs. Genrich said.

Developing self-confidence is an important part of improving a student's reading ability, Mrs. Genrich said. A child who has reading problems often becomes very defensive because reading is a painful, frustrating experience.

"A student has to start with material he's comfortable reading," Mrs. Genrich said. "It doesn't really matter what grade level it is, the important thing is that he can read and understand it successfully. That gives him the courage to tackle something else."

AT THE URGING of Wendy Billington, one of the teachers on the reading team, social studies teachers at Cooper are now recognizing the need to meet the reading problems of students. The instructors are using textbooks written for pupils on several different levels of reading ability.

The ultimate goal of all the reading teachers is to persuade Dist. 21 to adopt graded textbooks for all subjects, Mrs. Genrich said. However, the expense of such a move is prohibitive right now.

The self-image of students in the reading program is not damaged by forcing them to compete for grades with other pupils who read better than they. Grades are given on an individual progress basis.

Mrs. Genrich said the small size of the reading groups allows the staff to effectively monitor that progress. Three teachers work with about 30 children divided into three or more groups.

MARSHA FREY, another teacher on the reading team, said there are other advantages to the small groups, too.

"When we work in the groups, there's no anxiety in the kids about participating in discussion," she said. "I hear from

DEVELOPING INTEREST and self-confidence in students are the goals of teachers involved in Bonnie Genrich's reading program at Cooper Junior High School. The team of six language arts instructors analyzes reading difficulties of students and designs individual activities to correct the weaknesses.

Addolorata Villa

The Friends of Addolorata Villa in Wheeling will sponsor a special blessing service as well as an open house beginning at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The programs are part of the annual spring meeting at the villa. The special blessing will be of a plaque depicting the outside of the villa. The plaque will be hung in the lobby of the home for ages.

After the blessing a brunch will be served, followed by the annual business meeting. Entertainment will be provided by the Tumberiza Orchestra and visiting friends and relatives will be able to tour the villa and its new facilities.

Refreshments will be served and friends of the villa are invited to attend the day's events.

The Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club will have its final meeting of the year Thursday, May 10, at Speros Restaurant in Palatine.

Newly elected officers will be installed during a candlelight ceremony conducted by Mrs. Raymond Crouch, immediate past 7th Dist. Junior Director.

Officers to be installed at the meeting are: Mrs. Richard Gutman, president; Mrs. George Polkow, vice president; Mrs. Richard Sheldon, second vice president; Mrs. Robert McIntyre, recording secretary; Mrs. Earl Geibel, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Robert Stumpf, treasurer.

Post Office offers coffee, doughnuts

The Prospect Heights Post Office is offering free coffee and doughnuts to customers this week in recognition of Postal Week.

The post office is also selling 10 new types of stamps to commemorate Postal Week, which started Sunday. The new stamps, sold throughout the nation, honor postal employees.

Dundee Road at the location of the accident is undergoing repairs and has numerous potholes. The pavement was also wet at the time of the accident, according to police.

Police said both autos were badly damaged. Buffalo Grove firemen used crowbars to get Hahnfeld free from the wreckage.

In a few minutes the world wakes up

Your world begins each day at a certain time. If you're like most Northwest Suburban people, your day begins in a comfortable bedroom, in a warm home. Most of what you cherish is in that home. People you love; the intangibles that bind you to them, the security you've provided for them.

These are the things that make home ownership so important to most people. They're the same things that make our job so rewarding. For at First Federal Savings of Des Plaines, we've always considered home loans as more than mere financing of four walls and a roof. We've always tried to make home loans with the knowledge of the very personal and private satisfaction they can bring to people. And that is why our Home Loan with a Heart is more than a slogan. It's an important part of the lives of thousands of people in this area. And, we aim to keep it important for thousands more.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U.S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 195 persons for official corruption.

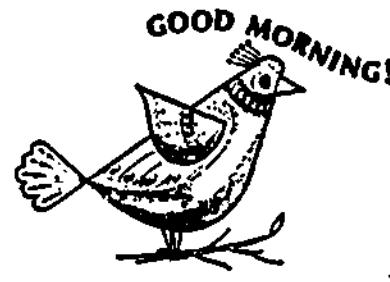

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing" (Continued on page 2)

Real estate tax increases told; up only slightly

Des Plaines residents in Maine Township will find only small increases in their 1972 real estate tax bills this spring, based on tax rates released yesterday by Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper Jr.

The rates, for residents of Des Plaines and unincorporated Des Plaines in Maine Township only, were made public with new tax rates for nine other suburban townships.

None of the other rates released were for Northwest suburban townships. The rates for Des Plaines residents in Elk Grove Township (west of Mount Prospect Road) and Wheeling Township (north of Central Road) are expected to be released within the next few weeks.

THE RATE FOR residents in the City of Des Plaines, in the Des Plaines Park District and in School Dist. 62 was set at $7.488 per $100 of assessed valuation, as compared with a rate of $7.484 last year.

A home assessed, for example at $10,000 would carry a tax bill of $739.80 in 1972.

Taxpayers in the City of Des Plaines and in School Dist. 62, but not in the Des Plaines Park District, will pay their tax bill at the rate of $7.204 per $100 of assessed valuation. The rate last year was $7.100. Taxes on a home assessed at $10,000 would be $720.40 as compared with $719.00 last year.

The rate for taxpayers in unincorporated Des Plaines in the North Maine Fire Protection District, the Golf-Maine Park District and School Dist. 63 will be $7.432 per $100 of assessed valuation, as compared with $7.416 for 1971.

The tax bill for a home assessed at $10,000 would be $743.20 as compared with $741.60 for 1971.

THE NEW TAX rates apply to tax bills payable this year and were established by tax levies based on the expenditures of each taxing district during the preceding year.

The total tax rate, and the subsequent tax bill, represents a composite of several rates for individual taxing bodies.

Residents of the township have escaped, for a year, the large tax increases experienced by some taxpayers in neighboring townships, caused by quadrennial reassessments.

That reassessment will be conducted in Maine Township, among others, this summer, with notices of assessment changes expected in the fall.

Dennis Dunne, director of communications for County Assessor P. J. Culleton, said the quadrennial reassessments will be based on a new system of market values. He said experience with the new system in other townships has shown assessments on newer homes decreased while those on older homes went up.

Dunne said homeowners in Maine Township have until Aug. 10 to notify the assessor's office of any reason they feel their assessment should be lowered.

SCHOOL CHILDREN are crossing hazardous intersections on Rand Road according to North School parents. They have requested a reduced speed limit on the highway and a guardrail along the sidewalk at this intersection on Elk Boulevard. So far they have had little response from state and city officials. Although there is a crossing guard at this intersection, about 300 children cross there every day.

To fill two trustee vacancies

School board special election rapped

by KATHERINE BOYCE
Board members and the administration at High School Dist. 207 yesterday questioned the legality of a special election to fill two vacancies on the school board.

Michael Bartos, Dist. 207 board member, announced his resignation effective June 15 on Tuesday and asked for a special election to fill his seat and the vacancy created when board member Edward Gregory resigned March 31.

Bartos told the Herald the board's handling of Gregory's resignation prompted him to resign. Gregory had taken a job in New York on Jan. 8 but the board did not accept his resignation, dated March 31 until its first regular meeting after the April school elections. The vacancy was filled by appointment the same night. Bartos said the vacancy should have been placed on the ballot.

"The hiding of the Gregory matter by Mr. Wuehrmann (then president of the board) was more than I could stomach," said Bartos.

ROBERT CLAUS, president of the Dist. 207 board, yesterday told the Herald "a school board has no power whatsoever to call for an election." Dist. 207 Supt. Richard Short said a special election is "not within the prerogative of the board." Wuehrmann said it would be "illegal."

The three men agreed that under the school code the board "shall fill the vacancy or vacancies until the next annual election," by appointment. If the board fails to appoint someone to the vacancy within 30 days, the county superintendent of schools shall call an election.

"A mere technicality," said Bartos. He said the board should allow the county superintendent to call a special election.

"I wonder if they were concerned about legality when Gregory resigned," said Bartos. "Why do they fear having the voters choose a replacement?"

BARTOS CONTENDED he was not included in discussions on Gregory's resignation.

"He never asked me," Wuehrmann said. "Traditionally these things are handled" (Continued on page 3)

Bus company: a losing proposition

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A News Analysis

Financially-troubled United Motor Coach Bus Co. pulled at its bootstraps last year to avoid record losses despite an increased operation deficit of more than $90,000.

Declining fare box revenue pushed operating losses to $171,322, an increase from $72,319 in 1971.

But addition of a heavily mortgaged school minibus system, one-year grants from local and state governments and sale of Interstate charter rights, reduced United losses to $54,513.88.

Officials of the bus firm, which has operated at a deficit since 1965, predicted last month that losses would total $85,000.

UNITED'S 1972 financial report, which has not been released publicly, and financial statements filed with the Illinois Department of Transportation (DOT), show that total bus company current assets are $158,340. Fixed assets — land and buses — total $745,000. Liabilities are $513,539 with another $265,489 in long-term debts.

City officials will receive a report next week analyzing bus company finances. Des Plaines Mass Transit District has negotiated to purchase United since last

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of aboring up the Viet cease-fire.

Fashion show Wednesday

Huge paper flowers will bloom in Maine West High School's auditorium on Wednesday at 8 p.m. when the school's home economics department presents its annual fashion show. Student committees have followed the show's theme, "Every Blooming Thing," in programs, invitations, script and decorations.

A vast array of fashions created and, in some cases, designed by clothing I, II and III classes throughout the year will be modeled. Approximately 125 students will model a collection which includes knits, formals, buggies, pants with cuffs, lingerie and much more.

Narrators for the show will be Karen Franz, Rosemary Logisz, Jane Schulenburg, Diana Wagner, Kathy Stephanen and Karl Tylor. Clothing instructors Mrs. Chloe Pahigianis and Mrs. Lynn MacIntyre are in charge of the production.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge, and refreshments will be served by the food classes following the show.

Holy Family fire caused by TV

Fire caused at least $1,200 in smoke damage at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Tuesday evening when a television set apparently short-circuited and burst into flames.

No one was injured in the fire, but Mrs. Patricia Brady, the patient occupying the second floor room, along with two other patients in adjoining rooms had to be evacuated.

Firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze before it was able to spread outside the room.

SRO '73 — SRO '73 IS BORN, Maine North High School's 23-act variety show, will be staged tonight, Friday and Saturday at the school, 951 Harrison St., Des Plaines. Students are hoping for an SRO (standing room only) crowd at the 8 p.m. performances. Among the featured acts are Ed Henzel, left, giving a male version of Laugh In's Edith Ann, and Lori Schoenherr in a comedy skit as a hopeful musician trying out for SRO. Tickets at $2 are available at the door. The public is invited.

by the president of the board and the superintendent. There is nothing mysterious," he said.

In a school district as old as Dist. 207 "certain traditions and customs and habits develop," he said, and the fact that the district has operated successfully "suggests that those traditions can't all be bad."

In his letter of resignation Bartos said some members of the board consider him an outsider. He said he has been left out of discussions between board members and with the administration several times in the past. He has been critical of the school board, saying it is pro-administration and seeks out pro-administration candidates for the board. He told the Herald, "An anti-administration voice is needed on any board."

Wehrmann said the pro-administration comment from Bartos is "an accurate observation. It wouldn't be in the best interest of the district to be anti-administration. Why would we want to oppose them?" he asked. "Our responsibility is to find, support and/or develop a staff that can run a school system."

Supt. Short said the relationship between the board and the administration has been "a good one." He said it is the responsibility of the administration to make recommendations to the board and it is the responsibility of the board to "review and evaluate professional recommendations."

When only a few board members are consulted by the administration on school operations what is the job of the other members of the board, Barbos said. He asked whether Short is "saying the board should be a rubber stamp."

Claus said he doesn't think a pro and anti-administration "dichotomy exists on the board." He said all board members "should pull in the same direction for the benefit of the students."

Wehrmann said "my function" and the function of all board members should be "that of a balance wheel." He said the school system is "like a fine watch" and it shouldn't be torn apart completely when one thing goes wrong.

Bartos said "In view of the Kerner and Watergate scandals everybody should be wary of administrators. The board of education and the administration must be accountable to the public."

BARTOS GAVE THE HERALD FOUR EXAMPLES showing how he has been ignored by the board and administration.

Three years ago he said he asked Short for a review of the department chairman structure at Dist. 207 and has yet to receive it. On several occasions he said he asked why there are no female administrators at Dist. 207, excluding department chairmen, and has received no answer. He said he asked how the district was distributing about $93,000 in fees from the cooperative adult education voice is needed on any board."

Bartos also charged that board member Roy Makela announced April 4 to an audience at a local junior high school that a referendum would be held this fall to secure funds for building expansion at Maine North High School. Bartos asked what right Makela had to make the announcement, when the board hadn't approved a referendum.

In responding to the announced resignation of Bartos, Claus told the Herald yesterday "I regret that he is resigning so soon after being reelected to a full term." Short said he was surprised that the board member's plans to move out of the district came so shortly after the election.

Bartos said he had not decided to move out of the district until after the elections when the board accepted Gregory's resignation and appointed a replacement. Prior to school elections he said he had been looking for a house in the Maine West High School attendance area but later decided to buy a house in Dundee.

High school students to attend night classes

Students in High School Dist. 214 will have the option of taking some of their classes at night starting in September.

The Dist. 214 board approved a plan in which regular high school students will be gradually encouraged to start taking some of their classes in the evening.

Asst. Supt. Rod McLennan told the board Monday he expects few students to take advantage of the option next year, but added that the number will probably increase as time goes on.

"I would expect that maybe by the third year, we would have 10 per cent of our students going to classes at night," McLennan said.

HIGH SCHOOL students would be integrated into some of the regular adult classes, McLennan said, but in some areas he would expect adults and high school students to be in separate classes.

"Some classes would have a mix of students and some would be segregated," he said. "Some people have told me that young people wouldn't want to go to school with older people and vice versa, so we'll have to see how it works out."

The board also approved an increase in tuition for the regular adult classes of $1 for most classes and $2 for those with the highest tuition. McLennan said the extra revenue from the tuition increase will be used to hire supervisors to maintain order in the buildings in the evening.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board voted four to two to accept the gym floor at Rolling Meadows High School provided the contractor refinishes the floor and provides a certificate of insurance protecting the district from liability for seven years.

The board has been unhappy with the installation of the floor since Rolling Meadows opened in 1971. Asst. Supt. Robert Weber said, "We will never accept that as a good floor," but added the arrangement with the contractor "is the best we can get short of going to court."

District officials have complained about the fact that the floor has too many wide cracks between boards. The insurance being provided by the contractor, Weber said, will pay any claims if anyone is injured because of the floor, but will not require the contractor to replace the floor for the school district.

In a few minutes the world wakes up

Your world begins each day at a certain time. If you're like most Northwest Suburban people, your day begins in a comfortable bedroom, in a warm home. Most of what you cherish is in that home. People you love; the intangibles that bind you to them, the security you've provided for them.

These are the things that make home ownership so important to most people. They're the same things that make our job so rewarding. For at First Federal Savings of Des Plaines, we've always considered home loans as more than mere financing of four walls and a roof. We've always tried to make home loans with the knowledge of the very personal and private satisfaction they can bring to people. And that is why our Home Loan with a Heart is more than a slogan. It's an important part of the lives of thousands of people in this area. And, we aim to keep it important for thousands more.

North School parents angry over safety plea responses

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Parents at North Elementary School in Des Plaines are angry.

For more than three years they have been asking for improvements on two intersections on Rand Road to make them more safe for about 300 children who cross the street every day to and from school.

So far they have had little assurance from city and state officials that the improvements will be made.

Pat Palbickie, chairman of the safety committee for the parent teachers association at North School, said although there is a crossing guard, parents have asked for a reduced speed limit on Rand Road, a traffic light at the school entrance on Rand, and a guardrail along the sidewalk and Rand and Elk Boulevard.

In NOVEMBER she said she sent a letter to the state highway department requesting a reduction in the speed limit which is now posted at 40 m.p.h. She received no answer. She said she called the secretary of state's office and was told that no action could be taken unless a tragedy occurred.

"I'm not going to donate my children to be hurt so the improvements will be made," she said.

Capt. Willard Blume of the Des Plaines Police Department said a traffic speed survey would have to be made before the city can approach the state with a request for a reduced speed limit. The survey, taken by radar, would be presented to City Engr. Robert Bowen, and then to the state, he said.

Reduced speed causes a traffic problem, said Blume. When traffic moves slower, the road becomes congested, especially when school is dismissed and traffic is heavier than normal, he said. Congested traffic increases the chances of an accident, he said.

The schools have their own traffic problems. In addition to North School students a bus deposits children from Chippewa Junior High School who live in the area at the Elk and Rand intersection.

EUGENE WASCO, principal at North School, said he requested a guardrail along the sidewalk at Elk Boulevard and Rand Road in a meeting of the Des Plaines Safety Council last December. The sidewalk, on the southeast corner of the intersection, is next to the curb with no parkway between them. Parents are concerned that a child will accidentally step off the curb when a car passes through the traffic light.

Blume told the Herald he hadn't heard of the request and did not attend the safety council meeting. He said he plans to investigate the parents' complaint.

A request for a traffic light at the North School entrance, 1780 Rand Rd., was turned down last year. Blume said a survey of traffic made in May last year did not show enough "turning movements" in and out of the school to justify a traffic light.

Wasco said the entrance is the school's "biggest safety problem." Since the school can't have a traffic light Wasco said he hopes more turning lanes can be constructed in the intersection to make the traffic flow more smoothly.

"One of the responsibilities we have here at school is safety," said Wasco. He said it doesn't make sense to wait for a child to be killed until the street can be made safer. Requests for safety improvements by parents "fell on deaf ears," he said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Palbickie and several other mothers at North School are taking their own precautions. Although she lives only a few blocks from the school, Mrs. Palbickie drives her children to and from school every day.

Local officials and homeowners representatives say they are hoping for a large turnout of residents in order to dramatize support for plans to acquire the base for park land.

STEVENSON played a major role in convincing the Navy to abandon its plans to build 140 housing units at the Nike Base and said he will continue to work to acquire the 52 acres of Navy-owned land at Wilke and Central roads for a park site.

A spokesman in Stevenson's Washington office said yesterday that the Senator is anxious to hear from citizens about the need for preserving the base as open space.

Tom McDonnell, vice president of the Surrey Ridge West Homeowners Association, said he is planning to distribute flyers throughout the subdivision urging people to attend the Pioneer Park meeting.

Students from the Juliette Low and Our Lady of the Wayside schools are also expected at the park. The Juliette Low School is located in the Surrey Ridge subdivision and Wayside is across from Pioneer Park.

Residents in the Surrey Ridge, Heritage Park and Surrey Ridge West subdivisions have been active supporters of acquiring Nike land for park use.

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District has submitted a proposal for turning the entire 137-acre base into a regional park after it is declared surplus to military needs.

The park district was granted recently 13 acres of land on the perimeter of the base, and has plans to develop a pitch-and-putt golf course on the property.

Before all or any part of the base can be turned over to park officials, it must be declared surplus to the needs of the military. After this, other federal and state governmental agencies are given the opportunity to acquire the land.

If none of these lay claim to the property, then local governmental units have a chance to secure it.

DURING THE last inspection of the base, only 13 acres were declared surplus. But now that the Navy has said it will not build housing on its portion of the base, local officials are hoping that all or part of the Navy land too will be judged excess to government needs.

The Navy has abandoned its plans to build housing at the Arlington Heights base for personnel at the Glenview Naval Air Station in favor of constructing the housing on Navy property near Libertyville.

The girl was released about a half hour after the robbery in Oak Park where she alerted police.

Kidnap, robbery suspect goes to grand jury

An Arlington Heights man charged with the armed robbery of a Des Plaines grocery store and the subsequent kidnapping of a 16-year-old store clerk last month has been bound over to a grand jury.

Roy Stover, 24, of 702 Haven St., Arlington Heights, waived his right to a preliminary hearing Tuesday in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court before Judge George Zimmerman; the case will go before a grand jury in Chicago criminal court.

Assistant State's Atty. Steve Kramer said the case will probably come up within the next few weeks because Stover is being held in custody, in Cook County jail.

STOVER was arrested by Cook County Sheriff's police outside his home March 21 after he allegedly robbed a Convenient Food Mart, 1920 Mannheim Rd., of $33 cash and took the girl hostage at gunpoint.

The girl was released about a half hour after the robbery in Oak Park where she alerted police.

The state's attorney's office filed charges of sexual assault against Stover at a preliminary hearing the day after his arrest.

Additional charges also were brought against Stover in connection with armed holdups in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

Stover could receive a minimum prison sentence of four years on each of the robbery charges if he is convicted, Kramer said.

If none of these lay claim to the property, then local governmental units have a chance to secure it.

DURING THE last inspection of the base, only 13 acres were declared surplus. But now that the Navy has said it will not build housing on its portion of the base, local officials are hoping that all or part of the Navy land too will be judged excess to government needs.

Big names to appear at August fair

An 11-day lineup of "big name" entertainers, including Johnny Cash, Skitch Henderson and Bob Hope, has been recruited for the Future of America Fair at Arlington Park Race Track, Aug. 24 to Sept. 3.

Fair promoters say the entertainment schedule, plus a variety of exhibits and a 17-acre amusement park, are expected to draw half a million people to Arlington Park for the summer event.

Celebrities scheduled to perform are: The Osmond Brothers, Springfield Revival, Aug. 24 and 25; Lynn Anderson, Boots Randolph and the Nashville Brass, Aug. 26; a drum and bugle pageant, Aug. 27; Johnny Cash, Aug. 28; and Engelbert Humperdinck, Aug. 29 and 30.

Other entertainers are Kenny Rogers and the First Edition and Dawn, Aug. 31; Mac Davis, Don Rice III and the Statler Brothers Sept. 1; Bobby Goldsboro, Donna Fargo and Art Linkletter, Sept. 2; Bob Hope and Joey Heatherton, Sept. 3.

SKITCH HENDERSON, former musical director on the NBC Tonight Show, will serve as master of ceremonies for each entertainment show.

The shows will be free to fairgoers and will begin at 8 p.m. each day in front of the race track grandstand.

The Future of America Fair is being sponsored by Madison Square Garden Corp., owner and operator of Arlington Park. A special use permit for the event was approved last winter by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

One of the conditions of the permit was that there would be no "hard rock" groups performing during the 11-day program.

Hours of the fair will be 11:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. week-days, and from 10:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. on weekends and Labor Day. Admission prices are $3 for adults and $1 for children aged 6-12. Children under 6 years old will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

ADVANCE TICKET sales for the fair are being handled by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce. Earl Johnson, executive director of the chamber, said ticket promotions will cover an area from Milwaukee to Gary, Ind., and west to Rockford.

Advance tickets are priced at $2.25 and will be available through Aug. 22.

In addition to the nightly entertainment events, the fair will feature agricultural, industrial, leisure living, aerospace and livestock exhibits, and a $20,000 junior golf tournament.

The tournament will be played at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel golf course and will feature 100 young golfers, aged 17 to 19, selected from golf clubs within a 150-mile radius of Arlington Park.

Each entrant will receive a $200 scholarship, and the top five finishers will be awarded trophies.

VERNON G. WENDLAND, director of the Future of America Fair and a former director of the Wisconsin State Fair, said he hopes the Future of America Fair will become an annual event at Arlington Park.

He said he hopes the fair will "make an impression" both in Arlington Heights and among fair promoters throughout the country who are watching the Future of America Fair as a possible new concept in fair entertainment.

"The Future of America Fair is another facet in the continuing development of a complete entertainment and recreation complex at Arlington Park," said John F. Loome, president of Arlington Park-Washington Park Race Tracks Corp.

"As the Northwest suburban area continues its amazing growth, Arlington Park-Washington Park Race Tracks will keep pace, building on its commitment to family entertainment with programs such as the Future of America Fair," he said.

Referring to the controversy over the 1973 racing schedules Loome said the fair's promoters had been "sitting on a hot griddle" wondering when they were going to be able to open the fair.

ARTIST THOMAS GRILLI of Des Plaines is painting and displaying his art at the Woodfield Art Fair, "Peoples of the World and Their Art," Grilli is one of 100 artists exhibiting at the fair which runs through Sunday. Shoppers can view their works in the shopping center's malls, located at Routes 53 and 72 in Schaumburg.

Erviti's pay hike not a dead issue yet

Poklacki and Judy Zanca have said they will bring up the issue.

Poklacki said, "I fully intend to open the discussion." Mrs. Zanca said, "It is going to come up again."

GERALD SMILEY said he did not plan to discuss the pay hike, but said he would fully support the right of any board member to bring up topics for discussion.

Mrs. Zanca also contends that the April 13 meeting was illegal and any action taken at the meeting is not valid.

She said the notice of the meeting did not meet certain legal requirements.

Poklacki, Mrs. Zanca and Smiley were the three board members who opposed the pay hike that was approved by a 4-3 vote of the board at a special meeting April 13. Erviti's salary was boosted to about $35,000.

Mrs. Zanca also contends that the April 13 meeting was illegal and any action taken at the meeting is not valid.

Mrs. Zanca requested the pay raise be placed on the agenda for Monday's meeting.

AT THE REGULAR board meeting April 16, Mrs. Zanca and Smiley attempted to discuss the raise, but ruled out of order.

Mrs. Zanca requested the pay raise be placed on the agenda for Monday's meeting.

Allen Sparks, newly elected president, said he would consult with the board's attorney on the legality of discussing a raise that had been already approved by the board.

Sparks said Tuesday that he had received the attorney's opinion that the pay raise approved at the April 13 meeting was legal.

Sparks also said the raise was now part of Erviti's contract with the school district. He said it would be "inappropriate" for the board to consider changing the contract unless Erviti agreed to the changes.

He said discussion of the pay hike would not be on the agenda, but any board member could bring it up. He said, however, that the pay hike "bordered on personnel matters" that would normally be discussed in executive session.

DURING executive session, a board meets privately, without the press or public present. Personnel matters are one topic authorized for executive session by the Illinois Open Meetings Law.

Although the pay hike could be discussed in executive session, any action by the board must be done in an open meeting.

At the April 13 meeting, two of the four board members approving the pay hike, Harry Peterson and Sharrie Hildebrandt, were "lame ducks." They did not seek reelection to the board and were replaced as members when the board was reorganized April 16.

Police are currently investigating leads into the theft including a license number given them by witnesses.

Both men were described as about 20 years old, five feet ten inches tall.

Operating expenses included $315,715 for maintenance and repairs, $66,984 for transportation, $5,278 for station maintenance, $106,556 for insurance, $123,195 for administration, $92,884 for taxes and licenses and $18,598 for interest.

The emergency transportation operation grant, filed with DOT April 24, showed that United carried $360,589 in "accounts payable" Jan. 1, 1973. Miscellaneous bills totaled $64,064; casualty insurance was $13,603; wages were $36,408; unpaid property taxes were $26,069 and vacation pay was $30,674.

THE GRANT application stated that the bus company borrowed $69,778 from Citizens Bank & Trust Co. to pay operating deficits in 1972. About $140,644 was due April 20 on the loan. United debts also include a three-year loan, at 7.5 percent, of nearly $395,715 to purchase the minibuses and radios. The original loan was $146,489.

Stockholders of the bus company — Mildred, Leonard, Bernice and Margaret Manuel and Phyllis N. Stokes — received the 1972 financial report at director's meeting April 16.

From the library

THE HANDCRAFTED jewelry currently being displayed at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland was designed and executed by Dorothy Thorson of Evanston. The pieces are one of a kind. In arranging the exhibit, Mrs. Thorson used nature forms and materials to contrast with the metal jewelry.

Mrs. Thorson has been making jewelry since 1968, when she took two courses at Evanston High School Adult Evening Classes. She has had exhibits in other libraries in the area and is very enthusiastic about her hobby. She does not make the jewelry for sale but would like to interest others in the craft.

Mrs. Thorson is a professional printmaker with a background of art training. Her prints have been entered in two national art shows and in many local group shows and art fairs, where they have won several awards.

(Continued from page 1) year. The city report, which will update a privately contracted study by consultants Ernst and Ernst, will compare predicted expenses this year under private and public ownership.

Financial rescue for the firm may rest in state and federal aid. United and 25 other carriers have applied for a share of $2 million included for "downstate" bus firms in the state legislature's $12.6 million Chicago Transit Authority bill.

Bus officials were in Springfield this week, to lobby for emergency state aid to the strike-plagued Evanston Bus Co. and were unavailable to comment.

BOTH UNITED and the Evanston company are included in a $4.7 million federal-state grant application by the North Suburban Mass Transit District that could provide 20 new United buses.

United operating income in 1972 was $1,210,733, the report filed with DOT states. Regular fares totaled $941,800. Charters were $255,740. Student fares from state funds were $31,881. Advertising, rent, and vending machine commissions totaled $11,497.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U.S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background.

The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 185 persons for official corruption.

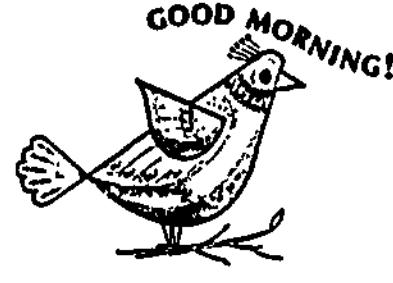

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing. (Continued on page 2)

Village may hire lobbyist for General Assembly

Elk Grove Village may hire a lobbyist to protect its interests at the Illinois General Assembly in Springfield.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek said yesterday he feels a lobbyist would be extremely useful to the village and a good spokesman could save the village money by preventing harmful legislation from being passed. He said he would make a formal proposal to hire a lobbyist soon.

There seems to be a rash of "income legislation" that would redistribute revenue to municipalities, and some of it would be detrimental to Elk Grove Village if passed, Zettek said. "I am very much in favor of having someone down-state to represent us to see those bills don't get out of committee or don't get passed," he said.

Zettek said the idea of hiring a lobbyist was discussed recently at a meeting of the Northwest Municipal Conference, an organization of towns in the Northwest suburbs. He said if the villages joined together to hire a lobbyist, then it would cost less to each village.

SCHAUMBURG, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Rolling Meadows receive income from industrial property taxes and sales taxes just like Elk Grove Village, and one lobbyist could protect everyone's interest, Zettek said. He estimated it would cost Elk Grove Village $2,000 to support a cooperative Springfield lobby, and he added it could cost less if more municipalities participated in the program.

"A lobbyist is a wise investment because the money we spend on his salary could be recovered many times over by his protecting us from losing revenue," Zettek said.

Zettek said there is a bill in Springfield that could cost Elk Grove Village a half million dollars a year by redistributing money from sales tax.

At the present time communities get one cent of every five cents the state collects in sales tax. Under the proposal, a community with a large commercial district would get only 20 per cent of its current sales tax rebate and the rest of the money would be redistributed to communities that don't have as many stores as a source of revenue.

ZETTEK SAID it is bills like this proposal that a lobbyist would be working to defeat on behalf of Elk Grove Village.

Zettek said the trustees have indicated they might be willing to hire a lobbyist, but they first want more facts on exactly what the lobbyist would do.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said she is in favor of the general idea of hiring a lobbyist, but wants to know "how he will perform, for whom and at what price."

She said if several villages join together to hire a lobbyist, it could lead to a conflict of interest if the towns want the lobbyist to work for opposite goals.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Giglotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collingswood, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced negativists" surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

Hundreds of police seized the coffin of a slain colleague from its hearse and paraded it around downtown Madrid demanding permission to use firearms against demonstrators.

'Excellence' to be village theme: Zettek

Excellence in government will be the theme of the new Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees, Pres. Charles Zettek said Tuesday at the installation of new village officers.

At the village board meeting, Zettek took the oath of office along with Village Clerk Lee Turner and Trustees Nanci Vanderweel, George Spees, Ted Stadler and Mike Tosto.

Zettek said excellence in government doesn't come easy, and there are many obstacles and hardships. He said it is very easy to become satisfied with adequacy, and adequacy leads to mediocrity.

"I will commit myself to excellence and ask the same of the trustees and demand it of the staff," he said. As part of this program of excellence, Zettek said he will hold accountability sessions for residents who have any questions or criticisms of the village.

ZETTEK SAID, "It takes guts to go down the road of excellence, and I will pursue it with vigor."

Mrs. Turner, who served as village clerk for 10 years, said it was good to be back to the job after a 2½-year "vacation" away from it. "I have a special feeling for the village, and I thank the voters for their confidence," she said.

The new trustees spoke briefly to thank their campaign workers and the people who voted for them.

ALSO AT the meeting, Grover Streich and Barbara Walsh were sworn in as trustees of the Elk Grove Village Library Board.

Retiring Village Clerk Richard McGrenner and Trustee Robert Dunning were both given plaques and honored citizens certificates for their service to the village.

In other business:

• A resolution was passed supporting Arlington Heights' attempts to convert the 140-acre Nike missile base at Wilke and Central roads into a recreation area.

The federal government had plans to build houses on the base but they were scuttled this week. Instead, the housing units will be built in Libertyville.

• The village attorney was directed to prepared an ordinance for rezoning a 2½-acre site at Brummel Avenue and Ill. Rte. 83 from industrial to business. A retail furniture warehouse is planned for the site.

• All fees were waived for the VFW to sell poppies on Poppy Day, May 24.

Board votes against teacher pact, 4-3

The High School Dist. 214 board voted 4 to 3 last night against a proposed three-year salary contract with its teachers.

Following the vote, representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining out for the teachers, said some teachers would react "violently" to the board action and said the move is sure to intensify a power struggle within the teachers' ranks.

The proposed contract, which would have raised the base pay for a beginning teacher from $8,600 a year to $9,300 a year next year and to $9,650 by the 1975-76 school year. It was worked out by a six-man "impasse resolving committee" which included two board members, Supt. Edward Gilbert and three teachers.

Board members Jack Costello, Arthur Aronson, Richard Bachhuber and Warren Schabinger voted against the pact. Board Pres. Gene Artemenko, Jack Matthews and Donald Hoeck voted for it. Artemenko and Matthews served on the "impasse resolving committee."

THE CONTRACT dispute will now be submitted to a three member fact-finding board which will be made up of one representative from each side and a professional arbiter. The board designated Costello as its representative on the fact-finding board.

Earlier in the day, the district's teachers voted to accept the pact by 563 to 116.

The board members voting against the contract said they objected to the fact it left the index, which makes all salaries a fixed percentage of the base, untouched. Board members have objected to the expense caused by the index, saying the district could not afford to guarantee that top pay will be more than twice the base pay.

Vince Carlioti, president of the education association, said he was surprised and disappointed by the board action.

The market

The expectation of traders that President Nixon would take a strong stand on stemming inflation boosted prices in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones Industrial average gained ground, closing up 11.13 at 932.34. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, climbed 1.33 to 118.43. The average price of a NYSE common share gained 49 cents.

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruthie Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulling back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .375 calibre Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

* Carbona ordered her home at 10:15

p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

* When she arrived home, Carbona "cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

* Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

* Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

* She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

* Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he was going to blow my . . . guts out," she said. She said she told Carbona her leg and body hurt so badly "I didn't care what he did."

* Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

* She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

* Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

* Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your . . . brains out," before he started down the stairs.

MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Policemen told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

Ruthe Carini, 11 and William Carini, 10, said they were awakened in the middle of the night Dec. 21, 1971 by the argument between their mother and stepfather.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing their stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruthie Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

The local scene ELK GROVE

Football signup already

It may be baseball season, but the Elk Grove Village Athlete Association is now planning for football. Registration for boys interested in playing football this fall will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and again on May 12 and May 19 at the meeting room of Elk Grove Bowl, Arlington Heights and Higgins roads, or Grant Wood School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd.

Early registration is needed so arrangements for playing fields, equipment and insurance can be made.

Boys will be participating in a Pop Warner football league. Teams will be formed according to the boy's ages and weights.

Clearmont fun fair Saturday

Clearmont School will have its annual fun fair from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the school, Clearmont Drive and Ridge Avenue.

The theme of the fair is "Ecology Today" and this week the children have been collecting newspapers for the recycling center.

The fair will feature games, refreshments, rummage sale and bake sale.

Lions' rummage sale set

The Elk Grove Village Lions Club will begin its three-day annual rummage sale at 6 p.m. tomorrow at 2450 American Ln., off Devon Avenue.

The sale will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. tomorrow, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. Sale items include household goods, garden equipment, electrical appliances, furniture and clothing.

Proceeds from the rummage sale will be used for Lions Club civic programs, and assisting blind and handicapped persons.

Election ballots to be recounted

Ballots for the two-year trustee term in the Elk Grove Village election will be recounted Tuesday by the village board of trustees.

Candidate Alvin Krasnow filed to contest the election last week after he was defeated by Michael Tosto, 1,064 votes to 1,040. James Gibson, a third candidate in the race, received 587 votes.

The village board meeting, which is regularly at 8 p.m. Tuesday, is scheduled for 7 p.m. next week, and the recount will be immediately after the meeting.

Summer school to feature wide variety of classes

Pick almost any unusual topic, from beginning yoga to horsemanship to sports news writing, and the special summer program at Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will probably have a class on that topic.

For the summer, the district is offering a wide variety of special interest classes at 15 of the 20 district schools. The standard academic development courses are also available, but the district is encouraging enrollment in special interest classes.

Philip Thornton, director of the summer school program, said in a cover letter sent home with students that the purpose of the summer program is to expose children "to a fun environment that involves exploration and participation for the sheer joy of learning."

Many special courses are offered throughout the district, but certain schools have unique classes.

FOR EXAMPLE, Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village has a course in horsemanship. Students will go horseback riding one day each week. The other four days will be spent studying different types of riding equipment and learning how to care for horses.

Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect is offering regular and "mini" courses. Included in the special "mini" offerings are poetry in rock music, sports news writing and broadcasting, electronic kit building and a course on becoming a referee for different sports.

Brantwood School in Des Plaines has a "charm farm" for girls only. The class will cover beauty care, clothing and party planning. The class will end with a special party for the girls and their mothers.

Rupley School in Elk Grove Village has a class on beginning yoga.

Among the special classes offered at most schools are: dramatics, reading enrichment and different sports and physical education programs.

A booklet describing the exact courses offered at each school has been distributed to the students.

THE SIX-WEEK summer session begins June 25 and ends Aug. 3. There will be no school on July 4. A $5 registration fee will be charged and registration can be done at the particular schools between May 7 and June 1. After June 1, a late registration fee of $7.50 will be charged.

Elementary school classes will be between 8:30 and 11:45 a.m. Junior high school classes will be between 8 and 11:15 a.m.

Free bus service will be available for students at their regular schools. Children may enroll for classes at a school other than the one they normally attend, but parents will be required to furnish transportation.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U. S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background.

The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Plan unit urges continued growth on Northwest Hwy.

Commercial and multi-family development along Northwest Highway west of the Palatine Plaza should be allowed to continue, according to the Palatine Plan Commission.

Commissioners decided after lengthy discussion Tuesday night to encourage the development of well-planned commercial complexes set back from the highway.

The commissioners in general rejected the concept of separate buildings with little room for off-street parking, such as the commercial strip along Northwest Highway-Hicks Road.

Their conclusion basically coincides with the recommendations of Wilton L. Battles, a land planning consultant who was commissioned by the plan commission to study development of Northwest Highway in about two years.

They agreed with a recommendation by acting chairman Conrad Hansen that clusters of stores, such as the Village Oasis, be developed to limit the number of driveways onto the highway. And, the plan commissioners suggested, the stores should be set back from the highway so they aren't condemned when land is needed for the widening of Northwest Highway in about two years.

SOME 41 PER cent of highway frontage on the 1½-mile stretch between Hicks and Quentin is undeveloped, mostly on the south side of the road.

The precedent for commercial and multi-family growth along the highway has clearly been set. The north side of the highway includes the Sellergren "Old Madrid" apartments plus undeveloped Sellergren frontage zoned for commercial use; St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly; an Eagle food store complex (under development); the Palatine Animal Hospital; a 42-unit condominium project (approved but not yet built); and Uncle Andy's Cow Palace (in unincorporated Palatine Township).

Battles stated in his six-page report that "good quality specialized commercial uses far outweigh the residential alternative . . . and should be encouraged to develop and locate (on Northwest Highway between Hicks and Quentin roads)."

SOME OF THE plan commissioners indicated that they felt the Battles report didn't draw any conclusions that weren't already obvious. No estimate of the cost of the report was available yesterday.

The plan commission's endorsement of continued commercial development of the highway is to be discussed further at later meetings.

The recommendations probably will be incorporated into an updated version of the village's master plan for future development. The plan commission has been instructed by the newly-elected village board to review the present 9-year-old master plan.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

The state

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Gigliotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collingsville, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced negativists" surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The world

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

Hundreds of police seized the coffin of a slain colleague from its hearse and paraded it around downtown Madrid demanding permission to use firearms against demonstrators.

His last words: I didn't mean to hurt you, baby

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruth Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulled back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .375 caliber Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

* Carbona ordered her home at 10:15 p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

* When she arrived home, Carbona

"cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

* Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

* Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

* She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

* Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he was going to blow my '---' guts out," she said. She said she told Carbona her leg and body hurt so badly "I didn't care what he did."

* Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

* She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

* Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

* Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your '---' brains out," before he started down the stairs.

MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Policemen told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

Ruth Carini, 11 and William Carini, 10, said they were awakened in the middle of the night Dec. 21, 1971 by the argument between their mother and stepfather.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing their stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruth Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

Watershed reports on way to D.C.

The water pollution report for the Upper Salt Creek Watershed program was sent to Washington yesterday, hopefully clearing the way for federal action on the program.

Howard Busch, state conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS), said the report will be reviewed in the service's main office.

The report and the watershed work plan will then be submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the Council for Environmental Quality (CEQ).

BUSH SAID the law requires that the CEQ keep all information on the watershed project on file for 30 days. During this time, no work that would use federal funds can be contracted.

Busch said that depending upon when the CEQ receives the reports, the 30-day waiting period would be over between the middle and end of June.

During the time the reports are on file, the OMB will include allocations for the workplan in the conservation service's fiscal budget.

When the 30-day filing period is over, the OMB will then send the work plan to the Congressional public works committee for a resolution approving the expenditure of funds. The resolution does not allocate funds specifically for the project, but authorizes the SCS to include the watershed as a project for which it can spend federal funds.

Local watershed officials have said they hope to get federal approval prior to the 1974 fiscal year, which begins July 1.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed program is a $26.5 million project to build a series of flood controls on the creek. Federal funds for approximately half the project are being requested. The balance of funds would come from the state and local government sponsors of the watershed plan.

THE PROGRAM IS designed to relieve flooding in the 33,280-acre flood plain of Salt Creek which flows through Cook, Lake and DuPage counties.

Northwest suburban villages that have co-sponsored the work plan are Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Palatine and Rolling Meadows. Other local sponsors include various park districts, the Cook County Forest Preserve and the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The largest of the flood controls would be a 559-acre retention basin in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The area around the basin would be developed as a recreational area.

In flood times, the basin would fill about 1,300 acres.

The water pollution report includes replies to questions raised by the Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA contended the water in the Busse Woods retention basin would become stagnant and polluted.

Officials from the conservation service and the EPA met early last month to resolve the possible pollution problems. A promise to test the water regularly apparently satisfied the EPA.

Inquest postponed

Cook County coroner's officials have postponed yesterday's scheduled inquest into the death of Richard Hexel, 408 Comfort Ln., Palatine, who died Monday apparently from injuries suffered in an auto accident Saturday.

Rolling Meadows police said yesterday the inquest date was changed to June 11. No reason was given for the change, possibly said.

Hexel, 43, suffered head injuries when his auto was struck by another auto driven by Eugene C. Micari, 25, of 1507 Joan Dr., Palatine. The accident occurred early Saturday at Algonquin Road and Tollview Drive in Rolling Meadows.

Micari was arrested yesterday by Rolling Meadows police on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Bond had originally been set at $20,000 but was ordered reduced yesterday to $7,500 when Micari could not post the original bond.

A court date has been set for May 22 for Micari to answer the manslaughter charge as well as drunk driving charges stemming from the incident.

Local watershed officials have said

$30,000 hike for parks?

the lowest taxing rates, about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation, of any park district in the area. The bulk of the district's tax revenue comes from the Arlington Park Race Track and Arlington Park Towers Hotel, both located in the district.

Some $65,000 in taxes is expected to be collected by the district this year, DeVos said. He said the rest of the needed money will be raised through fees for programs and contributions to the district.

"IT'S A LOT to raise but I estimate we'll take in enough," DeVos said. He said the district will be able to raise the funds through expanded programming and through better working arrangements for the district's tennis and swim programs.

Many of the programs offered by the district use facilities rented or donated by businesses in the park district. These include the Arlington Park Towers, where swim lessons are offered, and the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

Last month, however, relations between the district and the hotel became strained when hotel management ordered the end of the district's free use of the swimming pool for free swim time. Free swim time was also canceled at the Howard Johnson Inn, where the district was also being given time at no charge.

Technically, the district has begun operating under the new budget already since the fiscal year began Tuesday, but DeVos said the park board has not adopted the package yet.

"They didn't pass it during the meeting Tuesday," DeVos said. "There don't seem to be any problems, it's just that they were interested in talking about other matters, like master planning, and they didn't have time to go into the budget in detail."

He said the board could act on the budget at its next meeting in June.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U. S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 186 persons for official corruption.

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing

Teacher contract voted down, 4-3, by school board

The High School Dist. 214 board voted 4 to 3 last night against a proposed three-year salary contract with its teachers.

Following the vote, representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining ult for the teachers, said some teachers would react "violently" to the board action and said the move is sure to intensify a power struggle within the teachers' ranks.

The proposed contract, which would have raised the base pay for a beginning teacher from $8,600 a year to $9,300 a year next year and to $9,650 by the 1975-76 school year. It was worked out by a six-man "impasse resolving committee" which included two board members, Sup't Edward Gilbert and three teachers.

Board members Jack Costello, Arthur Aronson, Richard Bachhuber and Warren Schabinger voted against the pact. Board Pres. Geno Artemenko, Jack Matthews and Donald Hoeck voted for it. Artemenko and Matthews served on the "impasse resolving committee."

THE CONTRACT dispute will now be submitted to a three member fact-finding board which will be made up of one representative from each side and a professional arbiter. The board designated Costello as its representative on the fact-finding board.

Earlier in the day, the district's teachers voted to accept the pact by 563 to 116.

The board members voting against the contract said they objected to the fact it left the index, which makes all salaries a fixed percentage of the base, untouched.

Board members have objected to the expense caused by the index, saying the district could not afford to guarantee that top pay will be more than twice the base pay.

Vince Carioti, president of the education association, said he was surprised and disappointed by the board action. "This is going to apparently confirm the suspicions of some teachers that the board is not to be taken at face value," he said.

He said the board action will be used by teachers who have been trying to get the district association to affiliate with a state and national organization, either the Illinois Education Association (IEA) or the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

"THERE ARE SOME of the teachers in our district who feel we don't have the expertise to negotiate with the board because we're independent," Carioti said. "I'm sure they are going to use this to try to discredit us."

John Smith, head of the association bargaining team, said, "There'll be individual teachers who will want to take some action. I don't know how far they will get with it."

Board member Artemenko said as a member of the impasse committee he was disappointed that the board didn't approve the proposed pact. "All six of the people on the committee thought the three-year agreement was extremely advantageous for both sides. It turns out to be exactly the opposite."

Last year contract talks between the two sides were not resolved until November. The major stumbling block at that time was the board's desire to eliminate the index.

Adlai here to talk on park site

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III will tour the Arlington Heights Nike Base and then meet with residents during a visit to Arlington Heights tomorrow morning.

Stevenson is scheduled to arrive at the Nike site about 9:30 a.m. and will tour the base with local officials and military officers.

After the tour, Stevenson is scheduled to go to Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave., to meet with residents. The meeting at the park is open to all interested citizens and is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Local officials and homeowners representatives say they are hoping for a large turnout of residents in order to dramatize support for plans to acquire the base for park land.

STEVENSON played a major role in convincing the Navy to abandon its plans to build 140 housing units at the Nike Base and said he will continue to work to acquire the 52 acres of Navy-owned land at Wilke and Central roads for a park site.

A spokesman in Stevenson's Washington office said yesterday that the Senator is anxious to hear from citizens about the need for preserving the base as open space.

Tom McDonnell, vice president of the Surrey Ridge West Homeowners Association, said he is planning to distribute flyers throughout the subdivision urging people to attend the Pioneer Park meeting.

Students from the Juliette Low and Our Lady of the Wayside schools are also expected at the park. The Juliette Low School is located in the Surrey Ridge subdivision and Wayside is across from Pioneer Park.

Park probe ends; no action expected

Officials at the Cook County State's Attorney's Office yesterday indicated they will take no action as a result of an investigation of the Rolling Meadows Park District.

"It looks like there is no basis for prosecution at this time," said Michael O'Mara, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office.

O'Mara said he had forwarded a report he received from investigators Stephen Dillon and Patrick Shannon on the park district to Morton Friedman, chief of the state's attorney's office criminal division.

Friedman will make the final determination if there is a basis for prosecution and if the state's attorney's office will prosecute, said O'Mara.

The investigation into the park district was prompted by an investigation series that appeared in the Herald last fall. It was presented to Ralph A. Berkowitz, special assistant to State's Atty. Bernard Carey, by four members of the ad hoc committee of a Citizens for a Tax Free Park District, a watch-dog committee of park district activities.

The Herald series revealed possible conflicts of interest involving William Billings, park board president; mismanagement of 1969 bond referendum funds; and violations of the Illinois State Statutes in regard to taking bids and conducting special meetings.

She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

$30,000 increase seen in park budget

An increase of some $30,000 is expected in the 1973-74 working budget for the Salt Creek Park District, according to Jim DeVos, director of parks and recreation.

DeVos said yesterday the park board is considering a working budget totaling about $93,000 due to expanded programming in comparison to last year's budget which totaled about $60,000. The increase will not mean tax increase, however, since the extra money will be generated from fees, charges and donations to the district, DeVos added.

Salt Creek currently maintains one of the lowest taxing rates, about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation, of any park district in the area. The bulk of the district's tax revenue comes from the Arlington Park Race Track and Arlington Park Towers Hotel, both located in the district.

Some $65,000 in taxes is expected to be collected by the district this year, DeVos said. He said the rest of the needed money will be raised through fees for programs and contributions to the district.

"IT'S A LOT to raise, but I estimate we'll take in enough," DeVos said. He said the district will be able to raise the funds through expanded programming and through better working arrangements for the district's tennis and swim programs.

Many of the programs offered by the district use facilities rented or donated by businesses in the park district. These include the Arlington Park Towers, where swim lessons are offered, and the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

Last month, however, relations between the district and the hotel became strained when hotel management ordered the end of the district's free use of the swimming pool for free swim time. Free swim time was also canceled at the Howard Johnson Inn, where the district was also being given time at no charge.

Management at the hotels said rowdy conduct on the part of park district swimmers caused the move. DeVos said yesterday, however, that a meeting between district officials and the Arlington Park Towers management will be held soon to attempt to reinstate at least one day for free swim time.

SWIM LESSONS are continuing to be offered at the Towers and will be part of the district's programming next year, DeVos added.

Expenditures in other areas, particularly in the district's summer playground program, will also account for the higher budget, DeVos said. He said he anticipates as much as a 50 per cent increase in personnel for the summer playground program over last year's total.

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District has submitted a proposal for turning the entire 137-acre base into a regional park after it is declared surplus to military needs.

The park district was granted recently 13 acres of land on the perimeter of the base, and has plans to develop a pitch-and-putt golf course on the property.

Before all or any part of the base can be turned over to park officials, it must be declared surplus to the needs of the military. After this, other federal and state governmental agencies are given the opportunity to acquire the land.

If none of these lay claim to the property, then local governmental units have a chance to secure it.

DURING THE last inspection of the base, only 13 acres were declared surplus. But now that the Navy has said it will not build housing on its portion of the base, local officials are hoping that all or part of the Navy land too will be judged excess to government needs.

The Navy has abandoned its plans to build housing at the Arlington Heights base for personnel at the Glenview Naval Air Station in favor of constructing the housing on Navy property near Libertyville.

Information campaign to kick off Bridge Week

Bridge Week kicks off May 12, when teens begin distributing information about the youth services bureaus to areas served by The Bridge.

Continuing through May 20, Bridge Week is aimed at familiarizing area residents with The Bridge and its services and raising funds for special programs in the coming year, according to Don Rago, executive director.

On Saturday, May 12, teens will canvass Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships and the villages of Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Barrington with information about The Bridge. At the end of the day, "taggers" will celebrate their first day of Bridge Week in Arlington Heights.

Open house at The Bridge offices, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, will be May 14 from 7-10 p.m.

STORYTELLER Ruven Gold will weave fables and stories of different cultures and religions at a special session on May 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Bridge Week officially winds up with a rock and folk circus at Barrington High School from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. May 20. The "All-American Boogie Woogie Rock and Folk Circus" will feature carnival games, refreshments and music by local groups.

The Bridge is operated by the Palatine Township Youth Committee and is staffed by 11 professional counselors. Its services include counseling, a telephone hotline, legal referrals, health services, community outreach workers and the drop-in center.

Funding for The Bridge originally came from Palatine Township, but other area townships, Elk Grove and Schaumburg, have promised $10,000 each for The Bridge's budget, and Wheeling Township officials are considering a similar allotment.

More information about Bridge Week activities are available from Jean Fisler or Dave Russell at 359-7490.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U.S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 195 persons for official corruption.

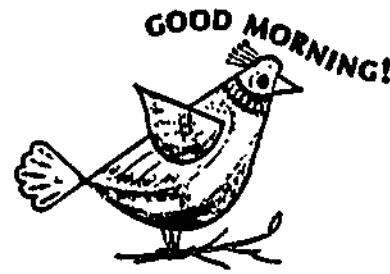

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing. (Continued on page 2)

Weaver replaces Barber as park board president

Hoffman Estates Park District commissioners elected new officers Tuesday and George Rush, newly elected board member, was sworn in.

Fred Weaver was elected board president. Weaver served as president of the board from 1970 until 1972. Weaver, however, said he plans to resign from his seat on the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission.

The board voted to recommend appointment of Tom Barber, former park board president, to replace Weaver.

The recommendation of Barber may pose the first test of post election suggestions made by Republicans, who swept all village posts, that Civic Party officials remain involved in village activities.

Barber was one of the organizers of the Civic Party and served on the group's nominating committee.

The village planning unit has included representatives from other taxing bodies within the village for several years.

Barber said he was pleased by the park board's recommendation, adding he did not feel his involvement in the Civic Party would have any bearing on the recommendation.

"This is a matter concerning the park district, which is a non-political entity and has nothing to do with the Civic Party," Barber explained.

He plans to make formal application to the village for the plan commission post in the near future.

"I feel that I am qualified for that board and I hope the village officials agree," he said.

Barber's appointment must be ratified by the village board.

Other park board officers elected, included George Seaver vice president, George Rush, treasurer and Claude Crase, secretary.

40-lane bowling alley eyed near Weatherway

A 40-lane bowling alley is planned south of the Weatherway Shopping Plaza, where Hartford Drive is to extend into Roselle Road.

The property is zoned B-2 (business) and owner James Teufel sought parking approval Tuesday night from the Schaumburg Plan Commission. Fairlane Bowling will operate the business. According to Fairlane's representative, the firm does not franchise any of its lanes and provides its own management and operation.

The commission said parking was inadequate as presently drawn, but that there was plenty of room on the property for sufficient parking. Teufel said new drawings rearranging the spaces will be prepared this week.

The commission will meet again May 8 at 7:30 p.m. to consider the parking problem. Approximately 200 spaces are required, depending on the number of persons employed. Village ordinance requires four spaces for each lane, and an additional 16 spaces are required for the small bar and snack bar that will be part of the alley.

A liquor license will be requested May 8 to extend the road, Teufel said. Dick Nomellini, plan commission chairman, also asked Teufel to clear up present confusion over when and how Hartford Drive will be extended.

Campbell Bros., initial owners of land adjacent to Hartford Drive, have agreed to extend the road, Teufel said. Work should begin this month, he added.

Screening and landscaping may also be required to buffer the bowling alley from an existing residential area to the north, Nomellini said.

WALK FOR MANKIND . . . Schaumburg Jaycees are seeking volunteers to follow the 20-mile route outlined above in an effort to raise funds for an international project aimed at improving medical treatment of persons in underdeveloped countries. The walk in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg will take place on May 12. Jaycees hope to attract 3,000 walkers for the project.

Volunteers signing up for 'Walk'

Walkers and other volunteers are beginning to register for the Schaumburg Jaycees "Walk for Mankind" project slated for May 12.

Walk officials said nearly 60 persons have registered for the 20-mile walk which is aimed at raising funds for Project Concern, an international Jaycee program to bring medical help to underdeveloped nations.

Jaycee officials are canvassing area schools in hopes of attracting more walkers. They hope to sign 3,000 walkers before the project steps off from Schaumburg High School.

Walkers will be asked to acquire sponsors who pledge to pay a certain amount for each mile covered during the project.

"WE ARE LOOKING for people 8 to 80 to show their concern for the countless thousands of sick, hungry and impoverished people throughout the U.S. and the world," said Marty Mayer, chairman of the project.

"This will not only be a worthwhile effort, but it will also be fun," he added. Free refreshments, rock bands and other entertainment will be offered along the walk route.

He said active support has been received from both Conant and Schaumburg High School and the Jaycees hope to attract other students and area residents to the walk.

The walk begins at 8 a.m. and will continue until dark. Walkers and volunteers who would like to work at checkpoints or help with refreshments may call Char Kozak at 894-1211 for more information.

A 'bouncing baby boy'? You bet!

by STEVE BROWN

When friends and neighbors refer to Russell Elliot Wright as a "bouncing baby boy," they may be describing the week-old infant more accurately than they could imagine.

Young Russ, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wright of 2118 Canterbury Ct., South Barrington came into the world on the first hop, Sunday, and he has a knot on his noggin to prove it.

"He came as a surprise," said Margaret Wright, Russell's mother, "in fact, he was born on the driveway of our house."

Russell and his mother are in fine condition now however, despite his rather unusual beginnings. The youngster weighed in at seven pounds, nine ounces and was 20 inches long.

Mrs. Wright praised the treatment she and Russell received when they arrived at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

"The people at the hospital were just great," she added.

MRS. WRIGHT said her husband took the whole experience pretty well.

"He was like the Rock of Gibraltar when it was all happening, but later I thought he was going to faint," she said.

Russell is the eighth child born to the Wrights and the fifth son. The children, who range in age from 10 years to one week, all have the initials REW.

"He is the first we have had outside of the hospital," Mrs. Wright added.

She said personnel at the hospital performed a number of tests immediately to make sure the baby was all right.

"After he slipped out of our hands at home, we rushed down Algonquin Road to get to the hospital because we were not sure that he was all right," Mrs. Wright said.

"He had decided to join our company on such short notice that we did not have time to even get to the car."

Mrs. Wright said her son's grand entrance into the world should ensure him a special place in the family.

"We sure were surprised," she repeated.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

The state

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Gigliotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collingsville, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced negotiators" surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The world

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

His last words: I didn't mean to hurt you, baby

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

BY ANNE SLAVICEK
Ruthie Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulling back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 39, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .355 caliber Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

* Carbona ordered her home at 10:15

p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

* When she arrived home, Carbona "cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

* Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

* Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

* She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

* Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he

* Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

* She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

* Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

* Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your '---' brains out," before he started down the stairs.

MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Policemen told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

Ruthie Carboni, 11, and William Carboni, 10, said they were awakened in the middle of the night Dec. 21, 1971 by the argument between their mother and stepfather.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing their stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruthie Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was a heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

Hoffman employees list pact demands

Hoffman Estates employees have released a list of demands that probably will form the basis of any contract negotiations with the village.

The demands, which center around working condition improvements, came after the general membership of the recently-unionized work force agreed with their leader's decision to wait until Monday's village board meeting to reinstate their strike threat.

The employees, who are affiliated with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, threatened an immediate strike vote Tuesday unless the village gave immediate recognition.

The union dropped the threat however, after a closed door meeting Tuesday night between Village Mayor Virginia Hayter, George Longmeyer, village manager, and Edward Hofert, village attorney.

After the general membership meeting, union officials said they would wait until after the board meets Monday to make a decision on what action they might take.

The ten-point union statement does not include specifics, but contends "that public works employees adequately paid, properly-trained, and reasonably equipped will be more effective than those who are not."

The statement also recommends the establishment of a grievance procedure, open door policies, better working conditions, and the elimination of conflicting work assignments.

BILL BUNTA, staff representative of the AFSCME AFL-CIO, said he expects the question of union recognition to be resolved with the village board Monday. If the union is recognized immediate steps could be taken to begin contract bargaining sessions, he added.

Village officials offered no comment on the outcome of Tuesday's meeting, but said a detailed statement would be issued at the board meeting.

Union officials had refused to discuss contract demands with the village, before the recognition issue is settled.

Several village trustees stated during the village election campaign that they would not oppose the formation of a union in the village.

It is expected that the village board's discussion on the union matter will take place in executive session.

The union formally notified village officials of its existence last month. They had issued a strike threat at that time, but were persuaded to wait until after the village election before pressing demands further.

Teachers, board weigh multi-year pact

Interest in a multi-year contract has been hinted at by negotiators representing both teachers and the board of education in Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54.

The possibility of a contract covering more than one school year was questioned because teachers in High School Dist. 214 were considering ratification of a similar contract yesterday.

Gordon Thoren, co-chairman of the board's negotiation team, yesterday said, "It's interesting."

"There is no denying that contract negotiations take a lot of time and it would be easier to face the task every three years instead of yearly," he added.

NEITHER THOREN, nor Jay Hansen, chairman of the teacher's team, would reveal if a three-year contract could be part of negotiations currently going on in Dist. 54.

Hansen, speaking personally, saw no objections to a multi-year contract if it started with a good salary and included consideration for cost of living increases.

Negotiations are scheduled to continue on May 21 and May 30.

Beginning teachers in Dist. 54 with a bachelor of science degree are paid a base salary of $8,135 a year. A beginning teacher with a master of arts degree would start at $8,949. Adding years of experience and additional hours of graduate work to the educational achievement of the teacher increases the salary.

LAST YEAR'S negotiations also started in March and finalized in September. Agreement did not come easily and at one point the teachers declared an impasse.

Settlement finally came at a session in Airport boosters gung-ho over Irving Park strip

Schaumburg Airport Boosters consider a 3,000-foot landing strip south of Irving Park Road "something meaningful between the earth and sky."

They look at the east-west asphalt path as the portal to their world and the doorway to nearly every city in America.

"Generally, our aim is to improve airport relations both externally and internally," Jules Szwedko, Boosters president, May 2.

THE STUDY, to be performed by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago engineering consulting firm, has been planned to determine feasibility, both economically and environmentally, of a municipal airport. Two-thirds of the cost of the study will be funded by an FAA planning grant.

Members, Szwedko stressed is open to anyone interested in aviation and not limited to either pilots or airport users.

The group intends to encourage aviation students to join its ranks, he said.

Shirley Keltner serves as secretary-treasurer and Dave McPherson is vice president.

Schaumburg Airport Boosters meet the first Tuesday of each month in the main hangar at Schaumburg Airport.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Szwedko at 882-3314.

Items relating to general aviation, work for Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) of an Instrument Landing System (ILS) approach, and to deal with Schaumburg Airport rules and regulations are now being formed.

Boosters will also take an active interest in the work of a village airport study committee commissioned last year by Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

THE STUDY, to be performed by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago engineering consulting firm, has been planned to determine feasibility, both economically and environmentally, of a municipal airport. Two-thirds of the cost of the study will be funded by an FAA planning grant.

At an organizational meeting of the group this week, Szwedko, a licensed pilot for the past 25 years, defined the Boosters as "an airport advisory committee." Members will take an active role in determining and enforcing safety regulations at Schaumburg Airport and will also study customer-management relations, he said.

lems relating to general aviation, work for Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) of an Instrument Landing System (ILS) approach, and to deal with Schaumburg Airport rules and regulations are now being formed.

Boosters will also take an active interest in the work of a village airport study committee commissioned last year by Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

THE STUDY, to be performed by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago engineering consulting firm, has been planned to determine feasibility, both economically and environmentally, of a municipal airport. Two-thirds of the cost of the study will be funded by an FAA planning grant.

Members, Szwedko stressed is open to anyone interested in aviation and not limited to either pilots or airport users.

The group intends to encourage aviation students to join its ranks, he said.

Shirley Keltner serves as secretary-treasurer and Dave McPherson is vice president.

Schaumburg Airport Boosters meet the first Tuesday of each month in the main hangar at Schaumburg Airport.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Szwedko at 882-3314.

Woman arrested for bad checks

A Chicago woman was arrested by Schaumburg police yesterday on three warrants involving the alleged passing of bad checks at Woodfield.

Imogene Williams, 20, of 7148 S. Yates, was arrested in the parking lot of the police station by Detectives William King and Harvey Woods. Police said the woman appeared in Schaumburg court in connection with another deceptive practice matter.

MISS WILLIAMS was charged with passing bogus checks at Marshall Fields, Sears and the J. Riggins shop. Police said articles valued at several hundred dollars had been purchased with allegedly bad checks. The warrants charged her with grand theft by deception and two counts of deceptive practice.

Police said the woman also used the name "Delores Williams." She is scheduled to appear in court in Schaumburg on May 9. She is being held at the Cook County Jail. Her bond was set at $3,500.

Cub Pack seeks participants

Cub Scout Pack 188 is accepting registrations now until June 15 for participation in the Schaumburg pack's activities.

Anyone interested may contact Mrs. C. A. Long at 359-8456.

Boys between 7 and 9 years of age or those who will be in third grade this coming fall are eligible to join the pack.

Hold self-renewing contracts

Gas shortage not likely to affect village vehicles

A gasoline shortage this summer is not likely to affect Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg official vehicles. Hoffman Estates has a self-renewing contract, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said. Rather than renegotiate a new contract and run the risk of being a newcomer cut from supplies if a shortage hit, Longmeyer said he agreed to a price increase on the old contract.

Long-time customers would be the last cut if the supplier is forced to squeeze his customers. With the old self-renewing contract, the village would be a three-to-four-year customer, Longmeyer said.

SCHAUMBURG VILLAGE Administrator John Coste said "no problems are anticipated over a gas shortage." Schaumburg's contract with Union 76 is in its second year, Coste said, and "we are in constant communication with them."

Longmeyer said the price increase of 2½ cents per gallon on regular gasoline and 4½ cents per gallon on ethyl gasoline would increase village gasoline expenditure by about $2,250 a year. The village uses about 100,000 gallons of gasoline a year, primarily for police and public works vehicles, he said.

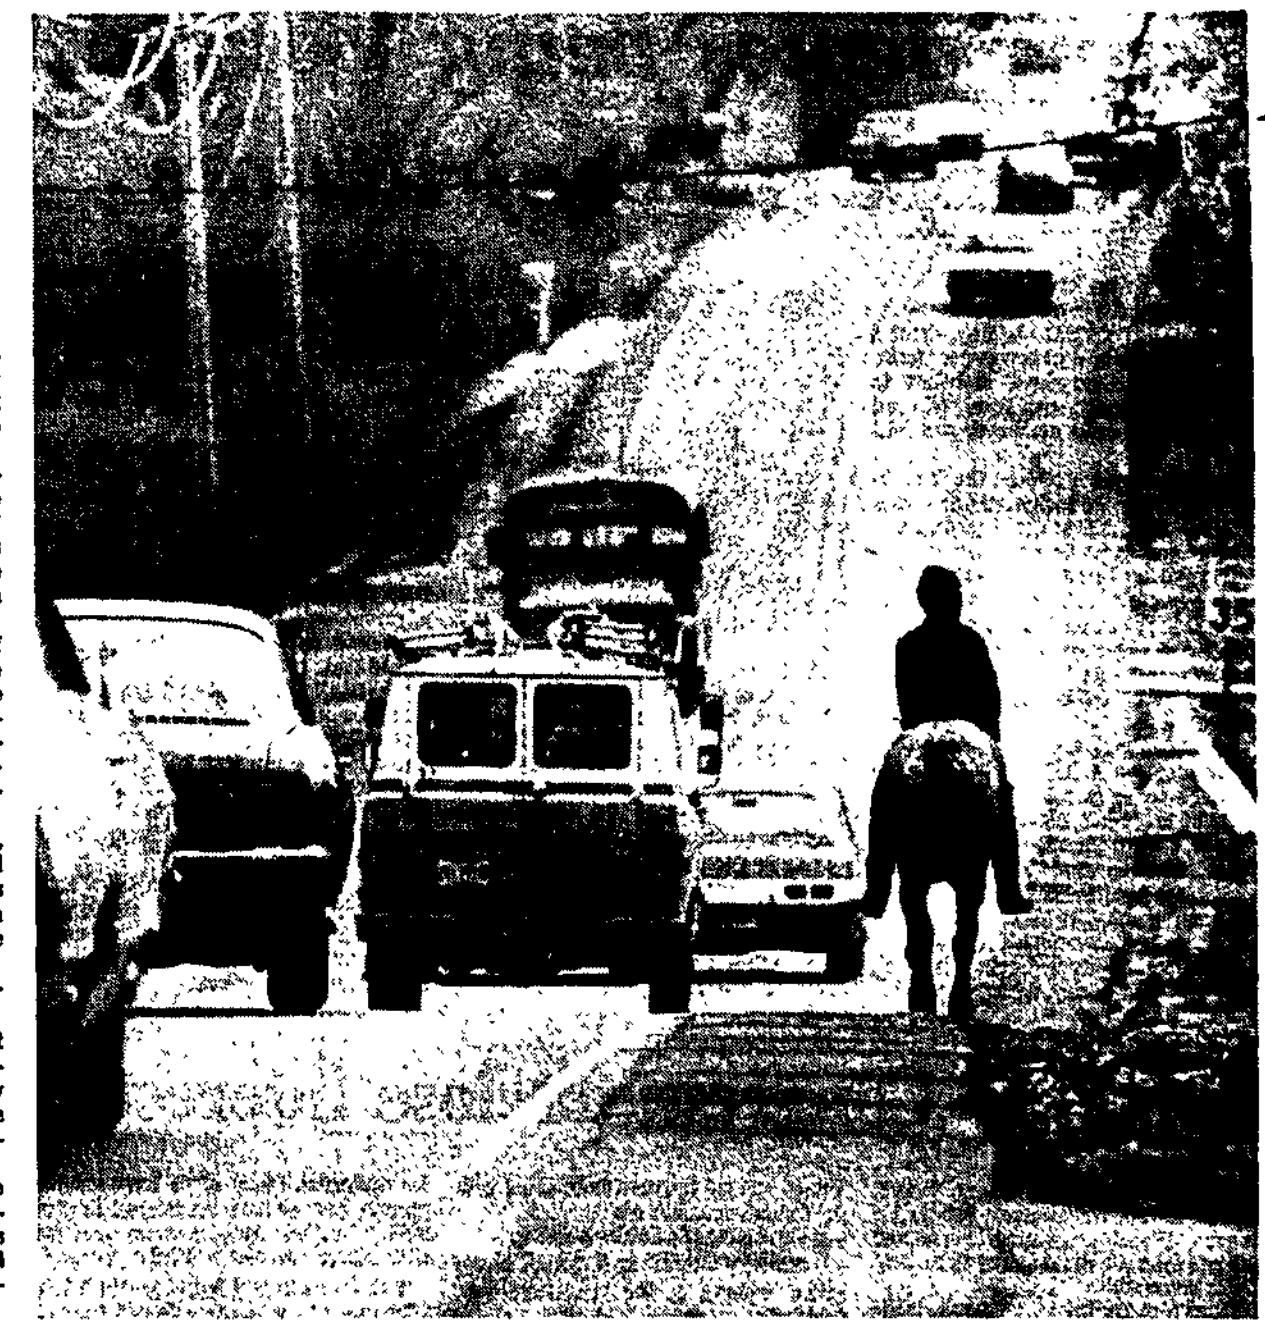

The increase is slight, Longmeyer said, because a month ago the village stopped using ethyl gas in squad cars. Ethyl was abandoned because most new cars with anti-pollution devices don't need it, he said.

Bell Fuel Co. supplies gasoline to Hoffman Estates.

COSTE SAID Schaumburg's contract runs until next January. "My best information is the crunch will be over by fall," he said. Union 76 has asked the village to do everything possible to conserve gasoline, he added.

As an example of conservation, Coste said a village employee driving to Springfield over implementation of a weights and measures ordinance would be paid mileage rather than given use of a village car and village gasoline.

"Union 76 has assured us we will have enough gasoline," Coste added. The village may have to renegotiate gasoline prices when the contract runs out, but Coste said he didn't know this for certain yet.

SLOW TRAFFIC, KEEP RIGHT. Since rider and horse be the fastest means of transportation, but it sure helps can't generate the "horsepower" of their mechanical counterparts, the righthand lane was where this pair dleman stayed while riding along Schaumburg Road. It may not

Village blood donor plan to be explained tonight

An explanation of the American Red Cross Blood Assurance Plan, adopted in March by the Village of Schaumburg, will be presented tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Melrose Community Center.

Representatives of all civic and community groups have been invited to attend the orientation meeting, according to Mary Nagy, blood drive chairman. Individual residents interested in learning about the community blood program are also welcome, she said.

On recommendation of the board of health and the department of public health, the village entered into an agreement with the American Red Cross Blood Plan which immediately covered all residents, their immediate family members in residence and specific relatives residing elsewhere.

In return, Schaumburg must secure donations of a minimum of four units of blood for each 100 residents (four per cent of the population) each year and to provide volunteers for a successful program.

The first community blood drawing will be held July 15 and Schaumburg High School, Mrs. Nagy said. Additional drawings will be held in September and November.

St. Marcelline's Catholic Church is cooperating with the village plan though it has a separate four per cent agreement with the American Red Cross, Mrs. Nagy explained. She said a parish blood drive will be conducted at St. Marcelline's May 16 and 17.

"We are recruiting blood donors as well as volunteers to assist in any way they choose during donor days," Mrs. Nagy emphasized.

Organizational representatives attending tonight's meeting will be designated donor recruiters, she added.

Information about the program or volunteer service may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Nagy at 529-1245.

Shopping mall action delayed

Action has been postponed on a shopping mall on the northwest corner of Meacham and Higgins roads until Schaumburg officials can clear up confusion over the zoning ordinance governing the center.

Attorneys for the property owners will meet with zoning board chairman Russell Parker to discuss the feasibility of changing the zoning from B-3 to B-2 or B-4. All are business classifications discussed at Tuesday's plan commission hearing.

The difference in the classifications involves the amount of control the village has over the development. B-3 is a planned business center and requires village approval of the use of each building before it is built.

Classifications B-2 and B-4 allow the developer to proceed with each construction phase without approval each time. A detailed description of the uses of each building, type of tenants, a site plan, and architectural drawings must also accompany application for a planned business center.

MAYOR ROBERT O. Atcher suggested the 35-acre parcel be rezoned to B-4, the attorney said, to ease the way for development. It is impossible to provide a detailed description of the center as the B-3 ordinance requires, and B-4 or B-2 would allow developing a portion at a time without village approval at each stage, he added.

Parker said he thought a zoning change should be sought. The mall will contain a department store and a supermarket. Negotiations are progressing with Woolco Department Store, a possible tenant for the mall, the attorney said. Woolco is a subsidiary of F. W. Woolworth and Co., and resembles a K-Mart.

The property owner, the Kern family, is agreeable to extending Woodfield Drive west, the attorney added. Newly appointed commission chairman Dick Nomellini also asked if the owner would improve Higgins Road, Meacham Road and State Parkway.

The first development phase will include the department store, food store, and other retail shops in the mall. An office building of undetermined height may be part of successive phases, the attorney said.

Baseball signup still open

Boys' and girls' in Hoffman Estate still may register for the summer baseball and softball program.

Al Binder, park district director said openings exist in the senior league and the major-minor. The senior league is open to boys ages 13 to 16 years old. The major-minor league is still accepting registration for boys 9 to 12 years old.

Binder said the program, being operated by the Hoffman Estate Community Baseball Association, is also accepting registration for the girls' softball program.

Umpires are needed for all the baseball and softball leagues, Binder said adding that senior league umpires are paid while others work on a volunteer basis.

More information about registration and umpiring may be obtained by calling the district at 529-5600.

Girls win poster contest

Six Schaumburg area Camp Fire girls have been named winners in a local poster contest used to publicize the group annual candy sale.

Winning posters in the Blue Bird group were prepared by Sharon Smolka, Renee Zahnem and Jennifer Turnwall.

Barbara Schack, Michelle Terry and Debbie Joneczyk were named winner in the Camp Fire Girls division of the contest.

The posters have been on display in local stores to help promote the candy sale, which is annually the major fund raising event for organization.

Montessori open house set

A Montessori Open House will be held Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. by the Discovery Montessori Center.

The open house will be held in The Church of St. Columba, 1800 W. Irving Park Rd., Hanover Park, where the center is located. The annual event is held in conjunction with other Montessori schools through Illinois, and is sponsored by the Illinois Montessori Society.

The theme for the open house, "Montessori is O.K.!", was chosen to highlight the growth of Montessori schools in Illinois.

Plans for an addition on The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., have been approved by the Schaumburg Plan Commission with the stipulation there be right-of-way provided for the expansion of Roselle Road to four lanes.

Owner Jon Floria agreed that an "adjustment" in his property would be made if more land is needed for widening the road. To meet the 100-foot-right-of-way the state says will be needed eventually for Roselle, Floria would have to give up 17 more feet. Roselle Road is 66 feet wide at present.

The two-story addition will provide more office space. Floria's request was originally postponed to allow engineering and fire department review of his plans. Uncertainty over what changes would be allowed in the area covered by the proposed Old Town ordinance also held up his plans.

IN RELATED action, Commission Chairman Dick Nomellini said the Old Town subcommittee should obtain ordinances governing the French Quarter in New Orleans, the Hartford Mall in Connecticut, and San Pedro's Ports of Call. These areas were all suggested as good examples of old town development by Steven Wilkes, owner of property at Schaumburg and Roselle roads.

Nomellini said the subcommittee should see how those towns went about setting up a special old town area before plans are finalized for Schaumburg's old town district.

The subcommittee had previously prepared a Schaumburg Centre Historic District ordinance setting up a special fixed area around the Schaumburg-Roselle intersection.

Nomellini said perhaps it is not necessary to have a precisely fixed area, but one more generally outlined. He also questioned whether the object of the ordinance should be to preserve an historic area or simply to establish an old time look. The ordinance as written set up landmarks commission to preserve old buildings. Nomellini said only St. Peter's Church and about four buildings were really worth preserving.

The ordinance as originally written by the subcommittee established a six-month moratorium on all building in the area while a professional planner set up guidelines for the district. The village board, while not approving the ordinance, set up a 45-day moratorium that would be extended in all probability.

Nomellini asked the subcommittee to obtain the three ordinances Wilkes suggested before the 45 days expired. He also asked the subcommittee to meet with the development committee which was "touchy on the wording" of the ordinance.

Holy Family fire caused by TV

Fire caused at least $1,200 in smoke damage at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Tuesday evening when a television set apparently short-circuited and burst into flames.

No one was injured in the fire, but Mrs. Patricia Brady, the patient occupying the second floor room, along with two other patients in adjoining rooms had to be evacuated.

Firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze before it was able to spread outside the room.

Salt Creek Watershed report on its way to Washington

The water pollution report for the Upper Salt Creek Watershed program was sent to Washington yesterday, hopefully clearing the way for federal action on the program.

Howard Busch, state conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS), said the report will be reviewed in the service's main office.

The report and the watershed work plan will then be submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the Council for Environmental Quality (CEQ).

BUSH SAID the law requires that the CEQ keep all information on the watershed project on file for 30 days. During this time, no work that would use federal funds can be contracted.

Busch said that depending upon when the CEQ receives the reports, the 30-day waiting period would be over between the middle and end of June.

During the time the reports are on file, the OMB will include allocations for the work plan in the conservation service's fiscal budget.

When the 30-day filing period is over, the OMB will then send the work plan to the Congressional public works committee for a resolution approving the expenditure of funds. The resolution does not allocate funds specifically for the project, but authorizes the SCS to include the watershed as a project for which it can spend federal funds.

Local watershed officials have said they hope to get federal approval prior to the 1974 fiscal year, which begins July 1.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed program is a $26.5 million project to build a series of flood controls on the creek. Federal funds for approximately half the project are being requested. The balance of funds would come from the state and local government sponsors of the watershed plan.

THE PROGRAM IS designed to relieve flooding in the 33,280-acre flood plain of Salt Creek which flows through Cook, Lake and DuPage counties.

Northwest suburban villages that have co-sponsored the work plan are Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Palatine and Rolling Meadows. Other local sponsors include various park districts, the Cook County Forest Preserve and the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The largest of the flood controls would be a 580-acre retention basin in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The area around the basin would be developed as a recreational area.

In flood times, the basin would fill about 1,300 acres.

The water pollution report includes replies to questions raised by the Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA contended the water in the Busse Woods retention basin would become stagnant and polluted.

Officials from the conservation service and the EPA met early last month to resolve the possible pollution problems. A promise to test the water regularly apparently satisfied the EPA.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U. S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 195 persons for official corruption.

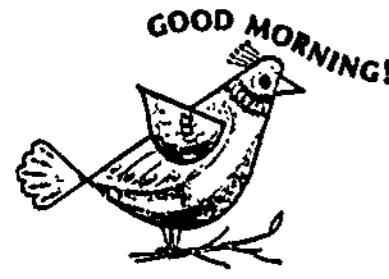

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to write. (Continued on page 2)

$660,000 flood control work needed: panel

by TOM VON MÄLDER

An estimated $660,000 worth of flood control measures should be started as soon as possible in Mount Prospect, according to the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission.

Eight projects were included in the "top priority" category by the commission after its eight-month, intensive study of flood conditions in the village. The projects and priorities are included in a report issued yesterday by the commission as a supplement to the recently completed Consoer, Townsend & Associates flood control report.

The commission urged that all projects under this phase of the $4,889,000 total program be completed by fall, 1974. Work should begin next month, the report says.

A detention basin south of Lawrence

Lane of approximately 6.5 acre-feet should be built by late fall, the report said. Engineering, land acquisition and construction are estimated to cost $200,000.

CRUMLEY BASIN, at Lincoln Street and Busse Road, should be enlarged ($75,000) and the current detention facility at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights should be enlarged if possible, the report recommended. Included with the high school detention basin is a storm sewer along Grove Street, bringing the total cost to $75,000 for that portion of the program.

A new lift station at Lincoln Street and Weller Creek, at a cost of $10,000, is recommended to prevent backup into the Arlington Heights sewer collection system. A storm sewer along Lonnquist Boulevard, estimated at $85,000, should be started immediately and a similar sewer along Can-Dota Avenue, costing $50,000, should be started in conjunction with the extension of the Weller Creek widening project, the report said.

The commission also asked that consideration be given to the grading of the Holmes Junior High School property line 1900 W. Lonnquist Blvd., to create a shallow detention basin to relieve flooding of homes on Crestwood Lane and other areas to the east. The cost would be $10,000.

Also recommended for fall completion is retention in the area of Prospect High School and Forest Avenue. A berm to hold water along the easterly property line of the school from Highland Avenue to Memory Lane and grading in the area northwest of the tennis courts was suggested. The cost would be about $30,000.

THE FINAL PROJECT in the top priority group is an outfall sewer at the intersection of Rand Road and Isabella Street. The outfall, at a cost of $90,000 would serve until part of the Metropolitan Sanitary District Deep Tunnel System and a dropshaft are put in at the location.

In the commission's same spirit of trying to provide relief of the greatest hardships the soonest, it made two recommendations with regard to Weller Creek. The first is that the village request the Illinois Division of Water Resources

One block of Main Street between Central and Busse Avenue (shaded area on map below) will be closed starting today for the remainder of road work that is expected to take up to four weeks. Board votes against teacher pact

The High School Dist. 214 board voted 4 to 3 last night against a proposed three-year salary contract with its teachers.

Following the vote, representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining ult for the teachers, said some teachers would react "violently" to the board action and said the move is sure to intensify a power struggle within the teachers' ranks.

The proposed contract, which would have raised the base pay for a beginning teacher from $8,600 a year to $9,300 a year next year and to $9,650 by the 1975-76 school year. It was worked out by a six-man "impasse resolving committee" which included two board members, Supt. Edward Gilbert and three teachers.

Board members Jack Costello, Arthur Aronson, Richard Bachhuber and Warren Schabinger voted against the pact. Board Pres. Gene Artemenko, Jack Matthews and Donald Hoeck voted for it. Arte-

In River Trails next fall

Option offered on school attendance

Parents of students in River Trails Dist. 26 will have the option next fall of requesting a transfer of their children to any other elementary school in the district.

An open transfer policy was adopted by the Dist. 26 school board Tuesday night. The policy was prompted by calls from parents who wanted to transfer their children to Bond School, the only school in the district designed under the "open school" concept.

Under such a concept, instruction is completely individualized and multi-age grouping is used instead of individual grade levels. At Bond, classes are divided into primary (kindergarten, first and second grade), lower intermediate (third and fourth grade) and upper intermediate (fourth and fifth grade).

Under the new policy, a parent's request for transfer must be submitted to the principal of the local school at least one week before school opens. All transfers must be for a full school year; board members stressed a transfer "is not on a trial basis."

APPROVAL OF the request will depend on enrollment at the receiving school as determined by its principal. Final approval will be given by the superintendent.

Parents must provide transportation for the transferred students. According to Asst. Supt. James Retzlaff, they would not be able to send the student by school bus because all bus routes are based on local school attendance areas.

Any transfers because of school boundary changes, or placements made by the board or superintendent, override the new policy, according to Retzlaff. Students in special education classes are not affected by the policy.

Retzlaff said he has no estimates on how many parents might request transfers.

"Considering the enrollment projections for Bond School it's doubtful we could take in more than 10 more students," he said. According to the projections, Bond will have 10 less students next fall than the 303 currently enrolled.

The board voted on an open transfer policy for Bond School and one for the entire district separately.

"SOME OF US HAD different feelings about each one. I think most of us approved the Bond policy but some had questions on the other," said board member Sylvia Lurie.

The Bond policy was approved unanimously but the vote on district-wide policy was 5-1. Board Pres. Lloyd Denel cast the opposing vote. Board member

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 100 days.

President adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

The state

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Gigliotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collinsville, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced negotiators" surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The world

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

His last words: I didn't mean to hurt you, baby

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruth Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulling back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 39, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .355 caliber Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

* Carbona ordered her home at 10:15 p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

* When she arrived home, Carbona

"cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

* Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

* Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

* She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

* Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he was going to blow my --- guts out," she said. She said she told Carbona her leg and body hurt so badly "I didn't care what he did."

* Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

* She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

* Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

* Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your --- brains out," before he started down the stairs.

MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Police told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

Ruth Carini, 11 and William Carini, 10, said they were awakened in the middle of the night Dec. 21, 1971 by the argument between their mother and stepfather.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing their stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruth Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

Management to complete restoration and stabilization of Weller Creek banks from Mount Prospect Road to School Street.

Once the stabilization is completed the remainder of the creek widening work can be continued. The commission's second recommendation is that state legislation be passed to provide enough funds to complete the creek project by 1975.

$6,672,622 village budget approved

A $6,672,622 village budget, $1.1 million more than last year's, has been unanimously approved by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The board voted 7-0 Tuesday night to adopt the 1973-74 budget. Mayor Robert Teichert also voted.

Much of the increase over last year is due to the creation of 29 new positions in the village. They include 13 policemen, 10 firemen, two secretaries, a part-time sanitarian, a deputy code enforcement officer, a deputy finance director and a full-time planner. Money for two new ambulances and equipment for the public works department is also included in the budget.

The board also approved a $110,000 capital improvement fund as part of the budget document. This money, designated for municipal and library expansion, is expected to be used over the next year as a down payment on the Central School property at Main Street and Central Road, although that has not been confirmed by village officials.

THE BOARD has already authorized an appraisal of the site at the urging of trustee Donald Furst. Furst was the prime proponent of establishing the capital improvement fund. He has estimated that the Central School land would cost $300,000 with another $200,000 needed to renovate the existing building.

Along with the budget, the board approved $699,540 for motor fuel tax projects, including street improvement, construction of the William Street bridge, and street maintenance.

In other business, the village board voted 5-1 to grant a wine and beer license to Romance Pizzeria, 818A N. River Rd. Out-going trustee Daniel J. Ahern cast the only "no" vote. There was no decision.

The board approved three contracts for street improvements. They were $4,185 to Perma-Line Corp. of America, Chicago for crosswalk striping for 80 crosswalks;

$15,435 to North Shore Cement of Skokie for replacement curbs and gutters to go along with the 12 miles of street resurfacing to be done this year; and $10,889.25 to Glaze Construction Co., Algonquin, for resurfacing Albert and George streets from Central Road to Northwest Highway.

Trustee Furst said that contrary to his earlier fears, installation of curbs and gutters on George and Albert streets at a later date would not require digging up the new surface. All three votes were unanimous.

Fall preschool signup under way

Parents can now register their preschool children for fall classes at Children of the Shepherd Preschool in Prospect Heights.

State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced a bill in the Illinois General Assembly that would appropriate $805,000 for the Weller Creek work. He expects the bill to be considered soon.

THREE PROJECTS are included in the clean streams commission's second priority group. The commission recommended that design work be done in 1974 and completion come in 1975 for the projects.

They are construction of a Cottonwood Lane-Linneman Road storm relief system. A detention basin on Lincoln Junior High School property and a possible detention basin on property along Rand Road owned by the Prospect Heights Park District. The latter, which could cost $200,000, is near the Wedgewood Terrace subdivision.

THE SECOND project in the third priority group is a supplemental sewer system, at $282,000, for the Colonial Heights subdivision. It would be built in conjunction with the Weller Creek improvement.

The third priority group, to be completed by 1976, are two projects. A subordinate sewer system, if needed, would be built in the Hatlen Heights area for $150,000. However, the Special Assessment '70 storm sewer and enlargement of Crumley Basin may make any additional system unnecessary.

THE THIRD project in the fourth priority group by itself. This would be a proposed detention basin for the Magnus Farm property north of Hatlen Heights and south of Central Road. A possible $100,000 cost is listed for the project, scheduled for 1977 completion. The commission urged the village to contact the owner about a possible land dedication.

The final priority group is a comprehensive system of relief storm sewers throughout the village that will enable the village to hook up to the MSD deep tunnel project.

One project comprises the fourth priority group by itself. This would be a proposed detention basin for the Magnus Farm property north of Hatlen Heights and south of Central Road. A possible $100,000 cost is listed for the project, scheduled for 1977 completion. The commission urged the village to contact the owner about a possible land dedication.

Teacher contract voted down, 4-3, by school board

menko and Matthews served on the "impasse resolving committee."

THE CONTRACT dispute will now be submitted to a three member fact-finding board which will be made up of one representative from each side and a professional arbiter. The board designated Costello as its representative on the fact-finding board.

Earlier in the day, the district's teachers voted to accept the pact by 583 to 116.

The board members voting against the contract said they objected to the fact it left the index, which makes all salaries a fixed percentage of the base, untouched. Board members have objected to the expense caused by the index, saying the district could not afford to guarantee that top pay will be more than twice the base pay.

Police search for attacker

Mount Prospect police are searching for a man who attacked an Arlington Heights woman in the Thunderbird Bowl parking lot early Friday morning, and then almost ran down a friend of the girl when the friend tried to assist her.

Police said the attack on a 19-year-old Arlington Heights woman took place about 1:30 a.m. Friday in the parking lot of the bowling alley, 821 E. Rand Rd. The victim of the attack was getting into her car when a man forced his way into the car. When she began screaming a friend of the woman pulled the attacker from the car.

The assailant struck the friend in the face and then got into a two-door brown Chrysler and tried to run him down, according to police reports.

Police refused to release the names of the woman and her friend who thwarted the attack.

The assailant was described to police as white, five foot, seven inches tall, 160 pounds and with a light brown crewcut.

Man convicted of deception, theft

A 21-year-old Mount Prospect man was convicted of three counts of deceptive practice and one of theft Tuesday in Cook County Circuit Court.

John E. Stelbacky, 2006 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, was sentenced to serve one year for each count in Vandalia State Prison. Stelbacky will serve the sentences concurrently.

Stelbacky reportedly stole checks from David L. Schilau of Schiller Park and forged Schilau's name on the checks.

Arlington Heights Police said they received complaints in September, 1972 from two village businesses who had accepted checks forged by Stelbacky. The amount forged totaled $60.

Stelbacky originally was charged with two counts of forgery and one of deceptive practice and theft, but pleaded guilty to reduced charges of deceptive practice and theft.

Medallion, $83 taken from home

A religious medallion and $83 in cash were stolen during a daylight burglary Tuesday at the home of J. Kenneth Ehlen, 215 N. Stratton Ln.

Police said the cash was taken from three bedrooms after the burglar broke the rear kitchen door to gain entry.

Vince Carioti, president of the education association, said he was surprised and disappointed by the board action. "This is going to apparently confirm the suspicions of some teachers that the board is not to be taken at face value," he said.

He said the board action will be used by teachers who have been trying to get the district association to affiliate with a state and national organization, either the Illinois Education Association (IEA) or the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT).

"THERE ARE SOME of the teachers in our district who feel we don't have the expertise to negotiate with the board because we're independent," Carioti said. "I'm sure they are going to use this to try to discredit us."

John Smith, head of the association bargaining team, said, "There'll be individual teachers who will want to take some action. I don't know how far they will get with it."

Board member Artemenko said as a member of the impasse committee he was disappointed that the board didn't approve the proposed pact. "All six of the people on the committee thought the three-year agreement was extremely advantageous for both sides. It turns out to be exactly the opposite."

Last year contract talks between the two sides were not resolved until November. The major stumbling block at that time was the board's desire to eliminate the index.

Pick almost any unusual topic, from beginning yoga to horsemanship to sports news writing, and the special summer program at Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will probably have a class on that topic.

For the summer, the district is offering a wide variety of special interest classes at 15 of the 20 district schools. The standard academic development courses are also available, but the district is encouraging enrollment in special interest classes.

Philip Thornton, director of the summer school program, said in a cover letter sent home with students that the purpose of the summer program is to expose children "to a fun environment that involves exploration and participation for the sheer joy of learning."

Many special courses are offered throughout the district, but certain schools have unique classes.

FOR EXAMPLE, Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village has a course in horsemanship. Students will go horseback riding one day each week. The other four days will be spent studying different types of riding equipment and learning how to care for horses.

Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect is offering regular and "mini" courses. Included in the special "mini" offerings are poetry in rock music, sports news writing and broadcasting, electronic kit building and a course on becoming a referee for different sports.

Brantwood School in Des Plaines has a "charm farm" for girls only. The class will cover beauty care, clothing and party planning. The class will end with a special party for the girls and their mothers.

Ripley School in Elk Grove Village has a class on beginning yoga.

Among the special classes offered at most schools are: dramatics, reading enrichment and different sports and physical education programs.

A booklet describing the exact courses offered at each school has been distributed to the students.

THE SIX-WEEK summer session begins June 25 and ends Aug. 3. There will be no school on July 4. A $5 registration fee will be charged and registration can be done at the particular schools between May 7 and June 1. After June 1, a late registration fee of $7.50 will be charged.

Elementary school classes will be between 8:30 and 11:45 a.m. Junior high school classes will be between 8 and 11:15 a.m.

Free bus service will be available for students at their regular schools. Children may enroll for classes at a school other than the one they normally attend, but parents will be required to furnish transportation.

Holy Family fire caused by TV

Fire caused at least $1,200 in smoke damage at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Tuesday evening when a television set apparently short-circuited and burst into flames.

No one was injured in the fire, but Mrs. Patricia Brady, the patient occupying the second floor room, along with two other patients in adjoining rooms had to be evacuated.

Firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze before it was able to spread outside the room.

Thompson labels Watergate 'incredible' abuse of power

by WANDALYN RICE

U. S. Atty. James Thompson yesterday called Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt "morons as well as burglars" and predicted the widening scandal will "have a lasting effect on the political process."

Thompson, speaking at a Law Day assembly at Prospect High School, added that revelations that the two convicted Watergate burglars also broke into the offices of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist means "all standards of credibility and believability and unreality in this case have to disappear." He added, "This is the most incredible misbehavior in history."

Thompson was also scheduled to speak last night at a public forum sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The 35-year-old prosecutor of Federal Judge Otto Kerner said it is highly unlikely that he will be named special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation, despite a suggestion by U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford.

THOMPSON added he is not sure whether he personally favors the appointment of a special prosecutor because "that is an admission that the system can't work — that there is nobody within the Justice Department who can conduct this investigation — and I don't think that's true."

He said that appointment of a former prosecutor from anywhere in the nation probably would mean the appointment of someone with a political background. The appointment of an attorney who does not have experience as a prosecutor, he said, "would run the risk of losing the prosecutorial skills in what may be and probably is the most important investigation and prosecution in the history of our country."

Even if a special prosecutor is appointed, Thompson said, "There are others in this country much more qualified than I and I feel an obligation to stay in the Northern District of Illinois."

DURING HIS first visit to the Northwest suburbs since his appointment as U.S. attorney 17 months ago, Thompson said he had considered the possibility of staying away from public speeches to avoid the Watergate issue.

He said he had decided not to avoid the issue because "whatever comes out of Washington in the future and no matter who is implicated, we have the duty to keep on doing what we're doing and saying what we're saying to demonstrate in at least some areas there is still integrity in government service."

During his term as public prosecutor, Thompson, who was appointed by President Nixon, has obtained indictments of 195 persons for official corruption.

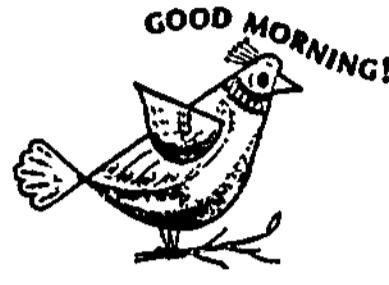

He and the young attorneys on his staff are continuing to investigate public officials, he said, and "We're going to make it hot for crooked politicians of whatever party and whatever political stripe and at whatever level of government they serve."

THE GUIDING philosophy of his office, he said, is that "public office is a public trust. It is a very temporary thing. Public office belongs to the people — it does not belong to the people who have it."

"Most people in public office get into trouble because they think the office belongs to them and they can use it to advance their careers or to line their pockets," he added. "We want to convince them that the only remuneration they are entitled to is what is given them by law and if that's not enough for them they should get out."

Thompson also told the students, "I've got no political strings on me. I can go back to being a law professor or to writing. (Continued on page 2)

Teacher contract voted down, 4-3, by school board

The High School Dist. 214 board voted 4 to 3 last night against a proposed three-year salary contract with its teachers.

Following the vote, representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining ult for the teachers, said some teachers would react "violently" to the board action and said the move is sure to intensify a power struggle within the teachers' ranks.

The proposed contract, which would have raised the base pay for a beginning teacher from $8,600 a year to $9,300 a year next year and to $9,650 by the 1975-76 school year. It was worked out by a six-man "impasse resolving committee" which included two board members, Supt. Edward Gilbert and three teachers.

Board members Jack Costello, Arthur Aronson, Richard Bachhuber and Warren Schabinger voted against the pact. Board Pres. Gene Artemenko, Jack Matthews and Donald Hocch voted for it. Artemenko and Matthews served on the "impasse resolving committee."

THE CONTRACT dispute will now be submitted to a three member fact-finding

Fate of Music for youth to be decided

Faced with a declining enrollment and the potential of a financial deficit, Music for Youth must decide whether to continue stringed instrument instruction next year for students in Arlington Heights School Dist. 25.

The beginnings of that decision may come at the organization's annual meeting set for 8 p.m. Tuesday at South Junior High School, 300 W. South St. The meeting is open to all members of Music for Youth, a parent group formed after instrumental music was dropped from the Dist. 25 curriculum in 1971-72 for budget reasons.

Adlai here to talk on park site

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III will tour the Arlington Heights Nike Base and then meet with residents during a visit to Arlington Heights tomorrow morning.

Stevenson is scheduled to arrive at the Nike site about 9:30 a.m. and will tour the base with local officials and military officers.

After the tour, Stevenson is scheduled to go to Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave., to meet with residents. The meeting at the park is open to all interested citizens and is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Local officials and homeowners representatives say they are hoping for a large turnout of residents in order to dramatize support for plans to acquire the base for park land.

STEVENSON played a major role in convincing the Navy to abandon its plans to build 140 housing units at the Nike Base and said he will continue to work to acquire the 52 acres of Navy-owned land at Wilke and Central roads for a park site.

A spokesman in Stevenson's Washington office said yesterday that the Senator is anxious to hear from citizens about the need for preserving the base as open space.

Tom McDonnell, vice president of the Surrey Ridge West Homeowners Association, said he is planning to distribute flyers throughout the subdivision urging people to attend the Pioneer Park meeting.

Students from the Juliette Low and Our Lady of the Wayside schools are also expected at the park. The Juliette Low School is located in the Surrey Ridge subdivision and Wayside is across from Pioneer Park.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon intends to decentralize White House chief of staff office, formerly held by H. R. Haldeman in the belief that office helped shield him from vital Watergate information.

Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, has been subpoenaed to give sworn testimony today about what she knows on the Watergate case.

John B. Connally, former treasury secretary and Texas governor, abandoned a Democratic Party he said had become too liberal for him, and became a Republican yesterday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Congress

should reserve the right to decide whether Alaskan oil should be brought to market by way of an Alaskan or Canadian pipeline.

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial made it evident that he was seriously considering dismissing all charges or declaring a mistrial in the case.

America's Skylab space station passed its final ground test yesterday for a May 14 launch. The ambitious mission will keep men in orbit for 140 days.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said he still expects to meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways of shoring up the Viet cease-fire.

The state

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott issued an opinion saying the Illinois Racing Board has no legal right to hand out free race-track passes to politicians, government officials and others.

Herbert Gigliotti, one of the victims of the mistaken drug raids by narcotics agents in Collinsville, objected to terms of the agents' suspensions. "They got suspended all right — with pay," he said.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan hit the elimination of the governor's unit on Senior Citizens and blamed the difficulty on "high-priced" negotiators surrounding Gov. Daniel Walker.

The Cambodian high command said fighting had slackened off around the country and that rebels across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh had been dispersed.

Lebanese troops, firing machine guns, clashed with guerrillas near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

His last words: I didn't mean to hurt you, baby

Husband tripped, shot himself, Mrs. Carbona says

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruthe Carbona testified in Cook County Criminal Court yesterday she was pulling back on her husband's arm and begging him not to leave home when he tripped on the stairs and she heard the gun he was holding go off.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, took the witness stand in her own defense in the sixth day of her trial on charges she murdered her husband Joseph, 34, by shooting him in the back in their Mount Prospect home on the morning of Dec. 22, 1971.

She denied she shot her husband and broke into sobs on the witness stand when recounting his last words as "I didn't mean to hurt you, baby."

Carbona, a lieutenant with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, was shot with his own .375 calibre Magnum revolver.

MRS. CARBONA told in detail the events leading to her husband's death. She testified:

* Carbona ordered her home at 10:15 p.m. December 21 after meeting her in the parking lot of Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand, Arlington Heights, where she worked as a waitress.

* When she arrived home, Carbona

"cracked me in the face with his hand and told me I should not be talking to anyone but him."

* Her husband beat her in the stomach and arms with his fists, and she tried to get away from him by running outside. She said she had hoped to drive to her mother's home because her mother might be able to calm Carbona.

* Carbona pulled her from her car as she tried to enter it, threw her in the bushes and drove her car out to the driveway in reverse, hitting her left leg with the car.

* She was in bed later the same night when Carbona awakened her by hitting her across the face with his hand.

* Carbona then pointed his pistol at her stomach and head. "He told me he was going to blow my --- guts out," she said. She said she told Carbona her leg and body hurt so badly "I didn't care what he did."

* Carbona left the house then and returned later in the morning after her two children left for school. He told her "he was tired of everything, he was going to leave. He was going to quit his job and go where nobody could ever find him."

* She told Carbona "he just was drunk and didn't know what he was saying. I told him if he would just lay down and go to sleep he would be all right."

* Carbona had loaded one armful of clothes into his car and was on his way downstairs with a second armload when the gun went off.

* Carbona hit her on the head with his revolver and cocked the gun at her head and told her to "get out of my way or I'll blow your --- brains out," before he started down the stairs.

MRS. CARBONA'S testimony was illustrated by three demonstrations for the jury. She stood in her stocking feet on a chair and showed with two attorneys how she pulled her husband's right arm up and back as he went down the stairs with the revolver in his right hand.

Under cross-examination she denied going to the Arlington Towers for a drink with a man who was a Corrado's customer before meeting her husband in Corrado's parking lot.

She denied telling sheriff's policemen she knew her husband would not hurt her or that her leg was injured because it was slammed in a door.

She said Carbona hung up when her sister telephoned that morning after telling her he was going to kill his wife.

She said she had taken tranquilizers before being interviewed by Sheriff's Police later that day and could not remember what she had told police.

MRS. CARBONA was later fired from her job at Corrado's Restaurant after she said Sheriff's Policemen told the owners they would "put undue heat on them if they kept me working there," she said.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Carbona's two children testified they helped their mother up from the bushes where Carbona had pushed her and that they helped her back into the house.

Ruthe Carini, 11 and William Carini, 10, said they were awakened in the middle of the night Dec. 21, 1971 by the argument between their mother and stepfather.

They said they ran from their bedrooms outside to help their mother after hearing her scream and hearing her stepfather drive away in his car.

Anne Sanders, a correctional matron from the Cook County jail, described bruises on Mrs. Carbona's body that she saw when she examined Mrs. Carbona, the day of Lt. Carbona's death.

MRS. SANDERS said there were 15 bruises on Ruthe Carbona's body, including a swelling and redness on one side of her face, which later turned into a black eye. She also said there was heavy swelling on one of Mrs. Carbona's legs, and scratches and bruises on her breasts, arms, left front neck and wrist.

She said Mrs. Carbona explained a large bruise underneath her buttocks by claiming she was kicked. She said Mrs. Carbona was kept in the hospital section of the jail because the bruises were painful.

Sheriff's policeman Glen Richert said he saw Carbona in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, 1971 and that Carbona smelled as if he had been drinking. Under cross-examination, however, Richert said he had had six scotch and sodas himself the evening of Dec. 21.

Richert's wife Christina testified Carbona drank bourbon highballs at her home between 5 and 6 a.m. that morning while waiting for her husband to come home.

Lack of sites delays low-cost housing project

Plans for low-cost housing for the elderly in Arlington Heights are at a standstill because village officials are still looking for sites for the housing project.

Housing Commission Pres. John Pittas said several sites are being considered but declined to disclose the locations because they are privately owned.

"This is the most difficult phase of the project," said Pittas. He said suitable sites were difficult to obtain because of a lack of land available in Arlington Heights.

The site must meet approval of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA)

Construction to close Campbell Street

A section of Campbell Street from Dwyer Avenue to Reuter Avenue will be closed today due to construction of underground utilities.

The work is part of the Yale Avenue storm sewer project which is part of the Arlington Heights Retention Basin project under way at Wilke Road and Kirchoff Road.

Village officials said the Campbell Street section will probably remain closed for several days. Traffic along Campbell will be detoured as follows: Eastbound traffic will be routed south on Reuter, then east on Sigwalt Street, then north on Dwyer to continue east on Campbell. Westbound traffic will be routed in reverse of the pattern.

Fate of 'Music for Youth' program must be decided three band teachers after Music for Youth president Mike Fogel told the board that dropping enrollment had created an $8,000 deficit for the group.

Students in the Music for Youth program are asked to pay $35 a semester for music instruction. The money is used to pay teachers' salaries.

BY TAKING OVER the salaries of the three band teachers, the school district eased the cost burden on Music for Youth which now has to pay only for stringed instrument instruction.

Stringed instrument lessons under the Suzuki method were one of the most popular music programs in Dist. 25 schools when they were offered as a regular part of the curriculum.

But in the two years that residents have had to pay extra money for the lessons, the number of children in the program has steadily fallen.

There are now less than 250 paying students in the program, according to Julius Miller, vice president of Music for Youth. Miller says that to meet next year's $30,000 salary budget, the group will have to enroll 450 students at $70 a year.

"Participation next year will not be much better than this year (estimated 300 students), which will leave us with a deficit of about $8,000 to be funded from fund-raising campaigns," he said.

AS AN ALTERNATIVE, Miller says he wants Dist. 25 to hire all or some of the Suzuki teachers whose salaries are now being paid by Music for Youth.

The board, however, is legally barred from hiring the present teachers because they are not certified by the state. So Miller is suggesting that they be hired on a "consultant basis" until they can be certified.

"If we are unable to work something out with the present teachers, then we should request that the district hire one full-time teacher of its choice to run the Book display at library

Children will be able to see how a book is put together, from the first idea to the final text, in a display at the Arlington Memorial Library, today through Sunday.

The display features the transcript, typeset copy of the text and galley proof of a children's book, "Call Me Heller, That's My Name," written by a Palatine resident, Stella Pevsner. Mrs. Pevsner loaned the display items to the library.

Mrs. Pevsner is the author of other children's books including "Footsteps in the Stairs" and "Break a Leg."

$30,000 increase seen in park budget

An increase of some $30,000 is expected in the 1973-74 working budget for the Salt Creek Park District, according to Jim DeVos, director of parks and recreation.

DeVos said yesterday the park board is considering a working budget totaling about $93,000 due to expanded programming in comparison to last year's budget which totaled about $60,000. The increase will not mean a tax increase, however, since the extra money will be generated from fees, charges and donations to the district, DeVos added.

Salt Creek currently maintains one of the lowest taxing rates, about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation, of any park district in the area. The bulk of the district's tax revenue comes from the Arlington Park Race Track and Arlington Park Towers Hotel, both located in the district.

Some $65,000 in taxes is expected to be collected by the district this year, DeVos said. He said the rest of the needed money will be raised through fees for programs and contributions to the district.

"IT'S A LOT to raise but I estimate we'll take in enough," DeVos said. He said the district will be able to raise the funds through expanded programming and through better working arrangements for the district's tennis and swim programs.

Many of the programs offered by the district use facilities rented or donated by businesses in the park district. These include the Arlington Park Towers, where swim lessons are offered, and the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

Last month, however, relations between the district and the hotel became strained when hotel management ordered the end of the district's free use of the swimming pool for free swim time.

Free swim time was also canceled at the Howard Johnson Inn, where the district was also being given time at no charge.

Management at the hotels said rowdy conduct on the part of park district swimmers caused the move. DeVos said yesterday, however, that a meeting between district officials and the Arlington Park Towers management will be held soon to attempt to reinstate at least one day for free swim time.

SWIM LESSONS are continuing to be offered at the Towers and will be part of the district's programming next year, DeVos added.

Clearbrook Center screening live-in center applicants

Clearbrook Center is screening applicants for placement in its live-in center for mildly and moderately retarded adults.

Ten persons have been accepted. Clearbrook officials hope to select 10 more this month so the facility will be at full occupancy when it opens June 15.

Clearbrook Center in Rolling Meadows is leasing Our Lady of the Wayside convent in Arlington Heights to use as the live-in center. Remodeling of the convent is under way and will be completed prior to the June 15 opening, according to Byrn Witt, Clearbrook director.

All 10 young adults who have been selected for placement in the live-in center are from the Northwest suburban area, according to Witt. He said five of them have jobs within the community and the others are employed at Clearbrook's Sheltered Workshop in Elk Grove Village.

To be eligible for residency in the live-in center, a person must be at least 18 years of age, mildly or moderately retarded, a current or former resident of northwest Cook County, able to be employed in the community or in Clearbrook's Sheltered Workshop and able to live in a facility with moderate supervision.

Persons interested in being considered for placement in the live-in center or desiring more information should contact Ken Jamas, Clearbrook program director, at 255-0120.

Clearbrook is also interviewing for an aquatic therapist, release houseparents

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District has submitted a proposal for turning the entire 137-acre base into a regional park after it is declared surplus to military needs.

The park district was granted recently 13 acres of land on the perimeter of the base, and has plans to develop a pitch-and-putt golf course on the property.

Before all or any part of the base can be turned over to park officials, it must be declared surplus to the needs of the military. After this, other federal and state governmental agencies are given the opportunity to acquire the land.

If none of these lay claim to the property, then local governmental units have a chance to secure it.

DURING THE LAST inspection of the base, only 13 acres were declared surplus. But now that the Navy has said it will not build housing on its portion of the base, local officials are hoping that all or part of the Navy land too will be judged excess to government needs.

The Navy has abandoned its plans to build housing at the Arlington Heights base for personnel at the Glenview Naval Air Station in favor of constructing the housing on Navy property near Libertyville.

Students can attend night classes

Students in High School Dist. 214 will have the option to take some of their classes at night starting in September.

Advance tickets for 'Future' fair available June 1

Advance ticket sales for the Future of America Fair at Arlington Park, Aug. 24 through Sept. 3, will be available through the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce June 1.

Earl Johnson, the chamber's executive director, said his office is accepting written ticket orders now, but that tickets will not actually be available until June 1.

The chamber of commerce is promoting advance ticket sales for the fair in a 100-mile radius of Arlington Park. A line-up of "big name" entertainers has been signed for the 11-day fair which promoters hope will draw half a million people to the race track grounds.

Advance tickets are priced at $2.25 for adults, a 75-cent savings over the gate admission price. Tickets for children aged 6 to 12 are $1, and children under 6 will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

Johnson said advance ticket orders should include a check or money order and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Orders should be addressed to the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 6, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Tickets can also be picked up after June 1 at the chamber office, 103 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Interested persons may call the chamber of commerce at 253-1703 for more information.

The Dist. 214 board this week approved a plan in which regular high school students will be gradually encouraged to start taking some of their classes in the evening.

Asst. Supt. Rod McLennan told the board he expects few students to take advantage of the option next year, but added that the number will probably increase as time goes on.

"I would expect that maybe by the third year, we would have 10 per cent of our students going to classes at night," McLennan said.

HIGH SCHOOL students would be integrated into some of the regular adult classes, McLennan said, but in some areas he would expect adults and high school students to be in separate classes.

"Some classes would have a mix of students and some would be segregated," he said. "Some people have told me that young people wouldn't want to go to school with older people and vice versa, so we'll have to see how it works out."

The board also approved an increase in tuition for the regular adult classes of $1 for most classes and $2 for those with the highest tuition. McLennan said the extra revenue from the tuition increase will be used to hire supervisors to maintain order in the buildings in the evening.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board voted four to two to accept the gym floor at Rolling Meadows High School provided the contractor refinishes the floor and provides a certificate of insurance protecting the district from liability for seven years.

The board has been unhappy with the installation of the floor since Rolling Meadows opened in 1971. Asst. Supt. Robert Weber said, "We will never accept that as a good floor," but added the arrangement with the contractor "is the best we can get short of going to court."

Information campaign to kick off Bridge Week

Bridge Week kicks off May 12, when teens begin distributing information about the youth services bureau to areas served by The Bridge.

Continuing through May 20, Bridge Week is aimed at familiarizing area residents with The Bridge and its services and raising funds for special programs in the coming year, according to Don Rago, executive director.

On Saturday, May 12, teens will canvass Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships and the villages of Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Barrington with information about The Bridge. At the end of the day, "taggers" will celebrate their first day of Bridge Week in Arlington Heights.

Open house at The Bridge offices, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, will be May 14 from 7-10 p.m.

STORYTELLER Ruven Gold will weave fables and stories of different cultures and religions at a special session on May 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Bridge Week officially winds up with a rock and folk circus at Barrington High School from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. May 20. The "All-American Boogie Woogie Rock and Folk Circus" will feature carnival games, refreshments and music by local groups.

The Bridge is operated by the Palatine Township Youth Committee and is staffed by 11 professional counselors. Its services include counseling, a telephone hotline, legal referrals, health services, community outreach workers and the drop-in center.

More information about Bridge Week activities are available from Jean Fisler or Dave Russell at 359-7490.
